CM PITCHES JAPANESE URBAN INFRASTRUCTURE MODELS

Returning from Japan, Karnataka Chief Minister D.K. Shivakumar unveiled plans to overhaul Bengaluru transit and attract ₹800-crore investments.

BENGALURU

Chief Minister D.K. Shivakumar announced that Karnataka is preparing to adopt Japan's advanced models for public transport, scientific waste disposal, urban redevelopment, and industrial growth. Briefing reporters at the Vidhana Soudha after returning from a three-day official visit to Japan, Shivakumar described the trip as eye-opening and regretted not making a similar visit during his earlier tenure as Urban Development Minister in S.M. Krishna's cabinet.

Admitting that Bengaluru's Metro network lacks comprehensive planning compared to Japan's world-class rail system, the Chief Minister praised Japanese stations for operating like bustling commercial hubs maintained cleaner than airports. He has directed urban development officials to integrate commercial spaces, pedestrian walkways, and transit-oriented redevelopment inspired by Tokyo's Azabudai Hills and Nagoya's Oasis 21, into future Metro projects, including the proposed Bengaluru-Tumakuru corridor. Authorities are also evaluating Osaka's Maishima waste-to-energy incineration model to modernize garbage management across Karnataka's growing cities.

On the industrial front, Shivakumar highlighted a fresh ₹800-crore agreement with Kawasaki Heavy Industries to expand its Harohalli facility over 10 years, creating roughly 600 jobs for local youth. He also invited Toyota to manufacture low-maintenance hybrid taxis modeled on Tokyo Olympics cabs in Karnataka, assuring local auto-rickshaw drivers that their livelihoods will remain protected. Emphasizing the state's push to expand manufacturing beyond Bengaluru, he confirmed discussions with Sumitomo on a dedicated Japanese Industrial Park and invited global firms to participate in Invest Karnataka 2027 next April.

Turning to pressing domestic issues, Shivakumar stated he is traveling to New Delhi to meet the Chief Ministers of Telangana and Kerala to oppose any constituency delimitation that undermines South India's political representation. Addressing protesting ASHA workers, he promised to honor state wage commitments while criticizing opposition leaders for ignoring the Centre's small funding share. Finally, the Chief Minister warned that if the Central Government fails to release pending drought relief funds before the upcoming legislature session, Karnataka will approach the Supreme Court and launch a 'Delhi Chalo' protest march.

> Compared to Japan, we are far behind. We failed to plan our Metro project properly. In Japan, railway stations look cleaner than airports, with one to three million square feet of commercial space built right above each station.

Delimitation plan hurts South India, warns CM

Karnataka Chief Minister D.K. Shivakumar accused the Centre of playing politics with the proposed delimitation bill, warning it unfairly weakens South India's voice in Parliament. Speaking in Bengaluru, he announced a Sunday meeting with fellow southern leaders, including Kerala's V.D. Satheesan and Telangana's Revanth Reddy, to build a united response before next week's special Parliament session. Shivakumar criticized the Union Cabinet for clearing the bill on Friday without consulting states or holding an all-party meeting. While supporting women's reservation, he opposed linking it to a 50 percent Lok Sabha seat expansion that boosts northern states like Uttar Pradesh while penalizing southern states for controlling population growth. He urged an immediate all-party dialogue to protect South India's fair representation.

Urban upgrades planned for Karnataka

Smarter Metro Hubs
Build basement shops, redevelop areas around stations, and improve pedestrian walkways and traffic flow at busy junctions.

Clean Waste-to-Energy
Inspired by Osaka's Maishima Incineration Plant, which burns 900 tons of garbage daily to generate electricity with strict pollution controls, Japanese experts have been invited to pilot similar plants in Karnataka's major cities.

Underground Tunnels
Officials will study the feasibility of adopting Japan's decades-old tunnel infrastructure model to ease urban congestion.

Kawasaki Deal
Signed a ₹800-cr agreement to expand Wipro Kawasaki Precision Machinery in Harohalli over 10 years, creating roughly 600 local jobs.

Denmark backs India for permanent UNSC seat

Denmark backed India's permanent UN Security Council bid and early EU trade pact, signing new green, defense, and tech agreements in New Delhi.

NEW DELHI

Denmark reiterated its firm support for India's permanent membership in a reformed United Nations Security Council (UNSC), while also backing the early conclusion of the India-European Union Free Trade Agreement (FTA). The diplomatic commitments were made during the 5th India-Denmark Joint Commission Meeting held in New Delhi, co-chaired by External Affairs Minister S. Jaishankar and visiting Danish Foreign Minister Lars Løkke Rasmussen.

Reviewing the full breadth of bilateral ties under the India-Denmark Green Strategic Partnership, both ministers adopted a five-year Joint Action Plan to guide the next phase of cooperation. They also expressed readiness to elevate bilateral relations to a Comprehensive Green Strategic Partnership during the next Prime Ministerial-level engagement. During the meeting, officials exchanged three key agreements: a renewed Memorandum of Understanding on skill development, vocational education, and entrepreneurship, a refreshed Cultural Exchange Programme, and a regulatory partnership between India's International Financial Services Centres Authority and the Danish Financial Supervisory Authority.

Beyond green energy, water management, shipping, and clean technologies, both sides agreed to expand collaboration into defense and security. Welcoming their inaugural Maritime Security Dialogue held in June 2026, India and Denmark committed to deepening cooperation in defense manufacturing and counterterrorism. The ministers also agreed to launch dedicated dialogues on technology and climate, targeting joint research in artificial intelligence, quantum computing, cybersecurity, space exploration, and Arctic affairs.

Highlighting strong economic and people-to-people links, the two leaders reviewed the implementation of the 2024 Migration and Mobility Partnership Agreement and welcomed progress toward operationalizing a healthcare recruitment initiative between the Kerala government and Denmark's Ministry of Senior Citizens. Rasmussen, who also met Karnataka Minister Priyank Kharge in Bengaluru during his visit to discuss Global Capability Centres, underscored India's skilled workforce as a vital asset for Danish enterprises.

Libya strike uncoordinated, admits Zelenskyy

KYIV

Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy confirmed that Ukraine conducted its recent naval drone attack on Russian vessels in Libya without prior consultation with European partners. The admission followed a Friday phone call with Italian Prime Minister Giorgia Meloni, whose government warned against the five-year conflict expanding into the Mediterranean Sea.

Earlier this month, Ukrainian long-range drones sank the Russian warship Merkury in Benghazi and struck a weapons-carrying cargo vessel off the Libyan coast. While Kyiv stressed the operation targeted only Russian military assets, the geographic expansion sparked unease across European capitals.

To preserve allied trust and address Rome's concerns, Zelenskyy pledged concrete steps to prevent future communication gaps.

Modi vows to fulfil women quota promise

NEW DELHI

Prime Minister Narendra Modi declared that his government will remove every obstacle standing in the way of 33 percent reservation for women in Parliament and state legislative assemblies. Posting a pointed video message on X ahead of next week's special Parliament session, Modi said the struggle to secure women's rightful representation has lasted decades and affirmed his personal commitment to keeping the promise made to India's Nari Shakti.

Union Home Minister Amit Shah echoed the Prime Minister's resolve, noting that Friday's Union Cabinet approval of the Constitution (132nd Amendment) Bill, 2026 marks a historic milestone toward bringing the Nari Shakti Vandan Act into reality. Urging all political parties to set aside differences and support the legislation, Shah said stronger female participation is vital for nation-building.

The special parliamentary sitting opens on Monday, November 30, with the Rajya Sabha reconvening on December 2 and proceedings scheduled through December 3. To address regional concerns that sank an earlier delimitation bill in April, the revised 132nd Amendment Bill proposes a uniform 50 percent increase in Lok Sabha and state Assembly seats across every state and Union Territory, while freezing inter-state seat proportions and boundaries until 2051. Under the proposal, the Lok Sabha's maximum strength would rise to 850, including up to 815 members from states and 35 from Union Territories, while the upper ceiling for state Assemblies would expand from 500 to 650.

While parties such as the DMK and Sharad Pawar's NCP have signaled backing for the revised formula, opposition leaders including Congress President Mallikarjun Kharge have announced plans to resist the bill, arguing that the 33 percent women's quota should be implemented immediately within existing seats without redrawing constituencies. For millions of women across India waiting to see promised seats turn into real leadership, next week's debate in Parliament will shape the future of democratic representation.

> Those opposing women's reservation will never be able to stop it.

Linking a 33 percent women's quota with a uniform 50 percent seat expansion aims to empower women leaders while soothing southern fears of losing parliamentary clout

Australian conservatives win Victoria poll

Sydney: Conservative forces scored a sweeping victory in Australia's Victoria state election, removing the long-standing Labor government and blocking a major surge by the anti-immigration One Nation party. Projections from the Australian Broadcasting Corp showed the centre-right Liberal-National coalition securing at least 49 of the 88 lower-house seats, bringing an end to twelve years of centre-left leadership in a traditional Labor stronghold.

At just 36 years old, Liberal state leader Jess Wilson is set to become Victoria's youngest and first elected female premier. Addressing supporters, Wilson stated that voters had delivered a firm demand for a fresh start and rejected the state's previous direction. Meanwhile, outgoing Premier Ben Carroll conceded defeat after losing his own seat, acknowledging that Victorians clearly wanted change following years of pandemic lockdown frustration and mounting state debt.

MADURAI

The ceremonial Karthigai Deepam was finally lit atop Thiruparankundram hill at the ancient Deepathoon stone pillar on Saturday, ending days of intense legal and religious dispute. The ritual took place under the direct watch of Supreme Court-appointed joint receivers, retired judges Justice S. Vaidyanathan and Justice V. Parthiban, who climbed the hill after visiting the Arulmigu Subramaniaswamy Temple.

The dispute began on November 24 during the annual festival, when officials lit the Maha Deepam near the Uchi Pillaiyar Temple instead of the Deepathoon pillar, despite an interim Supreme Court order directing otherwise. Following that standoff, the apex court appointed the two retired judges to take charge of temple administration and ensure the court's orders were carried out smoothly.

Heavy security was arranged across the hill on Saturday to maintain peace and protect the sanctity of the site.

Authorities restricted general public entry, allowing only authorized individuals to climb up for the ceremony. Earlier in the day, groups of women devotees performed the traditional Paal Kudam ritual, carrying pots of milk as sacred offerings to the deity.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi also marked the occasion on social media platform X, offering prayers to Lord Murugan, the wielder of the sacred spear. Outside the temple, devotee Sharmila welcomed the court-monitored ritual while criticizing the Tamil Nadu government for ignoring earlier judicial directions. Thanking the Supreme Court and CRPF personnel, she said devotees felt relieved that constitutional order and religious tradition were finally upheld peacefully.

Shah outlines UP delimitation gains

NEW DELHI

Uttar Pradesh is poised to significantly expand its State Assembly representation under the central government's upcoming delimitation reforms. Union Home Minister Amit Shah announced that the proposed constitutional amendment package—featuring the Delimitation Bill, 2026 and the Union Territories Laws (Amendment) Bill, 2026—will amend Article 170(1) to raise the maximum State Assembly cap from 500 to around 650 seats. Following the Union Cabinet's approval of updates to the 132nd Constitutional Amendment Bill, Parliament will debate the measures during a special session from November 30 to December 3. Shah noted that this expansion keeps Uttar Pradesh undivided while pairing the seat increase with one-third women's reservation, ensuring record female representation.

Blast near Afghan school kills 7 students

KUNAR

A massive morning explosion beside a middle school in Afghanistan's eastern Kunar province killed ten people and injured 110 others, mostly young students. The blast occurred around ten o'clock in Asadabad's Andar Ser area inside a neighboring home used by mining workers to store dynamite. Terrified neighbors rushed through thick dust to rescue trapped children from the collapsed bricks while ambulances transported the wounded to Kunar Provincial Hospital. Following the tragedy, officials blamed poor safety precautions and launched a full investigation. The incident has sparked urgent alarms regarding the severe dangers of storing volatile explosives directly next to classrooms.

BATTLE OVER BILL

Rahul rejects seat expansion, reassures alliance partners

NEW DELHI

Lok Sabha Leader of the Opposition Rahul Gandhi stated that the standing of alliance partners within the INDIA bloc will remain unchanged even if they support the Centre's proposed delimitation legislation, downplaying questions over potential friction with allies such as Sharad Pawar's NCP (SP) and the DMK. Addressing reporters in New Delhi ahead of Monday's special Parliament session, Gandhi framed the debate over the Constitution (132nd Amendment) Bill, 2026 and the Delimitation (Second) Bill, 2026 as a wider battle to defend Indian democracy. While noting that aligned opposition partners stand united, Gandhi appealed directly to non-aligned leaders and National Democratic Alliance constituents naming Telugu Desam Party chief N. Chandrababu Naidu and YSRCP leader Y.S. Jagan Mohan Reddy, to reflect on the country's democratic future. Accusing the ruling BJP of attempting to redraw the electoral map to its advantage, he warned that growing public anger would eventually defeat the government regardless of how constituency boundaries are reshaped.

Under the government's newly cleared legislative package, Lok Sabha and state Assembly seats across every state and Union Territory would rise by 50 percent lifting the Lok Sabha ceiling to 850 seats (815 from states and 35 from Union Territories), to roll out 33 percent reservation for women while freezing inter-state seat proportions until 2051. Rejecting the expansion outright, Gandhi argued that expanding the House to 850 is an unnecessary "blank cheque" that undermines social justice for Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes, and OBCs.

Instead, Gandhi challenged the Centre to implement the already-passed women's quota immediately within the existing 543-seat Lok Sabha, conduct a nationwide caste census, and entrust any boundary review to an impartial bipartisan commission. He also praised India's Gen Z and young citizens for speaking out fearlessly against perceived threats to democracy. As Parliament prepares for a high-stakes showdown starting November 30, Gandhi's remarks signal that the Congress intends to fight the 850-seat blueprint head-on while keeping opposition ranks intact.

Takeaways from Rahul Gandhi's remarks

Alliance stability: Confirmed that NCP (SP) and DMK's positions inside the INDIA bloc will not change regardless of their vote on the bill.

Alternative roadmap: Proposed retaining 543 Lok Sabha seats, conducting a nationwide caste census, and forming a bipartisan commission instead of expanding to 850.

Broad political appeal: Urged NDA partners like Chandrababu Naidu's TDP & Andhra leaders such as Y.S. Jagan Mohan Reddy to protect democratic norms.

The accused have been identified as Papina and Ravi Kumar, residents of Bhiman village in Pali district, Rajasthan. PASSENGERS ALLEGE AGENTS DOMINATE TATKAL BOOKINGS

Hubballi passengers are frustrated over Tatkal ticket shortages, alleging agents hoard most seats within minutes to resell at inflated prices.

CH NEWS, HUBBALLI

Passengers in Hubballi have expressed frustration over difficulties in booking Tatkal railway tickets, alleging that agents are cornering most of the available tickets within minutes and later selling them at higher prices.

The Tatkal reservation facility was introduced to help passengers make last-minute travel arrangements, particularly during emergencies. Under the system, tickets can be booked one day before the scheduled journey at a specified time. However, many passengers say the facility has become increasingly difficult to access.

Regular travellers complain that the booking process is affected by slow servers, technical errors and payment failures. Despite logging in well before reservations open and making repeated attempts, passengers often fail to secure tickets.

Key points

- Tatkal helps passengers make urgent bookings
- Slow servers and errors hinder users
- Agents allegedly book tickets within seconds
- Agents resell tickets at extra charges
- Urgent travellers face severe booking inconvenience
- Ordinary passengers question unfair booking disparities

Tickets gone in seconds

At the same time, allegations have emerged that certain agents manage to book large numbers of Tatkal tickets within seconds of the reservation window opening. These tickets are allegedly offered to passengers at additional charges, placing an extra financial burden on those who urgently need to travel.

Tatkal tickets are particularly important for people travelling at short notice for medical treatment, family functions, emergencies and work-related commitments. For such passengers, the inability to obtain tickets through the official booking system causes considerable inconvenience.

Many ordinary travellers feel that the facility, intended to provide relief during urgent situations, is not serving its purpose effectively. They have questioned how agents are able to secure tickets so quickly when individual passengers face repeated technical difficulties.

WHAT PASSENGERS WANT

- Probe: into complaints of irregularities
- Monitoring: stricter checks on authorised agents
- System: fixes for server and payment problems
- Curbs: on bulk or unauthorised bookings

Call for a probe

Passengers have urged the railway authorities to investigate complaints of irregularities and ensure that the reservation process remains fair and transparent. They have also demanded stricter monitoring of authorised agents and action against those found violating booking rules.

They want the Railways to strengthen its online reservation system, address server and payment problems, and introduce measures to prevent bulk or unauthorized bookings.

Passengers say effective monitoring and equal opportunities are essential to ensure that Tatkal tickets reach genuine travellers rather than being diverted for commercial gain.

Farmers seek extension of Malaprabha canal water

CH NEWS, DHARWAD

Dharwad farmers want the state government to extend Malaprabha Right Bank Canal water release by 15 days in December, citing shortages for drinking and farming.

Farmers in Dharwad district have urged the state government to extend the release of water into the Malaprabha Right Bank Canal for at least 15 days in December, saying the existing supply is insufficient to meet drinking water and agricultural needs.

Dharwad does not have a major river source of its own and depends on the Renuka reservoir in neighboring Belagavi district for drinking water. Due to poor rainfall during the monsoon, most lakes and tanks in the district have dried up, creating difficulties for residents, farmers and livestock.

Following appeals to the state government, permission was granted to release water into the Malaprabha Right Bank Canal from November 15 to 23. However, farmers said the nine-day supply of 500 cusecs was inadequate to fill the dry lakes and reach the tail-end areas.

According to farmers, although water was released from the Renuka reservoir, it failed to reach Ron taluk in Gadag district through Navalgund in Dharwad district. They said the canal had remained dry for a long time, causing much of the released water to be absorbed or lost before reaching distant areas.

Farmers are now demanding that the discharge be increased to 1,000 cusecs and continued for 15 days in December. They believe this would help recharge borewells, fill agricultural ponds and provide drinking water for cattle.

They said recharging borewells was particularly important as many farmers were struggling to obtain sufficient water for their fields. Filling village lakes and farm ponds would also help reduce drinking water shortages in the coming months.

Farmers pointed out that the Renuka reservoir currently holds around 16 TMC of water. After accounting for three TMC of dead storage, approximately 13 TMC is available for use. They said water could be released into the canal until June, if required.

With farmers facing increasing difficulties, pressure is mounting on the government to extend the supply. They are awaiting a decision from the Belagavi Regional Commissioner on their demand.

CH NEWS, DAVANAGERE

A farmer from the outskirts of Davanagere has lost ₹13.78 lakh after falling victim to an online fraud involving promises of easy money through a screenshot-based earning scheme.

According to the complaint filed at the CEN Police Station, a woman identifying herself as Neha Agarwal contacted the farmer through Telegram. She promised him ₹50 for every screenshot sent after adding specified products to an online wishlist. By submitting 30 screenshots daily, he was assured an income of ₹1,500.

After agreeing, the farmer received a link and submitted the requested details. To gain his confidence, the fraudsters initially transferred ₹5,146 to his bank account. They later persuaded him to invest money, promising higher returns.

Trusting their assurances, the farmer transferred a total of ₹13.78 lakh between July 19 and September 26. The website provided by the fraudsters displayed an investment balance of ₹15 lakh.

However, when he attempted to withdraw the amount, they demanded another ₹1.75 lakh as tax. When he refused, they stopped responding.

Realizing that he had been cheated, the farmer approached the CEN Police Station and lodged a complaint. The incident highlights the growing threat of online investment fraud through Telegram and other social media platforms.

EXPIRED DRUGS WORTH LAKHS FOUND IN BAGALKOTE WAREHOUSE

CH NEWS, BAGALKOTE

Negligence allegations emerged after expired, substandard medicines worth lakhs were found at Bagalkote's government warehouse amid ongoing hospital drug shortages.

Serious allegations of negligence have emerged after expired and substandard medicines worth lakhs of rupees were discovered at the government drug warehouse in Bagalkote district. The incident has raised concerns over medicine storage and supply management, particularly when government hospitals are already facing shortages of essential medicines.

A total of 48 types of expired medicines, including tablets, syrups and saline solutions, were identified during an inspection of the warehouse located behind the district hospital. The discovery has triggered questions about how medicines supplied for the treatment of poor and needy patients were allowed to expire without being distributed or properly monitored. The lack of adequate refrigeration facilities for storing certain medicines is reportedly one of the reasons behind the problem. Several stocks of expired drugs were found accumulated inside the warehouse, raising concerns about the maintenance of proper storage conditions and regular monitoring of medical supplies.

Disposal sought

Following information about the incident, District Health Officer (DHO) Suvarna Kulkarni visited the warehouse and conducted an inspection. During the review, officials found stocks belonging to 206 different categories of medicines. Of these, 25 categories were reportedly kept under quarantine.

The DHO stated that the department had written to the state-level Karnataka State Medical Supplies Corporation Limited (KSMSCL), seeking approval for the scientific disposal of the 48 expired and substandard medicine items.

Questions over supply

The discovery has raised questions about the functioning of the district's medicine procurement, storage and distribution system. At a time when patients visiting government hospitals depend heavily on free medicines, the wastage of large quantities of medical supplies has caused considerable concern.

Chikkodi district formation is my top priority: MP

CH NEWS, CHIKKODI

The formation of a separate Chikkodi district is her foremost priority, and she will personally appeal to the Chief Minister during the upcoming legislative session to take necessary steps in this regard, said Chikkodi MP Priyanka Jarkiholi.

Speaking to reporters at her office in Chikkodi, the MP discussed various development requirements and pending demands of the constituency. She said the creation of a separate district would be given special attention and that she would submit a formal request to the Chief Minister during the session.

Military canteen and doctors

She also assured that efforts would be made to establish a military canteen in Chikkodi for the benefit of retired defence personnel and their families. The facility would help ex-servicemen living in Chikkodi and neighboring areas access essential goods and services conveniently.

Addressing healthcare concerns, Priyanka Jarkiholi acknowledged the shortage of doctors at the Chikkodi Mother and Child Hospital. She said steps would soon be initiated to recruit additional medical professionals to strengthen the hospital's functioning and ensure better healthcare services for patients.

On the drinking water shortage reported in several parts of the constituency, she said resolving the problem had been accorded priority. Immediate measures were being taken to arrange water supplies through borewells in areas facing shortages. She added that efforts would continue to address public grievances and improve basic facilities.

Whip for Parliament

Meanwhile, referring to the upcoming parliamentary proceedings, the MP said the Central Government was preparing to introduce several important bills. Her party had issued a whip directing its members to attend the Parliament session scheduled for the following day.

She also criticised the ruling party at the Centre, alleging that it was adopting strategies to divide and intimidate opposition parties. Describing such actions as undemocratic, she said the opposition's role and its right to raise public issues should be respected.

Chikkodi in Belagavi district, which the MP wants made a district

The MP reiterated her commitment to pursuing the constituency's development demands, with separate district status remaining her primary objective.

BEDTHI-VARADA FACES PROTESTS

Opposition grows to Bedthi-Varada river linking project

CH NEWS, UTTARA KANNADA

Residents of Uttara Kannada district and the Akka Foundation Trust have strongly opposed the proposed Bedthi-Varada river-linking project, estimated to cost ₹9,652.7 crore, citing potential damage to forest resources, biodiversity and the livelihoods of local communities.

The link would divert 18.5 TMC of water into the Varada and Tungabhadra basins (representative picture)

They have urged the state government to withdraw the ongoing Detailed Project Report (DPR) process and abandon the project.

In a memorandum submitted to the state government, the residents and the foundation demanded the withdrawal of directions to expedite the DPR preparation, surveys and land acquisition procedures. They expressed concern that the project could cause irreversible environmental damage in the ecologically sensitive Western Ghats region.

The foundation had earlier written to Prime Minister Narendra Modi and the National Water Development Agency (NWDA), requesting a halt to the river-diversion project. In its response to communications dated November 12 and 17, the NWDA reportedly clarified that the state government has the authority to stop the DPR preparation process.

However, during a meeting chaired by Water Resources Minister N. Chaluvarayaswamy on November 17, officials were reportedly instructed to speed up the DPR preparation, surveys and land acquisition process.

According to the foundation and local residents, the project could destroy between 500 and 600 acres of forest land. They also warned that around 17,421 plant species and more than 420 animal and bird species could face threats. The diversion may also increase the risk of landslides in sensitive areas of the Western Ghats.

The project proposes to divert 18.5 TMC of water into the Varada and Tungabhadra river basins to provide irrigation to approximately 70,053 hectares of agricultural land.

However, residents argue that the Bedthi River carries substantial surplus water only between July and September. During the remaining nine months, its flow remains low. They fear the diversion could reduce water availability for villages along the riverbanks.

Private electric bus crashes into city divider

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

Early morning commuters faced unexpected delays near the Corporation office after a private electric bus slammed into a road divider on Rajaram Mohan Roy Road. The crash happened around 5:10 in the morning when the driver suddenly lost control of the heavy vehicle. Thankfully, a major tragedy was avoided, though both the driver and the bus conductor suffered minor injuries in the impact. As the stranded bus blocked vehicles heading toward the Corporation junction, traffic quickly backed up. Traffic police soon arrived at the spot and brought in a crane to clear the damaged bus.

Trapped black hawk rescued from live powerline

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

Rescuers saved a black hawk trapped for five days on a 400 kV high-tension wire near Bannerghatta without cutting electricity to the city. Stranded over 90 feet above farmland since Monday, the bird faced grave danger while turning off power would have blacked out ten neighborhoods. To avoid any delay, wildlife workers teamed up with BESCOM and KPTCL staff using a special Brazilian live-line vehicle. Crew members safely rode its insulated lift straight up to the energized cables and freed the exhausted hawk, proving modern grid tools can protect local wildlife alongside daily power supplies.

Talks succeed, ASHA workers end protest

Karnataka ASHA workers ended their 12-day Freedom Park protest after securing a Rs 2,000 monthly honorarium hike from the government.

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

Protesting Accredited Social Health Activist (ASHA) workers across Karnataka officially called off their 12-day round-the-clock agitation at Bengaluru's Freedom Park on Saturday evening following successful talks with Chief Minister D.K. Shivakumar and Health Minister U.T. Khader. The breakthrough came after the state government announced a monthly honorarium hike of Rs 2,000, scheduled to take effect from January 1, alongside assurances that their remaining demands will be addressed in the upcoming state Budget.

Thousands of frontline community health workers had staged a continuous sit-in protest, braving winter cold and rain while demanding a fixed monthly honorarium of Rs 15,000.

Following extensive discussions earlier in the day led by Minister Khader and finalized during a meeting with the Chief Minister, the administration acknowledged that ASHA workers had not received a pay revision over the past three years.

State steps forward

Addressing the gathering after the agreement, Chief Minister Shivakumar praised the sincerity of the workers and called them the state's greatest asset in public healthcare. While noting that the Central Government had not raised its Rs 2,000 contribution share, he affirmed that Karnataka was stepping forward to honor its commitment. Shivakumar also apologized if the workers endured any hardship during their prolonged protest, remarking that despite attempts by certain elements to politicize the agitation, the workers refused to fall prey to divisive tactics. He urged them to return to their duties and work alongside the government for the welfare of citizens.

Apology for hardship

Welcoming the decision, Karnataka State United ASHA Workers' Association Secretary D. Nagalakshmi thanked the Chief Minister for approving the Rs 2,000 monthly raise. She noted that while past experiences had prompted workers to sustain their protest for twelve days, Minister Khader's assurance to incorporate their pending welfare and incentive demands into the upcoming Budget gave them confidence to withdraw the strike.

With the standoff resolved, thousands of health workers began dispersing from Freedom Park on Saturday night, preparing to resume vital maternal, child, and community healthcare services across Karnataka.

Minister Khader leads fresh talks to end ASHA stir

Talks went on as the sit-in at Freedom Park entered its 12th day.

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

As the indefinite sit-in by Accredited Social Health Activist (ASHA) workers at Freedom Park entered its 12th consecutive day on Saturday, Health Minister U.T. Khader launched another round of talks to break the prolonged deadlock. Inviting union leaders to his residence for a crucial morning meeting, Khader met with ASHA Workers' Association President Somashekar, Secretary D. Nagalakshmi, and ten worker representatives in a renewed bid to bring the round-the-clock agitation to a peaceful close.

The fresh outreach followed days of rising tension after Chief Minister D.K. Shivakumar ruled out issuing a written order or signing a formal agreement, remarking that their engagement is not a contract and that financial commitments must pass through the state Budget. While urging protesters to trust the government's word and accusing opposition leaders of instigating the stir, Shivakumar asked Khader to explain the administration's position directly to the union delegation.

As ASHA workers' Freedom Park protest hits day 12 amid harsh weather, Health Minister U.T. Khader leads fresh talks proposing a Rs 2,000 raise.

Later in the day, talks showed signs of a potential breakthrough after Khader announced that the Chief Minister had agreed to raise the workers' monthly remuneration by Rs 2,000, a step accepted by the delegation while discussions continued over an additional Rs 1,000 incentive. Khader expressed optimism that a final evening decision from the Chief Minister would allow the workers to end their protest.

For nearly two weeks, thousands of women, many accompanied by their young children, have slept outdoors at Freedom Park, braving cold nights, rain, and scarce drinking water and toilet facilities. The harsh conditions have left dozens unwell, sharpening public sympathy for the frontline caregivers who anchor rural and urban healthcare.

A Rs 4.5 lakh crore Budget can afford fair honorariums

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

The indefinite day-and-night protest by Accredited Social Health Activist (ASHA) workers at Bengaluru's Freedom Park entered its 12th consecutive day on Saturday, gaining fresh momentum as prominent writers, artists, and journalists arrived to stand in solidarity with the agitators. Demanding a fixed monthly honorarium of Rs 15,000 alongside an official written government order, the community health workers received strong moral backing from writer Ashadevi, actor Chetan Ahimsa, and journalist Chandrakant Vaddu.

Addressing the gathering, feminist thinker Ashadevi urged the women not to abandon their fight midway, assuring them that organized perseverance brings justice. Questioning the state government's financial priorities, she pointed out that funds are readily found for influential circles while authorities claim empty coffers when working-class women ask for basic wages. She reminded protesters how garment workers successfully forced the reversal of a central Provident Fund policy within two days through unified action.

Actor Chetan Ahimsa sharply criticized officials who dismissed the peaceful demonstration as political blackmail. Calling the state administration stubborn, he stated that labeling hardworking frontline health workers as blackmailers is itself an act of intimidation. Instead of shifting blame toward the Central Government, he urged state leaders to fulfill their own responsibilities toward women whose selfless healthcare service is routinely undervalued. Highlighting severe national wealth inequality, he also called for higher taxes on the ultra-rich to fund essential support for working families.

Journalist Chandrakant Vaddu echoed these concerns, expressing disappointment over recent remarks by former Chief Minister Siddaramaiah distancing himself from earlier wage promises. Vaddu argued that an administration presenting a Rs 4.5 lakh crore state budget can easily afford fair honorariums for ASHA workers simply by trimming wasteful spending. Having faced broken verbal assurances in the past, the protesters remain fully justified in refusing to vacate Freedom Park until the government issues a formal written order guaranteeing their rights.

NCB destroys ₹117-crore heroin

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

Seized heroin goes into the incinerator at Dabaspet.

In a decisive strike against illegal narcotics trafficking, the Bengaluru Zonal Unit of the Narcotics Control Bureau scientifically destroyed 58.8365 kilograms of seized heroin valued at roughly Rs 117 crore on the illicit market. The contraband, recovered across three separate trafficking cases whose court trials had formally concluded, was incinerated at the Karnataka Waste Management facility in Dabaspet, Nelamangala taluk, strictly following Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act rules and Supreme Court disposal guidelines.

Supervised by NCB South-Western Zone Deputy Director General Vishal M., the destruction took place before a high-level Drug Disposal Committee chaired by IRS officer Sanap. Bengaluru Zonal Director Sachin Ghorpade and Bengaluru City Crime Branch-2 Deputy Commissioner of Police Raja Imam Kasim also attended to ensure complete transparency and safe environmental incineration.

2,086 kg this year

The Bengaluru Zonal Unit has wiped out a cumulative 2,086 kilograms of dangerous narcotics worth Rs 300 crore so far in 2026, following earlier disposal drives in February and April. Preventing seized drugs from ever leaking back onto city streets remains a top priority for enforcement teams protecting young people and families. Officials also urged citizens to report suspicious drug activity through the national helpline 1933, guaranteeing full confidentiality and suitable rewards for credible tips.

Expired beer destroyed

Meanwhile, in a separate enforcement drive in Haveri district last week, Excise Department officials destroyed expired liquor worth Rs 59,84,305 that had turned unfit for human consumption. Carried out at the Karnataka State Beverages Corporation Limited godown near Yattinahalli under the watch of Taluk Magistrate K. Sharanamma and Deputy Superintendent of Excise Honnappa Olekar, the operation disposed of 19,747 liters of unsold beer packed inside 2,092 boxes and 60 bottles.

LJP & Dalit Sena mark Foundation Day

At the Foundation Day of the LJP (Ram Vilas) and Dalit Sena (Ram Vilas) in Bengaluru.

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

Messages of social dignity, unity, and equal opportunity filled Sir M.V. Auditorium at the KEB Engineers Association on Saturday as the Karnataka units of the Lok Janshakti Party (Ram Vilas) and Dalit Sena (Ram Vilas) celebrated their 26th Foundation Day. Led by Karnataka State President M.S. Jagannath, the event gathered party members, elders, and residents to support Dalit communities and low-income families.

Former MLA and former NAR Association President K.N. Subbareddy inaugurated the programme, with key planning support from Media Advisor R. Shiva Kumar and Senior Advisor R. Nagaraj. Throughout the gathering, speakers honored Dr. B.R. Ambedkar's legacy, reminding everyone that real social growth needs mutual respect and fair chances for all citizens.

During his main speech, Subbareddy shared an inspiring story from Swami Vivekananda's journey in Rajasthan to show how kindness breaks caste walls. He told how Dalit villagers first asked Vivekananda to go away, yet he came back later to sit with them and share food. Connecting this memory to Dr. Ambedkar's vision, Subbareddy insisted that Dalit people are an essential part of society and must never feel left behind.

Subbareddy also applauded Jagannath for turning words into action by handing out schoolbooks to children and sarees to needy women. By mixing celebration with real help, the event offered struggling families meaningful support for education and everyday dignity.

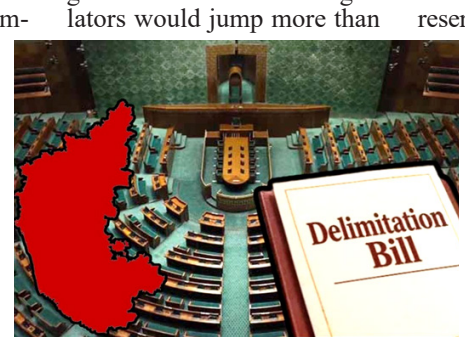
REDRAWING POWER LINES

Delimitation bill set to reshape Karnataka politics

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

The Union Cabinet's approval of the Women's Reservation and Delimitation Bill, slated for introduction during the special session of Parliament, has placed a politically sensitive debate squarely back in focus across Karnataka. The proposed legislation is set to reshape constituency boundaries, regional power balances, and candidate strategies across the state's major political parties — the Congress, the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP), and the Janata Dal (Secular).

Under the bill's framework proposing a 50 percent increase in parliamentary and state legislative seats, Karnataka's Legislative Assembly strength is projected to expand from 224 to 336 members, while its Lok Sabha representation rises from 28 to 42 seats. Implementing the 33 percent women's reservation quota within this expanded structure would reserve approximately 112 Assembly constituencies and 14 parliamentary seats exclusively for female candidates.



Such an expansion marks a dramatic turning point for women's political participation in Karnataka. During the 2023 State Assembly elections, only ten women were elected to the lower house. Under the proposed quota, the number of seats guaranteed for women legislators would jump more than elevenfold, creating unprecedented opportunities for female leaders at both grassroots and state levels.

At the same time, political observers note that the rotational system used to designate reserved constituencies will significantly disrupt long-held electoral strongholds. Incumbent male legislators across party lines face uncertainty over whether their traditional constituencies will be reserved in upcoming election cycles, forcing parties to rethink ticket distribution and succession plans.

The legislation has already sparked sharp political reactions within the state. While Union Minister H.D. Kumaraswamy and the JD(S) have welcomed the expansion as a boost to Karnataka's national voice, Congress leaders have questioned the timing and boundary-redrawing rules ahead of the 2027 Census. As Parliament prepares to debate the bill this week, Karnataka's political landscape stands on the verge of its biggest structural transformation in decades.

Kolar CMC faces allegations over fake death certificates

Kolar MLA Kothur Manjunath questioned CMC officials before the Municipal Administration Minister, slamming investigative delays and ongoing irregularities despite earlier warnings.

CH NEWS, KOLAR

Serious allegations of irregularities in the issuance of birth and death certificates have surfaced at the Kolar City Municipal Council (CMC), with claims that death certificates were issued to people who are still alive.

According to complaints, officials in the CMC's Birth and Death Registration Section allegedly issued certificates between 2004 and 2026 without proper documents or mandatory verification. It is also alleged that records were manipulated and official documentation was not properly maintained.

Kolar MLA Kothur Manjunath reportedly questioned CMC officials in the presence of the Municipal Administration Minister, expressing displeasure over the delay in investigating the complaints. He said that despite earlier instructions, the alleged irregularities continued.

Health Inspector Mohammed Nawaz, who handles the Birth and Death Certificate Section, has been named in the allegations. Social activist Suresh has reportedly submitted several complaints seeking action against those responsible.

One alleged case involves two individuals named Narayanaswamy. When M. Narayanaswamy of Srinivaspura taluk died, his records were allegedly used to issue a death certificate for another Narayanaswamy from Bhatrahalli village in Kolar taluk.

As a result of such alleged errors, affected individuals reportedly lost access to pension benefits and ration supplies. Complaints supported by documents have been submitted, but social activists claim that no effective action has followed.

Social activists have demanded a comprehensive investigation into the alleged misuse of official records, identification of everyone involved and strict action against those found responsible.

Allegations & impact

- → Identity Mix-Up: Death records of M. Narayanaswamy (Srinivaspura) were allegedly misused to declare a living namesake from Bhatrahalli village dead.
- → Welfare Deprivation: Erroneous death declarations stripped living beneficiaries of essential social security pensions and public ration supplies.

Malagi Dam pipeline work halted amid fears of water diversion

CH NEWS, HANGAL

Residents of Hangal taluk in Haveri district have raised concerns over the possibility of water from the Yamagolli (Malagi) Dam being diverted to another taluk or district. Opposing the ongoing pipeline work, locals temporarily stopped construction on the main road in Hangal town.

The pipeline work is being carried out under the AMRUT 2.0 project along State Highway 1 (Shivamogga–Hubballi road). According to information provided by the contractors, two major pipelines are being installed. One is intended to supply drinking water to Hangal, while the other is reportedly connected to the Singatalur project in Gadag district.

The proposed pipeline work has raised concerns among residents, who consider Malagi Dam an important source of drinking water for Hangal taluk.

Prakash Sindhur, a member of the Sindhur family, recalled the contribution of former MLA Sindhoor Siddappa, who played an important role in the construction of Malagi Dam in 1952. Former MLAs C.M. Udasi and Manohar Tahsildar also contributed to the development of drinking water facilities in the region.

JDS Taluk President Ramanagouda Patil and other residents demanded that the district administration and Irrigation Department clarify the purpose of the pipeline project.

They sought answers on where the pipelines would connect, whether water would be supplied to the Singatalur project, which departments had granted permission and how much water would remain available for Hangal.

Residents urged the Deputy Commissioner, Tahsildar and Irrigation Department officials to visit the site and address their concerns before the work proceeds.

PDO suspended over sites on land reserved for a park

CH NEWS, CHIKKABALLAPURA

A Panchayat Development Officer (PDO) has been suspended following allegations of creating private sites on land reserved for a park and civic amenities and issuing property registration documents to private individuals.

The suspended officer, A. Bhagyalakshmi, was serving at Ghantamvaripalli Gram Panchayat. The action followed an investigation by the Zilla Panchayat based on a complaint filed by Bagepalli advocate N. Nagabhushan.

Six extra sites on park land

According to the investigation, the approved layout plan permitted 17 sites. However, six additional sites were allegedly created on land reserved for a park, and e-Swathu documents were issued for them.

The authorities had issued a notice seeking an explanation from Bhagyalakshmi. However, her reply was reportedly found unsatisfactory.

Following the findings, Chikkaballapura Zilla Panchayat Chief Executive Officer Dr. Y. Naveen Bhat ordered her suspension pending a departmental inquiry.

During the suspension period, her lien has been transferred to Billuru Gram Panchayat in Bagepalli taluk.

Farmers fear poachers as deer hunting continues in Gadag

MALINGARAYA PUJAR, LAKSHMESHWAR

Farmers in the rural areas of Lakshmeshwar taluk are living in fear as groups of suspected poachers are allegedly hunting deer in agricultural fields during late-night hours. The illegal activity, reportedly continuing for the past month, has raised concerns among villagers and farmers.

The incidents have been reported in agricultural fields around Ramgeri, Basapura and Dharmapura villages. According to residents, groups of around 15 to 20 people arrive on motorcycles after midnight and hunt deer using weapons and powerful torches.

Bloodstains in the fields

Farmers visiting their fields in the morning have reportedly found bloodstains and remains of hunted animals. The incidents have also created fear among those who stay overnight to protect their crops.

Somanna Betageri, a farmer from Ramgeri, said the sound of several motorcycles could be heard in the fields at night. He said farmers were afraid to confront the suspected hunters as they carried weapons. He added that the groups used bright lights to prevent farmers from identifying or approaching them before leaving the area.

Suspected organised network behind hunting

Villagers suspect that an organised network may be involved, as several people reportedly arrive together on motorcycles. They fear that the hunted animals are being killed for their meat and skin, allegedly to meet illegal market demand. However, these suspicions are yet to be established through an investigation.

Farmers have urged the Forest Department and police to increase night patrols and take action against those involved. They have also demanded protection for both wildlife and farmers working in isolated agricultural fields.

Responding to the allegations, Range Forest Officer (RFO) Renukamma A. said the department had not received information about deer hunting in these villages. She assured that officials would inspect the areas and take legal action if illegal hunting was confirmed.

Under Section 9 of the Wildlife (Protection) Act, 1972, hunting protected wild animals is prohibited, subject to specified legal exceptions.

Farmers Somanna Betageri, Sahadevappa Hunasimarada and Buddesaba Thegginamani have demanded immediate intervention to stop the alleged hunting activities and ensure safety in the villages.

WHAT FARMERS WANT

- More night patrols by the Forest Department and police
- Action against those involved
- Protection for wildlife and for farmers in isolated fields

Karnataka pays ₹4.75 lakh crore in taxes but gets little help in hard times, says the minister

MLA C.N. Balakrishna, Deputy Commissioner Lata Kumari, Superintendent of Police Shubhanvitha and other officials attended the programme. The minister listened to public grievances and interacted with concerned officials to ensure that issues were addressed.

Speaking to the media, Shivalinge Gowda expressed dissatisfaction over the Centre's response to Karnataka's demand for drought relief. He said Karnataka contributes approximately Rs. 4.75 lakh crore in taxes to the Centre and questioned why the state was not receiving adequate assistance during difficult times.

He said the Centre should provide immediate financial support to drought-hit farmers instead of merely sending assessment teams. Recalling the previous drought, he said Karnataka had to approach the Supreme Court before receiving Rs. 3,500 crore in assistance.

The minister said the state government was providing Rs. 5,000 in assistance to farmers and urged the Centre to release additional funds. He also called upon political leaders to rise above party differences and fight collectively for the state's interests.

Meeting on human-elephant conflict on November 30

Addressing the growing human-elephant conflict, Shivalinge Gowda announced that a meeting of public representatives would be held on November 30 under the leadership of Forest Minister Ramalinga Reddy to find a permanent solution.

He said the issue would be discussed in detail and that he would present suggestions at the meeting. Responding to objections raised by local representatives over the relocation of elephants, he said their concerns reflected the sentiments of residents.

He also pointed out that a wildlife sanctuary was available in the region and stressed the need to find a solution that addressed both public safety and wildlife protection.

Admitting that he lacked direct experience in elephant management, he said the government would study elephant management practices in sanctuaries in Kerala and other places before taking a decision.

Jyothi Gondabala questions delimitation move

CH NEWS, KOPPAL

Koppal District Women's Congress President Jyothi M. Gondabala has alleged that the BJP-led Central Government's proposed delimitation exercise could affect the political interests of South Indian states. In a press statement, she said the Women's Reservation Act was passed in 2023, providing for 33 per cent reservation for women in the Lok Sabha and State Legislative Assemblies. She alleged that the BJP was using women's reservation as a reason to push forward changes in constituency boundaries that could benefit the party politically.

Jyothi expressed concern over the possible impact of delimitation on the political representation of southern states. She claimed that changes in the number and distribution of constituencies could affect the relative political strength of South India in Parliament.

She also raised concerns over the distribution of financial resources, alleging that non-Hindi-speaking states could face injustice. She said the people of South India were aware of their rights and would not accept any move that affected their interests.

She further stated that regional and language-based political parties played an important role in representing the interests and concerns of people in southern states. She urged people to remain alert and raise their voices against any decision that could affect their state's representation.

Key provisions

- Seats: a 50 per cent rise in Lok Sabha seats
- Delimitation: the freeze extended until 2051
- Women's quota: implementation in Parliament
- April bill: left seat expansion and the freeze open

NEW DELHI

The Constitution Bill, 2026, which is expected to be introduced in Parliament next week, proposes a 50 per cent increase in the number of Lok Sabha seats and a freeze on delimitation until 2051. The proposed changes aim to make the implementation of women's reservation possible.

The new legislation marks a major change from the Constitution Bill introduced in April this year. The earlier bill had also aimed to facilitate women's reservation in Parliament but did not include any proposal to increase the number of Lok Sabha seats.

It also did not provide for extending the freeze on delimitation. The latest proposal introduces both measures, bringing changes to the framework planned for implementing the women's quota.

Under the new proposal, the strength of the Lok Sabha would increase by 50 per cent, allowing additional seats to be created. The delimitation process, which involves redrawing constituency boundaries and determining the distribution of seats, would remain frozen until 2051.

The proposed changes are expected to influence the future structure of parliamentary representation and the implementation of women's reservation.

Stalin says DMK support protects TN's representation

CHENNAI

The DMK has decided to support the revised proposal on Lok Sabha seats. The decision followed a meeting of DMK MPs chaired by Stalin in Chennai on Saturday. The DMK said the revised draft addressed concerns over Tamil Nadu's share of Lok Sabha seats and representation among states.

The party had demanded that Tamil Nadu's existing 7.18 per cent share of Lok Sabha seats should not decrease, even if the total number increased. It also sought to retain the proportion of representation among states, based on the 1971 Census, for another 25 years.

For the next 25 years

Stalin said the party had protected Tamil Nadu's parliamentary representation for the next 25 years. He called the inclusion of its demands a result of sustained efforts.

The revised proposal reportedly provides for a uniform 50 per cent increase in seats in the Lok Sabha and State Legislative Assemblies, while maintaining states' existing share of representation. The changes are linked to the proposed 33 per cent reservation for women.

DMK chief MK Stalin

Concerns remain

DMK MP A Raja said the party supported the proposal because its main demands had been accepted. However, he said concerns remained over how the delimitation commission might redraw constituencies.

Kharge flags census, SC-ST concerns in delimitation

Congress president Mallikarjun Kharge questioned the Centre's proposed delimitation exercise, citing concerns over census data and reserved representation.

NEW DELHI

Congress president Mallikarjun Kharge questioned the Delimitation Bill, alleging that it could affect democratic representation and SC/ST interests.

Speaking after an INDIA bloc floor leaders' meeting, Kharge asked why the government had not clarified how census figures would guide delimitation. He said the ongoing census was expected to provide population data.

Referring to Article 330 of the Constitution, which provides for SC and ST reservation in the Lok Sabha, Kharge argued that reserved seats should increase in proportion to these communities' population. He alleged that the bill lacked a provision to ensure this.

The INDIA bloc met ahead of Parliament's special session beginning November 30.

Kharge also questioned the Election Commission of India's role, raising concerns about its handling of electoral rolls.

The INDIA bloc discussed its response ahead of Parliament's special session, beginning November 30. It demanded that the Lok Sabha's strength be retained, women's reservation be implemented within the existing strength, and each state's seat share be protected for 25 years.

The INDIA bloc's three demands

1. Retain the Lok Sabha's present strength
2. Implement women's reservation within the existing number of seats
3. Protect each state's current share of seats for 25 years

The government's package proposes a 50 per cent increase in seats and aims to facilitate 33 per cent reservation for women. It proposes using the 2011 Census for delimitation while retaining the 1971 basis for state-wise seat allocation until 2051.

NIA opens fresh probe into Myanmar-based terror networks

NEW DELHI

The National Investigation Agency (NIA) has registered a new case under the Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act to investigate alleged links between ethnic armed organisations based in Myanmar and insurgent groups operating in India.

Officials said the investigation would examine whether these organisations supplied weapons, ammunition, explosives and funds to banned outfits and other insurgent groups in the country. The alleged support is suspected of contributing to terrorist activities in Manipur.

The case was registered following directions from the Union Ministry of Home Affairs, which cited information about prohibited organisations allegedly operating from Myanmar. These include the People's Liberation Army, the People's Revolutionary Party of Kangleipak and its progressive faction.

According to the agency, the groups are suspected of arranging financial support through illegal channels and supplying materials intended for terrorist attacks. The alleged conspiracy also involves targeted killings of civilians, attacks on security personnel and attempts to increase tensions between communities in the region.

Under investigation

- Outfits: People's Liberation Army, People's Revolutionary Party of Kangleipak and PREPAK (Progressive)
- Suspected: arms, explosives and funds from Myanmar
- Laws: UAPA, Arms Act, Explosive Substances Act

The NIA has registered the case against unidentified persons under provisions of the Arms Act, the Explosive Substances Act and the UAPA.

The fresh investigation comes days after the agency filed a chargesheet against seven foreign nationals, including a United States citizen and six Ukrainians, in a separate case involving alleged training of Myanmar-based ethnic armed groups.

SC ruling puts Bilkis Bano convicts' remission in focus

NEW DELHI

The Supreme Court has recognised crime victims' right to be heard before remission, raising questions over the release of Bilkis Bano convicts.

The Supreme Court has ruled that crime victims or their legal representatives must receive a reasonable opportunity to present their views before the government decides whether to grant remission or premature release to a convicted person.

The November 26 ruling came in the case involving former Bihar politician Anand Mohan and has highlighted the importance of victims' participation in decisions concerning the early release of convicts.

The court observed that a victim's right to participate in the criminal justice process does not end with the conclusion of a trial or the announcement of a sentence. It said victims must also be heard when authorities consider reducing a convict's sentence through remission.

The Bilkis Bano case

The ruling has drawn attention to the release of 11 convicts in the 2002 Bilkis Bano gang rape and murder case. The Gujarat government had granted them remission in August 2022, allowing their release after serving more than 14 years in prison.

However, in January 2024, the Supreme Court quashed the remission orders, holding that the Gujarat government was not the appropriate authority to grant relief. The convicts were directed to return to prison.

Safeguards

The latest ruling has raised questions about the legal safeguards and procedures followed when remission decisions are taken.

VAIKO ACCUSES CENTRE OF BACKING KARNATAKA'S MEKEDATU DAM PROJECT

TIRUCHIRAPPALLI

MDMK General Secretary Vaiko on Saturday accused the BJP-led Central government of indirectly encouraging Karnataka's proposed Mekedatu dam project and alleged that the move could threaten Tamil Nadu's share of Cauvery water. He urged people across Tamil Nadu to unite and protest against the project.

Speaking to reporters at Tiruchirappalli Airport, Vaiko said no state had the legal authority to obstruct the flow of water to downstream states. He referred to the final verdict of the Cauvery Water Disputes Tribunal, which he said had also been endorsed by the Supreme Court.

Mekedatu: the proposed dam site on the Cauvery in Karnataka

Allegations against the Centre

Vaiko alleged that Karnataka Chief Minister D.K. Shivakumar's remarks opposing Tamil Nadu's intervention in the Mekedatu issue were influenced by the BJP-led government's support for the project.

He further claimed that a meeting was held in 2014 at the residence of former BJP minister Ananth Kumar, attended by several political leaders and then Union Environment Minister Prakash Javadekar. According to Vaiko, discussions reportedly involved preparations for the dam project despite the possibility of protests from Tamil Nadu.

Questions over project expenditure

Vaiko claimed that iron materials and equipment were imported following the discussions. He alleged that an initial amount of Rs 5,900 crore was spent on the project, while the allocation had subsequently increased to Rs 9,000 crore.

Call for statewide protests

Warning of serious consequences for Tamil Nadu's agricultural sector, Vaiko said the state's rice-producing regions could face severe water shortages if the project proceeded.

BISLERI FSSAI REVIEW

Bisleri seeks FSSAI review over West Bengal water test

NEW DELHI

Packaged drinking water company Bisleri International on Saturday sought a review by the Food Safety and Standards Authority of India (FSSAI) over differences in laboratory findings concerning a water sample collected in West Bengal.

The company said independent tests conducted by two accredited laboratories found the sample compliant with prescribed quality standards. It requested the food safety regulator to examine the reasons behind the difference between the test results.

Bisleri said the findings from the two laboratories supported its position that the sample met the required standards. The company also stressed the importance of following consistent testing procedures while assessing the quality of packaged drinking water.

The company urged FSSAI to ensure that the matter was examined fairly and transparently.

It said it expected the issue to be assessed using the same standards applied across the packaged drinking water industry.

The development comes amid increasing attention to food safety and quality standards in India's packaged drinking water sector. Laboratory testing plays an important role in checking whether products meet prescribed safety requirements before reaching consumers.

Bisleri's request places the focus on the need for clarity in testing procedures and the evaluation of conflicting laboratory reports. The regulator's examination is expected to help establish the reasons behind the differing findings.

The company maintained that the independent reports supported its compliance with quality standards and sought a proper assessment of the matter.

NEW DELHI

Indian mutual funds have sold equities worth Rs 32,740 crore so far in November, putting the industry on course for its first month of net equity selling in nearly three and a half years, a report said on Saturday. The report cited data from SEBI, saying that the last month in which mutual funds were net sellers was April 2023. Since May 2023, they have consistently remained net buyers in the secondary market, even purchasing over Rs 50,000 crore in certain months this year. November marked a sharp reversal of that trend. The final figure may still change, but current selling has already exceeded the scale of many recent monthly buying periods.

AI best suited for routine court work, not deciding cases

NEW DELHI

Former Chief Justice of India D.Y. Chandrachud on Saturday backed the use of artificial intelligence (AI) in the judiciary for administrative and routine functions, but cautioned that judicial decision-making must remain firmly in human hands. Speaking at an event on "AI for All: AI Governance and Trust, the Case for Judicial Access and an Empowered India", he said technology could significantly improve court efficiency by handling time-consuming tasks such as transcription, translation, case listing and scrutiny of procedural defects. "The tragedy of the Indian judicial system is that judges spend their time doing work which should least occupy their time. Their focus should be on real-time decision-making," he said.

India and Denmark have discussed expanding bilateral trade, business engagement and green technology cooperation, reaffirming their commitment to strengthening economic ties and exploring new investment opportunities across sectors.

NEW DELHI

India and Denmark have reaffirmed their commitment to strengthening bilateral trade and economic cooperation, with both countries exploring new opportunities to expand business engagement and deepen their economic partnership.

Union Commerce and Industry Minister Piyush Goyal on Saturday said he held discussions with Danish Foreign Minister Lars Løkke Rasmussen on enhancing economic ties, strengthening business relations and identifying new areas of mutual cooperation.

Sharing details of the meeting on social media platform X, Goyal said the discussions focused on taking the India-Denmark partnership to the next level through greater commercial engagement and collaboration.

"Delighted to meet Lars Løkke Rasmussen, Minister for Foreign Affairs of Denmark. We discussed strengthening bilateral trade and economic cooperation, enhancing business ties and exploring new avenues of collaboration in areas of mutual interest," Goyal wrote.

The latest engagement comes amid increasing cooperation between the two countries in renewable energy, green technologies, maritime services and infrastructure investments.

Earlier this month, Union Minister Pralhad Joshi held discussions with Denmark's Minister for Business and Competitiveness Martin Lidegaard on the sidelines of the Bharat Renewable Energy Summit 2026.

The meeting focused on expanding cooperation in offshore wind energy, green hydrogen, battery storage and renewable energy integration. Both sides also reiterated their commitment to the India-Denmark Green Strategic Partnership.

During his India visit, Lidegaard highlighted the complementary strengths of the two economies and said commercial opportunities could expand further with the proposed India-European Union Free Trade Agreement.

Denmark remains an important investment partner, with more than 60 Danish companies operating in Maharashtra alone. Shipping and logistics major Maersk is also expanding its presence in India's maritime sector.

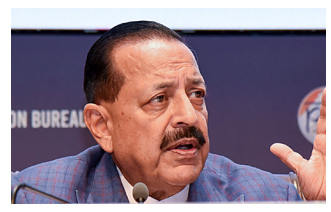
India emerging as global healthcare powerhouse



NEW DELHI

India is witnessing a major transformation in healthcare, driven by indigenous research, medical innovation and the development of affordable advanced treatments, Union Minister of State (Independent Charge) Dr Jitendra Singh said on Saturday.

Addressing the Global Healthcare Conclave 2026, organised by the Global Association of Indian Medical Students (GAIMS), Singh highlighted India's growing capabilities in medical science and its potential to emerge as a global healthcare powerhouse.

He said India, which earlier depended considerably on foreign medical technologies and advanced treatment facilities, was increasingly developing indigenous solutions in vaccines, antibiotics, gene therapy and cancer treatment.

Discussing the role of technology in modern medicine, Singh said artificial intelligence, quantum technologies and advanced diagnostic tools were transforming healthcare delivery. However, he cautioned that technological advancements could not replace the fundamental clinical understanding required of medical professionals.

He stressed that medical education must continue to prioritise bedside learning, direct patient interaction, clinical examination and practical experience.

Singh said India's unique genomic diversity and progress in precision medicine offered significant opportunities to contribute to global healthcare. He added that future doctors must develop a combination of technological knowledge and strong clinical skills to address emerging medical challenges.

He also highlighted significant progress in therapeutics and disease management, reflecting the changing landscape of modern medicine.

Key areas of growth

- Indigenous vaccines and antibiotics
- Gene therapy and cancer treatment
- AI and quantum technologies

RBI likely to maintain tight liquidity conditions

NEW DELHI

The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) is likely to maintain relatively tight liquidity conditions in the banking system through the remainder of the year, with foreign exchange swaps emerging as a more probable instrument for liquidity management than open market bond purchases, according to a report released by Axis Bank Economic Research on Saturday.

The report said durable liquidity in the banking system, including government balances, had declined sharply from a peak of 5 per cent of net demand and time liabilities (NDTL) to 2.2 per cent. The decline was attributed to unusually high government balances maintained with the RBI, continued foreign exchange market intervention and festival-related currency leakages. Although Variable Rate Repo (VRR) operations have helped prevent sharp overnight interest rate increases, banking system liquidity is expected to remain slightly below neutral levels through the rest of the year.

Durable liquidity, % of NDTL

PEAK	NOW
5% including government balances	2.2% after a sharp decline

The report also highlighted a widening gap between bank credit and deposit growth. While non-food credit expansion remains strong, deposit mobilisation has slowed after previously receiving support from Foreign Currency Non-Resident (FCNR) inflows. As a result, banks have increased their reliance on Certificate of Deposit (CD) issuances to meet funding requirements. This has also contributed to widening spreads between CD rates and Overnight Index Swap rates.

Meanwhile, strong foreign portfolio investor inflows into India have created comfortable dollar liquidity alongside tighter rupee liquidity. This imbalance has pushed forward premiums and domestic interest rates higher. In a separate assessment earlier this week, Axis Bank Economic Research said India needed to rebuild its foreign exchange reserves to ease elevated rupee forward premiums and strengthen external sector resilience.

India emerges as SIAC's third-largest foreign user

NEW DELHI

India has emerged as the third-largest foreign user jurisdiction of the Singapore International Arbitration Centre (SIAC) with 178 Indian parties participating in arbitrations during the last year, Singapore's Minister for Law and Second Minister for Home Affairs Edwin Tong said, according to an announcement on Saturday.

He noted that India has consistently remained one of SIAC's most important foreign user jurisdictions, with Indian lawyers and arbitrators also playing a prominent role in proceedings that do not involve Indian parties.

Tong said the rapid expansion of international trade and investment has increased the importance of efficient and predictable dispute-resolution mechanisms.

"Investors need confidence that disputes arising from their investments will be resolved fairly, transparently and predictably," he said.

Highlighting challenges posed by increasingly complex cross-border transactions, Tong said arbitration institutions and legal professionals must innovate to deal with disputes involving multiple contracts and interconnected parties while preserving the core principle of party consent.

Meanwhile, Chief Justice of India Surya Kant called for deeper collaboration between the two countries in areas such as institutional design, professional standards, legal training, mediation and technology.

> "India and Singapore should aspire not merely to succeed in international arbitration, but to make international arbitration better."
>
> — Edwin Tong, Singapore's Minister for Law

He said predictability in dispute resolution is essential for economic growth and investor confidence.

The Chief Justice also highlighted the growing economic relationship between the two countries and noted that bilateral trade rose from about $6.7 billion in 2004-05 to $34.3 billion in 2024-25.

DGGI busts ₹88 cr cigarette GST refund fraud

NEW DELHI

The Directorate General of GST Intelligence (DGGI) has uncovered a major tax fraud linked to the tobacco sector, exposing a syndicate that allegedly claimed more than Rs 88 crore in fraudulent GST refunds, an official statement said on Saturday.

According to the Finance Ministry, the operation was unearthed by the Patna Zonal Unit of the DGGI as part of its continuing crackdown on tax evasion in the cigarette industry.

Investigators found that the syndicate was operating through a network of shell entities that allegedly obtained invoices from dealers of branded cigarettes without receiving the actual goods, the ministry added.

These invoices were then used to fraudulently avail input tax credit in violation of GST provisions.

The probe further revealed that the group sourced substandard cigarettes of unknown origin and supplied them to the Falta Special Economic Zone (SEZ) in West Bengal under the Letter of Undertaking (LUT) route.

Moreover, during searches and inspections, authorities identified around 8.76 crore sticks of suspected counterfeit and substandard cigarettes, packed under the names of well-known brands, at Falta SEZ.

The cigarettes — valued at more than Rs 150 crore on the basis of their aggregate maximum retail price (MRP) — have been placed under prohibition.

In September and October alone, DGGI busted two illegal cigarette manufacturing units and seized around 25 lakh cigarette sticks along with cigarette-making and packaging machinery.

How the refund racket worked

1. Invoices: shell entities got invoices from branded-cigarette dealers without the goods
2. Credit: the invoices were used to avail input tax credit
3. SEZ supply: substandard cigarettes went to the Falta SEZ under the LUT route
4. Refunds: over Rs 88 crore claimed in two years against the credit

India's data centre pipeline shifts towards larger facilities

NEW DELHI

India's data centre development pipeline is pivoting towards larger facilities in the nine months to Q3 2026, with projects above 50 MW accounting for 55 per cent of planned capacity across key markets, a report said on Saturday.

The report from Knight Frank India said the country's development pipeline currently comprises 80 data centre facilities across seven major markets as of the third quarter of 2026. Facilities above 50 MW accounted for a larger share of the pipeline in Q3 2026, up from 44.3 per cent in 2025.

The strongest growth was recorded in the above-100-MW category, where the number of planned facilities rose 80 per cent to 27 from 15 in 2025. Its share of the total pipeline consequently rose from 21.4 per cent in 2025 to 33.8 per cent in Q3 2026, making it the largest category within the development pipeline.

The 50-100 MW segment also expanded, with facilities increasing to 17 from 16, representing growth of 6.3 per cent.

"The growing representation of larger-format facilities in the development pipeline points towards a changing development landscape, with Mumbai continuing to anchor the market and Hyderabad strengthening its position in the large-facility segment," said Joseph Thilak, Executive Director, Occupier Strategy & Solutions, Head of Data Center Business (India), Knight Frank India.

OIL IMPORT VOLATILITY

Middle East conflict threatens India's oil bill

NEW DELHI

Continued conflict in the Middle East and potential risks to the Strait of Hormuz could keep India's oil import bills and maritime freight rates volatile, the Finance Ministry said on Saturday, warning that supply-side disruptions may increase inflationary pressures in the coming months.

According to the Ministry's Monthly Economic Review for November, geopolitical uncertainties pose risks to global energy supplies and shipping costs, potentially affecting India's wholesale and retail price indices.

However, the ministry noted that recent moderation in international crude oil prices and the strengthening of the rupee could offer some relief. Global crude benchmarks fell below $100 per barrel in early November, while robust capital inflows supported the domestic currency.

Despite external uncertainties, India's domestic economic activity is expected to maintain momentum during the third quarter of FY27. High-frequency indicators point to continued expansion in goods movement, tax collections, energy consumption and freight activity.

Business activity is also expected to remain firm, supported by improving new orders and easing input cost pressures.

The ministry said comfortable fertiliser availability was favourable for the ongoing rabi season, although sowing remained at an early stage and reservoir storage was below the level recorded last year.

Industrial activity continued to expand, despite moderation in industrial production growth in September and a slowdown in manufacturing PMI during October. The purchasing managers' index, however, remained in expansionary territory.

Sudeep And Prem Reveal DADA On Holiday

Abhinaya Chakravarthy Kichcha Sudeep and director Prem are coming together once again for an interesting action-comedy titled DADA On Holiday. The film marks the reunion of the actor-director duo and promises a combination of underworld action, humour, emotions and family entertainment. The makers recently officially announced the title and released a teaser, putting an end to speculation about their upcoming collaboration.

Jointly produced by Aarudra Cinemas and Prem Phoenix Studios, the film is being presented as a family entertainer. According to the production team, the story will move beyond conventional commercial cinema and explore family relationships, affection and domestic values while retaining elements of action and comedy.

The teaser opens inside a busy police station, where officers are investigating the disappearance of the city's entire stock of gangland weapons. As the police struggle to identify the person responsible, an unexpected explanation changes the mood of the investigation.

Director Prem appears and calmly tells the officers that he is taking the weapons to Kempambudhi Lake for disposal.

He further announces that rowdyism has officially gone on holiday. This dialogue provides the teaser's main comic highlight and hints at the film's unusual treatment of underworld activities.

The teaser suggests that the film will use humour to present familiar gangster-related themes in a different way. Rather than focusing entirely on violence and action, the makers appear to have chosen a lighter narrative with entertaining situations and emotional moments.

Producer Rakshitha Prem and music director Arjun Janya also make brief appearances in the teaser. Their presence offers a glimpse of the important members associated with the project.

The reunion of Sudeep and Prem has raised expectations among Kannada film audiences, as their earlier collaborations have attracted considerable attention. Their latest project is expected to bring together the strengths of both personalities in a different entertainment format.

Although the title and teaser have been officially unveiled, the makers are yet to announce the complete cast, technical details and theatrical release date. Further updates are expected in the coming days.

Sai Pallavi Rejects ₹2 Crore Fairness Cream Advertisement

Actress Sai Pallavi reportedly rejected a fairness cream endorsement contract worth Rs 2 crore because she did not support the idea behind the product. The actress believed that promoting fairness creams could make people feel less beautiful or confident about their natural skin colour. She chose not to associate herself with a product that went against her personal values.

During a conversation with journalist Barkha Dutt at the We The Women event, Sai Pallavi explained the reason behind her decision. She said that people should ensure their actions reflect their beliefs. According to her, refusing the advertisement was a small step towards standing up for something she strongly believed in.

The actress also spoke about her childhood insecurities, including concerns about her skin colour and pimples. She recalled feeling uncomfortable about her appearance when she was younger. However, with time, she realised that audiences could connect more easily with characters who looked natural and realistic.

Sai Pallavi said she prefers portraying ordinary women in relatable situations. She believes excessive makeup can sometimes make a character look artificial. However, she clarified that she does not expect everyone to avoid makeup, as personal comfort and individual choices matter. She also recalled being worried about body hair during childhood.

On the professional front, Sai Pallavi plays Maa Sita in Nitesh Tiwari's upcoming film Ramayana. She has also been associated with Dhanush's project O.M. Known for performances in Premam, Fidaa and Gargi, she continues to choose roles that focus on acting rather than glamour.

In a statement on X, the airline said selected services had been restored. Passengers have been advised to check flight schedules through its website or mobile application before travelling to airports. The airline said passenger and crew safety remained its top priority and thanked customers for their patience. Saudi authorities issued an emergency alert, prompting temporary suspension of operations at Madinah airport. Indian airlines also suspended services as a precaution.

Houthi attacks kill 3 civilians in Yemen

SANAA

At least three civilians, including a 10-year-old boy and his father, were killed and three others injured in attacks by Yemen's Houthi rebels in Taiz province. The attacks involved drones, rocket fire and sniper operations targeting residential areas. Among the injured was an 18-month-old girl who sustained wounds during shelling in the Sabir al-Mawadim district. A woman was also injured while fleeing sniper fire as she collected water from a well. The latest violence comes amid escalating clashes between Houthi rebels and Yemen's government forces. Around a month ago, five people were killed and 16 injured in an attack on the al-Maashiq Presidential Palace in Aden. Meanwhile, government forces claimed to have carried out 1,250 attacks against Houthi positions within 24 hours under their 'Dawn of Yemen' military campaign. The operations reportedly destroyed 150 Houthi vehicles. Separately, authorities in Marib reported that the Houthis fired nine ballistic missiles and seven other projectiles towards the city. The continuing violence has intensified concerns over civilian safety and Yemen's worsening humanitarian crisis. The conflict has continued since the Houthis seized the capital, Sanaa, in 2014, followed by a Saudi-led military intervention in 2015.

Vladimir Putin announced the new nuclear submarine Perm will soon join Russia's Pacific Fleet for combat duty, boosting regional power.

MOSCOW

Russian President Vladimir Putin has announced that the newly commissioned nuclear-powered submarine Perm will join Russia's Pacific Fleet and undertake combat duty in the near future, strengthening the country's naval capabilities and strategic presence in the Pacific region.

Putin made the announcement during a ceremony to raise the Russian naval flag aboard the submarine at the Sevmash shipyard in Severodvinsk, a major shipbuilding centre in northwestern Russia. The Kremlin confirmed the development in an official statement.

According to Putin, the Perm is the fifth Yasen-M-class nuclear-powered submarine delivered to the Russian Navy over the past six years. He described the submarine as an advanced weapons system of global strategic importance and said Russia was among the few countries capable of manufacturing such sophisticated nuclear-powered vessels.

The Kremlin stated that the Perm is a fourth-generation, multipurpose nuclear-powered submarine. It is also the first submarine in the Russian Navy to be equipped with Zircon hypersonic cruise missiles as standard armament, marking a significant advancement in Russia's naval weapons technology.

Yasen-M-class submarines are designed to operate across different parts of the world's oceans while maintaining a high level of stealth. Their advanced capabilities enable them to carry out various naval operations while remaining difficult to detect.

The Sevmash shipyard is currently building several types of nuclear-powered submarines. According to Putin, five missile-carrying submarines are scheduled for delivery to the Russian Navy by 2030, including three Yasen-M-class vessels.

He added that expanding serial ship production and modernizing weapons systems would support the shipbuilding and defence industries, encourage advanced technological development and strengthen Russia's defence capabilities and technological independence.

Netherlands Opposes US Semiconductor Export Controls

THE HAGUE

The Netherlands has strongly opposed a proposed United States semiconductor export control bill, warning that Washington's efforts to extend its restrictions to allied countries could threaten Dutch economic interests, national sovereignty and security.

The disagreement centres on the Multilateral Alignment of Technology Controls on Hardware Act, commonly known as the MATCH Act. The proposed legislation seeks to bring semiconductor export controls among the United States and its allies under a common framework. However, the Dutch government has raised concerns over Washington's attempt to influence the export policies of other countries.

Dutch Minister for Foreign Trade and Development Cooperation Sjoerd Sjoerdsma told parliament on Thursday that the Netherlands would not allow its policies to be dictated by another country. He described the government's opposition to the legislation as a matter of national interest.

Under the proposed bill, the US government would have 150 days to assess whether allied countries had introduced comparable restrictions on exports and servicing of semiconductor manufacturing equipment. If countries failed to meet the requirements, the US Department of Commerce could extend American export controls unilaterally to equipment supplied by those countries.

The legislation has raised particular concern in the Netherlands because of its potential impact on ASML, the Dutch company that dominates the global market for advanced lithography systems used in semiconductor manufacturing. The government opposes extraterritorial measures that could undermine national sovereignty, particularly on security-related matters.

The Netherlands has intensified diplomatic efforts to prevent the MATCH Act from being included in the US annual defence authorisation bill.

Seoul keeps watch on possible Kim Jong-un visit to China

SEOUL

South Korea's National Intelligence Service (NIS) is closely monitoring developments amid speculation that North Korean leader Kim Jong-un may visit China in the coming days, following increased diplomatic exchanges between the two neighbouring countries.

"We are monitoring various developments," the NIS said on Saturday in response to a Yonhap News Agency inquiry about media reports suggesting that Kim's visit to China could be imminent.

Speculation gained momentum after Chinese President Xi Jinping briefed South Korean President Lee Jae-myung on developments in North Korea-China relations during their meeting in Shenzhen last week, on the sidelines of the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC) summit. However, South Korea's presidential office, Cheong Wa Dae, said that Xi had not specifically mentioned a possible visit by Kim, contrary to media reports.

The presidential office said Seoul was closely monitoring relations between Pyongyang and Beijing and hoped their exchanges would contribute to peaceful coexistence on the Korean Peninsula. It also stressed the importance of maintaining communication with China.

Kim made a surprise one-day visit to the Chinese border city of Dandong last month, where he met China's top political adviser Wang Huning and discussed strengthening bilateral relations. Earlier this month, Kim Song-nam, a senior official of North Korea's ruling Workers' Party, also visited China and held meetings with senior Chinese leaders.

A diplomatic source said Kim could travel to China at any time, adding that such a visit would not be unexpected. Although reports indicated heightened security readiness in Dandong, sources said no unusual activity had been visibly detected.

Pakistan's water crisis rooted in poor infrastructure: report

BRUSSELS

Pakistan's worsening water crisis is largely the result of poor infrastructure, mismanagement and long-standing governance failures, despite the country having access to the extensive Indus River system, according to a report published by European Times.

The report highlighted Pakistan's inability to manage its water resources effectively, provide sufficient water to farmers, protect agricultural land from floods and salinity, and safeguard its long-term agricultural future. It argued that the country's water vulnerabilities existed long before the recent diplomatic tensions with India over the Indus Waters Treaty (IWT).

India placed the treaty in abeyance following the April 2025 Pahalgam terror attack, which was carried out by Pakistan-backed terrorists. Pakistan has repeatedly raised concerns over the issue internationally. However, the report said Islamabad should address its domestic shortcomings instead of blaming India for its growing water insecurity.

What the report says

30 days of water needs in storage	<1,000 cubic metres of fresh water a head, from 5,260 in 1951
47% have safe drinking water	53,000 children killed by waterborne disease a year

It pointed out that Pakistan has storage capacity equivalent to only around 30 days of water requirements, loses nearly a quarter of its canal water through leakage and extracts more groundwater than it can naturally replenish. These problems reflect decades of inadequate planning and investment in water management.

The report also criticised Pakistan's failure to strengthen its reservoirs, canal networks and water storage infrastructure. Instead, it alleged, the government has focused on internationalising the Indus Waters Treaty dispute to divert public attention from domestic challenges.

According to the report, India's position is that the treaty will remain in abeyance until Pakistan ends its support for cross-border terrorism. Pakistan raised the issue again at the United Nations in November. However, the report argued that the country's immediate water difficulties cannot be explained solely by the diplomatic dispute.

Highlighting the seriousness of the crisis, the report stated that per capita freshwater availability in Pakistan had declined from 5,260 cubic metres in 1951 to below 1,000 cubic metres today, placing it in the water-scarce category.

Iran warns US of more surprises if attacks resume

TEHRAN

Iran has warned the United States that it has "more surprises" in store if Washington resumes large-scale military attacks against the country. Iranian Ambassador to Pakistan Reza Amiri Moghadam issued the warning amid continuing tensions and a slowdown in indirect diplomatic discussions between the two nations.

Moghadam said exchanges of messages between Tehran and Washington through Pakistan and Qatar were continuing, although the pace had slowed compared with previous rounds. He said the United States had presented proposals that Iran was currently examining.

"We have not been idle over the past year," the ambassador said, warning that Iran was prepared for further escalation if large-scale military action resumed.

Meanwhile, the Iranian Army has claimed that its Navy maintains control over strategically important waters stretching from the eastern Strait of Hormuz to the northern Indian Ocean. Army spokesman Brigadier General Mohammad Akraminia said the Navy was conducting surveillance and protecting the maritime region.

THE BLOCKADE, PER CENTCOM

158	COMMERCIAL VESSELS REDIRECTED
6	OTHERS DISABLED

Iranian Navy Commander Admiral Shahram Irani also dismissed the US naval blockade, describing it as a sign of Washington's failure. He claimed that efforts to overcome the blockade were underway and that Iranian ports remained operational.

The maritime confrontation has intensified with competing claims from both countries. On Friday, US Central Command (CENTCOM) said its forces had disabled the Palau-flagged commercial vessel M/V Pacific Archer after its crew allegedly attempted to breach the blockade despite repeated warnings. Precision munitions struck the vessel's stern, disabling its propulsion system. The civilian crew was reported safe.

Two American Airlines Jets Clip Wings While Taxiing at Airport

WASHINGTON

Two American Airlines passenger aircraft clipped each other's wings while taxiing for departure at Ronald Reagan Washington National Airport.

No injuries were reported, but both aircraft were withdrawn from service for inspection following the incident.

According to the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA), American Airlines Flight 638 made contact with the wing of Flight 2152. Both aircraft were preparing for departure when the incident occurred.

Following the collision, the aircraft returned to their respective gates. American Airlines confirmed that its maintenance team would inspect both planes before they could resume operations. The airline also stated that no passengers or crew members were injured.

The Metropolitan Washington Airports Authority said its fire and rescue personnel responded to both aircraft following the incident. However, the airport confirmed that the incident did not disrupt other flight operations.

Flight 638 was scheduled to travel to Dallas, while Flight 2152 was bound for Chicago. American Airlines said passengers on both flights would be accommodated on replacement aircraft and would continue their journeys later that evening.

The FAA is expected to investigate the incident to determine the circumstances surrounding the wing contact.

The incident comes amid several aviation disruptions at major US airports during the busy Thanksgiving holiday travel period. On November 26, the FAA had issued a ground stop at Miami International Airport after a FedEx cargo aircraft overran the runway while landing.

The incident involved FedEx Flight 910, a McDonnell Douglas MD-11 cargo aircraft that had departed from Memphis. The aircraft overran Runway 26R, prompting authorities to close multiple runways and deploy Miami-Dade Fire Rescue personnel.

These incidents have renewed attention on aviation safety and airport operations in the United States.

MACHADO GATHERS IDEAS

Machado seeks public ideas for Venezuela reform

CARACAS

Cheers and emotional scenes marked a public meeting organised by Nobel Peace Prize-winning Venezuelan opposition leader Maria Corina Machado, who has begun gathering public suggestions on restoring democracy and rebuilding the country.

Residents of a large working-class neighbourhood near Caracas welcomed Machado during a town hall meeting. Supporters cheered and called for elections, repeatedly shouting "tomorrow, tomorrow" when asked when they wanted the country to hold its next vote.

Machado's initiative aims to collect proposals from people across Venezuela and members of the country's diaspora. The consultations are intended to develop ideas for democratic reform and address the challenges facing the nation.

The outreach comes 11 months after the United States ousted President Nicolas Maduro, according to the report.

Venezuela has experienced years of political uncertainty, economic difficulties and disputes over democratic institutions, prompting opposition groups to demand political change.

Machado has emerged as a prominent opposition figure and has continued to call for a democratic transition. Through the public meetings, she is seeking to involve ordinary citizens in discussions about the country's future rather than limiting the reform process to political leaders and organisations.

The consultations are expected to provide an opportunity for people from different regions and backgrounds to share their concerns and suggest changes in governance, public institutions and democratic processes.

Venezuelans living abroad are also being invited to contribute their views.

The strong response from residents at the Caracas meeting reflected the demand among sections of the public for an opportunity to choose their leaders through elections.

Their calls also highlighted expectations for political change after a prolonged period of instability.

KEY POINTS

- Machado's initiative collects national reform proposals
- Outreach follows Maduro's ouster by the US
- Consultations include ordinary citizens and the diaspora
- Strong turnout reflects demand for elections

Mohun Bagan's five-match winning streak meets defending champions

EAST BENGAL FC 14 goals, the league's most | MOHUN BAGAN SG five wins in a row, league leaders

KOLKATA

The Indian Super League (ISL 2026-27) gears up for one of Asian football's most iconic fixtures as East Bengal FC (EBFC) take on Mohun Bagan Super Giant (MBSG) in the first Kolkata Derby of the season on Sunday at the Vivekananda Yuba Bharati Krirangan (Salt Lake Stadium) in Kolkata.

Few rivalries in world football can match the passion, history and emotion of the Kolkata Derby. With more than a century of heritage behind it, the clash transcends football, dividing the City of Joy into red-and-gold and green-and-maroon. The rivalry even extends beyond the pitch, into a battle of fishes, with East Bengal supporters traditionally associated with ilish (hilsa) and Mohun Bagan fans favouring chingri (prawns), a culinary divide that adds to the derby's unique cultural identity and gives supporters another reason to celebrate.

This year's contest arrives with plenty at stake. MBSG head into the derby in scintillating form with five consecutive wins, chasing a sixth consecutive ISL victory and sitting atop the league standings. EBFC, meanwhile, boast the league's most potent attack with 14 goals scored (highest so far) and will be eager to reignite their campaign after dropping points in recent outings. The clash promises a fascinating battle between the competition's most prolific attack and one of its most consistent teams.

With a packed Salt Lake Stadium expected to provide a thunderous atmosphere, fans can look forward to an evening of fierce tackles, tactical battles, moments of brilliance and the unmatched spectacle that only the Kolkata Derby can deliver.

The highly anticipated Kolkata Derby between East Bengal FC and Mohun Bagan Super Giant will take place on Sunday in the Indian Super League (ISL) 2026-27 season. Rinku Singh likely to be named KKR captain for IPL 2027, says Irfan Pathan

NEW DELHI

Former India left-arm fast bowler Irfan Pathan believes Rinku Singh is set to be named the new captain of Kolkata Knight Riders (KKR) for IPL 2027, adding that the three-time champions have just a few other leadership options in their squad.

KKR have a captaincy vacancy to fill after Ajinkya Rahane retired from all forms of the game. Pathan also mentioned West Indies skipper Shai Hope as a possible captain KKR could buy at the auction, to be held in Goa on December 16.

"There is a lot of chatter going on about making Rinku Singh the captain of Kolkata Knight Riders, and right now, they do not have many options in their squad in terms of leadership. Rinku looks like the best option.

"They might even consider buying a captain from the auction, and if that is the case, then only one player comes to mind, Shai Hope, who just played a series in India and did a very good job.

"So, they can definitely explore that option too if they want, but knowing how their team management operates, I feel Rinku Singh is going to become Kolkata Knight Riders' new skipper," said Pathan to JioStar.

He also felt KKR's list of released players held no real surprises, while adding that Rahane's exit could allow Angkrish Raghuvanshi to move up and open the batting. "There are no major surprises in terms of the releases they have made. Ajinkya Rahane not being there will allow Angkrish Raghuvanshi to open the innings if they want him to play that role, so a lot of things will fall nicely into place for them.

"With Harshit Rana regaining fitness for bowling after missing out last year, you will see strength there as well. So, if Kolkata have a good leader, their upcoming season will be much better compared to the last one."

Former India opener Aakash Chopra also backed Rinku for the captaincy job, pointing out that he was KKR's vice-captain last season. Chopra, though, felt that veteran off-spinner Sunil Narine can also be a stop-gap leadership option. "There is only one option for the captaincy role at Kolkata Knight Riders, and that is Rinku Singh, if they want to go towards him," he said.

INDIA TEAM SELECTION

Coney questions Siraj's continued absence from XI

CHRISTCHURCH

Former New Zealand captain Jeremy Coney has expressed surprise over Mohammed Siraj's continued absence from India's playing XI for the second Test against New Zealand in Christchurch, questioning the decision to leave out the experienced fast bowler despite his impressive record and recent performances.

Siraj was also left out of the playing XI for the opening Test of the series, which ended in a draw. His omission from the second match has prompted questions from former cricketers and experts regarding India's bowling combination and selection strategy.

Speaking on the sidelines of the second Test on Saturday, Coney said Siraj's experience and ability to consistently take wickets made his exclusion unexpected. He pointed out that the Indian pacer had been an important member of the bowling attack during previous international assignments.

"Bit of a surprise that he's only had one ODI here in the New Zealand tour. Experienced player, gets about four wickets a Test. That's quite reasonable. I don't quite know why he's not there," Coney said.

The former New Zealand skipper also highlighted Siraj's contribution during India's previous five-match Test series in England, where the visitors managed to secure a 2-2 draw. He specifically recalled the pacer's performance at The Oval, where Siraj played an important role in India's victory.

"That's a surprise to me. I watched him play at the Oval too in the last Test match and how he was able to bowl India to a victory in that and draw that series 2-2," he added.

Meanwhile, Coney praised India's pace spearhead Jasprit Bumrah, describing him as a unique and deceptive bowler who remains difficult for batters to handle. His comments have brought renewed attention to India's team selection and the absence of an experienced campaigner like Siraj.

Dropped catches have dug India into a hole, WTC final hopes almost gone: Karthik

SECOND TEST
Day two, stumps
NEW ZEALAND
356
INDIA
116/6
India trail by 240

NEW DELHI

Former India wicketkeeper-batter Dinesh Karthik on Saturday blamed India's poor catching for leaving them in trouble in the ongoing Test against New Zealand, adding that the team's chances of reaching the World Test Championship (WTC) final are slipping out of reach.

India closed day two's play at the Hagley Oval on 116/6 in reply to New Zealand's first-innings score of 356. The visitors are still 240 runs behind, with Dhruv Jurel unbeaten on seven at stumps. Washington Sundar's dismissal for 10 ended day two's play, with Akash Deep to join Jurel on day three.

"What is happening with India's catching? Out of the 12 Test playing nations, India is 8th right now. We are harbouring ambitions of going to the World Test Championship final. But if you're 8th, then you've dropped a lot of catches, you've let go of a lot of crucial moments and that basically means your chances of getting to that final is going to be next to impossible," Karthik said in a video on his Instagram account on Saturday.

The fielding lapses cost India heavily on day two. A chance of New Zealand captain Tom Latham was put down on 29 on day one, and he went on to make 59. Wicketkeeper-batter Tom Blundell also got a life on 49 when he was dropped in the gully.

Blundell went on to top-score for New Zealand with 89. Fast bowler Akash Deep suffered most from the drops – three catches went down off his bowling before he completed his five-wicket haul by having Matt Henry caught out.

"In general, one of the reasons why most Test teams do well is because their close-in catchers are solid. They convert half chances and create more opportunities than what is available. Now India have gone the other way round. They're dropping sitters and that's come back to bite them," added Karthik.

He also felt India are facing the real risk of having to follow on in the match. "Eventually, India is so far behind in this Test match, 240 runs to go, just four wickets in hand in the first innings. We're looking at basically New Zealand putting us in and taking a follow on.

"We've got ourselves into a hole. India need to bat out that first session, try and reduce the deficit to 150. If that doesn't happen, India are going to find it really hard to come back in this Test match," said Karthik.

WHAT THE DROPS COST

- Tom Latham: dropped on 29, made 59
- Tom Blundell: dropped on 49 in the gully, top-scored with 89
- Akash Deep: three catches went down off his bowling
- Eighth: India's catching rank among the 12 Test nations, says Karthik
