Siddaramaiah is our leader, says Satish Jarkiholi

Minister Satish Jarkiholi insisted their meetings were entirely ordinary and held nothing secret.

Satish Jarkiholi
PUBLIC WORKS MINISTER

CH NEWS, BELAGAVI

Public Works Minister Satish Jarkiholi has dismissed speculation about secret meetings with former Chief Minister Siddaramaiah, stating that there is no need to meet their leader secretly. He said they could meet Siddaramaiah whenever they wished, as he remained their leader.

Speaking to reporters, Jarkiholi said Minister Zameer Ahmed had met Siddaramaiah three times. He added that even when Siddaramaiah was the Chief Minister, they did not meet frequently.

Reacting to the ongoing controversy over a possible sting operation in Karnataka politics, Jarkiholi said the issue had become a major topic of discussion. He explained that the Chief Minister had warned leaders to remain cautious, as people might approach them in different disguises to trap them through sting operations.

When asked whether the alleged sting operation was linked to Siddaramaiah's removal from power, he said they had no information about such a connection. He said the Chief Minister had only issued a general warning about the possibility of sting operations and that he had personally not encountered any such incident.

Jarkiholi also condemned the reported police detention of Cockroach Janata Party (CJP) leaders in Delhi.

He maintained that the CJP was not affiliated with any political party and urged the Centre to invite its leaders for discussions to resolve the issue. Shelke's challenge to the Deputy Commissioner has brought renewed attention to the MES's planned programme and its longstanding position on the border issue.

The border dispute between Karnataka and Maharashtra has remained a sensitive issue, with both states maintaining their respective positions. The proposed rally is likely to draw attention to the issue once again as November 1 approaches.

Police Commissioner raids late-night pubs & bars

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

In a massive, coordinated enforcement operation that caught the city's hospitality sector by surprise, Bengaluru Police Commissioner Seemant Kumar Singh personally led a sweeping late-night crackdown on hundreds of pubs, clubs, and bars across the capital. Deploying approximately 1,500 police personnel, including 19 senior IPS officers and specialized Central Crime Branch units, the intense operation targeted widespread violations of mandatory closing hours, licensing stipulations, and public safety regulations. The high-visibility mid-night sweeps spanned major entertainment and commercial districts, focusing heavily on prominent nightlife hubs along Brigade Road (including Brigade Garden and Page 3 Ladies Pub), Koramangala, Gandhinagar, and upscale hotel venues such as the Lalit Ashok. Teams moved systematically through commercial zones as the clock ticked past the mandated 1:00 AM deadline, instructing management to halt music, close kitchens, and escort remaining patrons off the premises. Speaking to the media during the operation, Commissioner Seemant Kumar Singh issued an uncompromising warning to establishment owners, stressing that regulatory compliance is non-negotiable. "There is a strict deadline for pubs, and raids were conducted to check whether they are complying with it," Singh stated. He noted that authorities had received concerning reports regarding underage individuals being permitted entry or illegally employed within nightlife venues, prompting comprehensive preliminary inquiries. Beyond checking commercial establishments for curfew breaches and serving liquor to minors, the police department intensified citywide security. Strategic nakabandis and interception checkpoints were established across key arterial roads to intercept drink-driving and deter illegal activities. Furthermore, law enforcement officials highlighted that specialized units, such as the newly activated anti-rowdy squads and cyber monitoring cells tracking social media channels, are maintaining continuous vigilance. The commissioner affirmed that authorities will not hesitate to register spontaneous suo motu cases against any venue flouting the law, ensuring that Bengaluru's vibrant social economy operates safely and strictly within legal parameters.

The statewide competitive examination will see participation from 1,29,212 candidates vying for eligibility across 37 distinct academic disciplines. Aspirants must strictly adhere to prescribed dress codes and clear multi-tier identity verifications, including mandatory facial recognition scans and biometric checks at the gates. Extensive deployments of state police personnel and Home Guards, alongside comprehensive closed-circuit television (CCTV) recording inside all examination halls, will maintain unbroken surveillance throughout the testing hours. CIABC warns state over AIB Tax policy

Five months following Karnataka's pioneering rollout of the Alcohol-in-Beverage (AIB) taxation framework, a sharp divergence in market performance has ignited a debate over the policy's long-term fiscal sustainability. While the system—which links excise duty directly to the actual quantity of pure alcohol rather than volume or price tiers—has triggered a massive surge in beer consumption, representatives from spirits manufacturers have raised red flags regarding structural revenue dependencies and mounting cost pressures on mass-market consumers. Data compiled between July and September 2026 highlights a dramatic dichotomy in consumer purchasing trends. Bolstered by lower price points on select lager and premium portfolios, beer sales volumes skyrocketed by nearly 50%. Conversely, Indian-Made Liquor (IML) volumes experienced sluggish growth, inching up by just over 1.5%. Despite the exponential spike in beer volume, industry analyses from the Confederation of Indian Alcohol Beverage Companies (CIABC) reveal that IML remains the bedrock of state excise collections.

Digital attendance mandate stirs discontent in police force

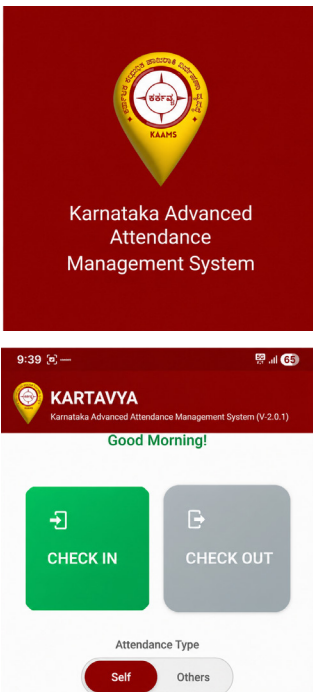

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

The Karnataka State Police Department's recent directive making the digital attendance tracking application 'Kartavya' (KAAMS) mandatory for all personnel has triggered widespread debate and operational concern within the ranks. While the state government champions the software as a revolutionary transparency initiative to streamline administration across departments, law enforcement personnel argue that the application's rigid structure fails to accommodate the unpredictable, 24/7 realities of police work.

Following a circular issued by the State Police Headquarters directing unit heads to ensure universal registration and daily login-logout compliance, officers across various divisions have voiced practical difficulties. Unlike conventional secretariat or civil departments with fixed office hours, police duties frequently involve emergency responses, prolonged festival and protest security bandobasts, and cross-district or interstate travel for criminal investigations. Personnel point out that mandatory check-ins and check-outs often clash with active field operations, where exceeding an eight-hour shift is standard and logging out immediately is impossible. Furthermore, field officers have expressed frustration over geo-fencing restrictions and procedural bottlenecks involving 'On Other Duty' (OOD) permissions. Constables deployed for traffic management or accident site investigations note that constantly seeking digital approval for multiple field-movement entries creates unnecessary administrative friction. There are also lingering anxieties regarding potential salary deductions linked to Human Resource Management System (HRMS) automated integration if technical glitches or operational emergencies delay attendance marking. Addressing these concerns, senior administrative leadership, including Sridhar T., DIGP (Administration), emphasized that the application has already undergone several rounds of customization with the e-Governance Department to make it police-friendly. Oficials clarified that the app features dedicated options such as 'field duty' and 'court duty' to handle off-station movements, and that attendance is not strictly bound to fixed office boundaries. As the department works to iron out initial technical hurdles, authorities maintain that the digital transition is vital for modernizing accountability, even as field personnel continue to push for guidelines better tailored to operational realities.

Mandatory digital attendance tracking via the Kartavya app has sparked operational concerns among police personnel regarding field realities.

PDS RICE SMUGGLING

Subsidized PDS rice seizure: Over 5.6 lakh kg confirmed

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

In a massive statewide crackdown on the illicit diversion and smuggling of subsidized food grains intended for marginalized communities, enforcement authorities from the Department of Food, Civil Supplies and Consumer Affairs, alongside allied administrative agencies, have executed a series of high-impact lightning raids. The coordinated operations resulted in the seizure of a staggering 5,64,992 kilograms of illegal public distribution system (PDS) ration rice, alongside 24 heavy commercial lorries utilized for illegal transportation, carrying an aggregate estimated market valuation exceeding ₹4.75 crore. The comprehensive statewide sweep, conducted continuously over a three-day surveillance window across multiple administrative districts, targeted sophisticated supply chains operated by black-market syndicates. According to departmental disclosures, the cumulative financial assessment of the confiscated food stocks stands at ₹1,34,43,033, while the 24 seized transport vehicles are valued at an estimated ₹3,41,50,000, bringing the total valuation of seized assets to ₹4,75,93,033. Authorities have formally registered criminal cases against nine primary individuals under strict provisions of the Essential Commodities Act and relevant sections of the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita (BNS). Taking a severe stance against internal administrative complicity, Commissioner of the Food Department B. Poornima issued immediate suspension orders against Food Department Inspector Praveen Sagar and Shiraste-dar L.B. Dhange. The officials were suspended for gross dereliction of duty following preliminary inquiries that revealed they had unlawfully released a detained lorry and substantial stocks of PDS rice previously impounded at a warehouse belonging to Ravi Traders in Bastawada village, Hukkeri taluk, without initiating mandatory legal proceedings. Food and Civil Supplies Minister Rizwan Arshad formally commended the collaborative investigative efforts of personnel from the Food Department, Commercial Taxes, Agricultural Marketing, and the state police force. Condemning the diversion of subsidized food provisions meant for underprivileged citizens as a heinous economic offense, the minister issued an unsparing warning. He reiterated that the state government will enforce zero tolerance against racketeers and will pursue strict, unlenient disciplinary and criminal actions against any enforcement personnel found abetting illicit smuggling rings.

Karjol challenges CM to reveal sting targets

Karjol criticised the state government regarding discussions about the proposed sting operation, demanding evidence and alleging diversions.

CH NEWS, CHITRADURGA
Chitradurga MP Govind Karjol has challenged Chief Minister D.K. Shivakumar to release the list of people allegedly being targeted in the proposed sting operation. He urged the Chief Minister to avoid making baseless statements and demanded clarity on the purpose and intended targets of the operation. Speaking to reporters in Chitradurga, Karjol criticised the state government over discussions surrounding the proposed sting operation. He alleged that the government was attempting to divert public attention from the drought situation and the difficulties faced by people across Karnataka. Karjol said the government had failed to introduce meaningful public welfare initiatives while people were struggling with drought-related problems. He also questioned the Chief Minister's reported

Key aspects of his criticism

Challenge for evidence
Karjol stated that the Chief Minister should not "shoot arrows in the dark" regarding a sting operation and challenged him to release the specific list naming who is targeted and who is conducting it.

Accusing the government of diversion
He alleged that with people across the state suffering due to drought and distress, the ruling government is purposely manufacturing or highlighting these controversies to deflect public attention from its governance failures and lack of pro-people achievements.

Political retorts
He joined other opposition leaders in questioning the credibility of the claims amid a heated political row involving the state leadership.

ation had changed considerably, with a large section of the population now educated. He said the demand to return to ballot papers was unnecessary and alleged that it amounted to questioning the judgement of Indian voters. He further noted that Congress leaders Rahul Gandhi and Priyanka Gandhi had won elections conducted using EVMs. He also referred to Congress victories in Karnataka and Telangana, arguing that the party had benefited from the same voting system it was now questioning. Karjol challenged Congress leaders who expressed doubts about EVMs to resign from their positions rather than create confusion among the public. He urged them not to mislead voters over the electoral process. His remarks came amid political exchanges between the BJP and Congress over the proposed sting operation and the demand for a return to ballot paper voting.

Mobile phone use banned during wildlife safaris

The decision aims to comply with court directives while enhancing safety and discipline in wildlife tourism.

CH NEWS, CHAMARAJANAGAR

The Karnataka Forest Department has imposed a complete ban on mobile phone use during wildlife safaris in tiger reserves, following directions issued by the Supreme Court. The new rule applies to tourists, safari vehicle drivers and guides visiting designated tourism zones within the core areas of tiger reserves. Kumar Pushkar, Principal Chief Conservator of Forests and Chief Wildlife Warden, issued the order on October 9 after discussions with the Secretary of the National Tiger Conservation Authority (NTCA). The decision aims to ensure compliance with court directives and strengthen safety and discipline during wildlife tourism activities. As part of the new measures, the department has instructed officials to install wireless communication systems in all safari vehicles. These systems will enable drivers and guides to communicate during emergencies without relying on mobile phones. Wildlife safaris in Chamarajanagar district operate at Bandipur, K. Gudi, P.G. Palaya and Gopinatham. The restrictions will affect tourists visiting these destinations, which are popular for wildlife viewing and nature experiences. Bandipur Tiger Reserve Range Forest Officer Satish Kumar said the new rules would be implemented for Bandipur safaris from Monday. Earlier, tourists, drivers and guides were permitted to use mobile phones in airplane mode to capture photographs and videos during safaris. However, the latest order withdraws this relaxation and prohibits mobile phone use completely in tourism zones situated within the core areas of tiger reserves. The Supreme Court had directed that mobile phone use should not be allowed inside the core areas of tiger reserves and instructed authorities to take appropriate further action. The Forest Department has now tightened the restrictions in line with these directions. According to the order, the decision followed a meeting with the NTCA Secretary on September 15.

Earlier, tourists, drivers and guides were permitted to use mobile phones in airplane mode to capture photographs and videos during safaris.

The department is expected to enforce the ban through safari operators and field staff. Visitors will have to follow the revised rules while undertaking safaris, while wireless communication facilities will support emergency coordination and help maintain safety during wildlife tourism operations.

Medical waste from Kerala dumped near Gundlupet

CH NEWS, GUNDLUPET

The illegal dumping of hazardous medical waste allegedly brought from Kerala has triggered public outrage near Gundlupet in Chamarajanagar district, raising concerns about public health and border security. An Eicher truck driver reportedly dumped hospital waste along National Highway 766 before fleeing the spot. The dumped waste reportedly includes used syringes, glucose bottles, cotton, wound dressings and potentially hazardous chemicals. The foul-smelling garbage has raised fears among local residents about the possible spread of infections and contamination in the surrounding area. According to reports, trucks returning empty to Karnataka from Kerala are allegedly being used to transport hospital waste for illegal roadside disposal during late-night hours.

The latest incident has sparked anger among residents and pro-Kannada organisations, who have demanded immediate action against those responsible. The incident has also raised questions about the effectiveness of inspections at police and Forest Department checkpoints along the Karnataka-Kerala border. Locals have questioned how a truck allegedly carrying hazardous medical waste could cross the border and reach Gundlupet without being intercepted. Residents and activists have demanded an investigation into the incident and called for disciplinary action against officials found negligent in carrying out their duties. They have urged the authorities to examine CCTV footage from the highway and border check-posts to identify the vehicle and trace its driver. The protesters have also

MALINGARAYA PUJAR, GADAG

The relocation of the Assistant Director of Agriculture (ADA) Office in Gadag from a government-owned building to rented premises has triggered questions among farmers and members of the public. The move has raised concerns over the use of public funds, the condition of the existing building and the need to pay rent when government infrastructure is already available. The old Agriculture Department office, inaugurated in 1996, is reportedly in good condition despite its age. According to local residents, the building underwent renovation and painting just two or three years ago, with lakhs of rupees spent from government funds. However, a report from the Public Works Department (PWD) reportedly declared the building unsuitable for occupation, prompting questions about the basis for the assessment. Residents have questioned how a building renovated with public money could become unfit for use within a short period. They have also sought clarification on whether a detailed technical inspection was conducted before the office was shifted. Allegations of possible administrative irregularities have surfaced, although these require verification by the concerned authorities. The relocation has also created difficulties for farmers visiting the department for assistance. The Raitha Samparka Kendra (Farmers' Contact Centre) continues to function beside the old government building, while the ADA Office has moved to rented premises elsewhere. Previously, farmers could approach both offices at the same location to obtain information about seeds, fertilisers and agricultural schemes, as well as seek the necessary signatures and assistance from officials. Following the relocation, farmers reportedly have to travel between the two premises to complete routine work, causing inconvenience and additional expenses. Farmers have questioned the need to rent a private building when government-owned premises are available. They have demanded that the Gadag District Administration order a high-level inquiry into the circumstances surrounding the relocation, including the PWD assessment, expenditure on renovation and the decision to occupy rented premises. Farmers from Shirahatti taluk have urged the authorities to stop what they describe as unnecessary rental expenditure and shift the ADA Office back to the government building beside the Raitha Samparka Kendra. They have called for transparency in the decision-making process and action against any officials found responsible for irregularities. The district administration's response to these concerns is awaited.

Farmers protest Krishna water release to Telangana

CH NEWS, VIJAYAPURA

The Akhanda Karnataka Farmers' Association has strongly opposed the release of Krishna river water to Telangana, demanding an immediate halt to the supply from the Narayanapura reservoir. Association members staged a protest on Saturday and submitted a memorandum to Chief Minister D.K. Shivakumar through the district administration.

Addressing the protesters, association State General Secretary Aravind Kulkarni and State Organising Secretary Vithal Biradar alleged that the state government was compromising the interests of farmers in the Bagalkot region by releasing water to Telangana.

They claimed that the decision followed a verbal instruction from the Chief Minister on Thursday night, allegedly after pressure from Telangana Chief Minister Revanth Reddy.

According to the association, the release of 2,667 cusecs from the Narayanapura reservoir began on Thursday night, with a proposed target of two thousand million cubic feet (TMC) of water. The leaders expressed concern that the supply could be increased in phases, even as farmers in northern Karnataka face restrictions on irrigation water. The association leaders argued that farmers in the region were being told that agricultural water would be supplied in stages, while water was being released to another state. They demanded that the government stop the current release and prioritise the irrigation requirements of local farmers.

They claimed the decision stemmed from a verbal order by the Chief Minister, reportedly driven by Telangana CM Revanth Reddy's pressure.

The leaders cited reservoir storage figures to support their opposition, stating that the Almatti reservoir held approximately 98.729 TMC of water. They said the available water must be managed carefully to meet requirements over the coming nine months, particularly with restrictions on usable storage.

The association also pointed to Telangana's legal objection to raising the water level at the Almatti reservoir. It demanded that Telangana withdraw its objection before Karnataka considers any further water release. The leaders said humanitarian assistance could be considered for drinking water needs, provided the interests of Karnataka's farmers were protected. Warning of intensified agitation, the association said the

Goa CM vows strict action in fake excise job scam

PANAJI

Strict action will be taken against those allegedly behind a job fraud in which a man was cheated of ₹27 lakh with the promise of a senior post in the state Excise Department, Goa Chief Minister Pramod Sawant said on Saturday. Police have been told to investigate thoroughly and arrest those responsible, he said.

The fraud came to light on Thursday, when Manoj Talekar turned up at the Excise Department office in Panaji with an appointment letter and said he was to take charge as Additional Excise Commissioner. The post fell vacant when IAS officer Asvin Chandru was transferred. Suspicious staff checked with senior officials, who confirmed that no such appointment letter had been issued.

Talekar told police during questioning that one Ajit Shankhwalkar had taken ₹27 lakh from him for the fake appointment letter. A case has been registered against Shankhwalkar, and police are looking for him. Investigators also found that the accused had allegedly given Talekar another letter, bearing a forged signature of Chief Minister Sawant, which claimed that Talekar had been appointed to the post.

Speaking to the media, Sawant said nobody involved would be spared, repeating that he had asked police to investigate the matter and arrest the accused. He also voiced concern that a growing number of educated people, including graduates, post-graduates and people with previous government service experience, were falling victim to such scams.

The state government would seize the properties of those involved in fraudulent activities, Sawant said. He urged citizens to stay alert and to check any suspicious job offer or official communication directly with the government department concerned.

Nagaland is considering a long-term partnership with Indian and German philanthropic organisations to improve learning outcomes in its government schools and make better use of education funds, said Kekhrielhoulie Yhome, Advisor for School Education.

The plan grew out of discussions on October 5 between the state government and a delegation headed by Martin Kasper, president of the Germany-based Childaid Network Foundation, and Nikunj Jhaveri, president of the Rotary Club of the Queen’s Necklace, Mumbai.

According to Kasper, the collaboration could last at least five years and would follow a roadmap for better teaching standards and student performance. Teacher training, digital infrastructure, early childhood education, vocational skills and project-based learning are among the planned interventions, which would strengthen existing government systems as well.

Yhome said the state spends about 8.3 to 8.7 per cent of its budget on education, but admitted that public funds could be put to better use. Pointing to the challenges, Kasper said fewer than half of the students in Nagaland’s government school system passed the Class 10 examinations.

Childaid Network, Kasper said, spends roughly two million to three million euros a year on education and works at about 1,500 project locations in the Northeast.

Besides financial assistance, the initiative would support government schools through knowledge-sharing, networking and monitoring, Jhaveri said.

The long-term vision, Kasper said, also includes encouraging companies to set up centres in Kohima and Dimapur, so that local jobs are created and young people can work in Nagaland instead of migrating elsewhere. He clarified that Childaid Network is a private non-governmental organisation, though the German government also contributes funding to its programmes.

SCINDIA REJECTS MUSK’S MONOPOLY CLAIMS OVER STARLINK IN INDIA

NEW DELHI

India does not permit monopolies in any sector, Communications Minister Jyotiraditya Scindia said on Friday, rejecting Elon Musk’s allegation that powerful business interests were blocking his satellite internet service, Starlink, in the country.

Speaking to reporters at the India Mobile Congress, Scindia said licences had been issued to all applicants seeking to provide satellite communication services. He noted that Starlink, Reliance Jio’s satellite venture Jio Satcom and Bharti-backed Eutelsat OneWeb had secured licences, while Amazon’s Kuiper was in the process of acquiring one. He added that the companies still needed to meet security requirements before starting services. The revenue-based charges for satellite communication services were almost finalised, Scindia said, with the Department of Telecommunications and the Telecom Regulatory Authority of India close to a final decision on pricing.

Musk, who has criticised the delay for three consecutive days, alleged on Wednesday that Starlink was being blocked by “certain oligarchs” maintaining a “monopolistic chokehold” over Indian consumers. The Communications Ministry rejected the claims as “baseless and misconceived”, saying the regulatory framework was fair and non-discriminatory.

NEW DELHI

Ladakhi activist Sonam Wangchuk has warned that he may launch a hunger strike or undertake a foot march if political leaders detained during Saturday’s protests in Delhi are not released by Sunday.

In a video message shared on social media, Wangchuk expressed concern over the detention of several political leaders and activists who had attempted to march towards Jantar Mantar to protest against alleged irregularities in the functioning of the Election Commission. He described the situation as an “undeclared emergency” in the country.

Wangchuk, who had extended his support to the protest called by the Cockroach

Janta Party (CJP), did not attend the demonstration in person because of preparations for winter in Ladakh.

The activist said he hoped the detained leaders would be released soon. However, he warned that he would be “compelled to consider an Anshan Fast or Padyatra March” if they remained in custody by Sunday.

Wangchuk had earlier said he would not participate in the October 10 protest, citing preparations for winter and work related to water security. These included the construction of artificial glaciers, experiments to improve glacial lake outburst flood (GLOF) safety and efforts to address potential hazards posed by more than 200 glacial lakes in the high Himalayas.

Several opposition leaders were detained at different locations across Delhi amid heavy security arrangements and restrictions on movement. Those detained included former chief ministers Arvind Kejriwal, Mamata Banerjee, Pinarayi Vijayan and Manik Sarkar.

Other detainees included CPI(M) general secretary M.A. Baby, veteran Left leader Brinda Karat, CPI(ML) Liberation general secretary Dipankar Bhattacharya, activist Yogendra Yadav and lawyer Prashant Bhushan.

The protest was organised to demand the resignation of

The allegations remain contested, and the demonstrations brought together political leaders, activists and protesters seeking accountability from the Election Commission.

Jagan says Naidu betrayed BCs on reservation

YSR Congress Party president Y.S. Jagan Mohan Reddy on Friday accused Andhra Pradesh Chief Minister N. Chandrababu Naidu of betraying Backward Classes (BCs) by failing to deliver on his promise of 34 per cent reservation in local body elections.

The former chief minister’s remarks came after the Supreme Court dismissed the state government’s plea challenging an Andhra Pradesh High Court ruling that struck down the enhanced reservation. The High Court had ruled on October 1 that the 34 per cent quota violated the 50 per cent ceiling on total reservations in local bodies.

In a post on X, Jagan accused Naidu of misleading BC communities with promises of increased representation. “You promised 34% reservations for BCs in local bodies, lured them with that promise and betrayed them,” he wrote, alleging that the Supreme Court’s decision had exposed the government’s failure to fulfil its commitment.

The Supreme Court upheld the High Court’s ruling against Andhra Pradesh’s enhanced quota, intensifying debate over political promises and welfare commitments to BC communities.

Fewer H-1B visas could benefit Indian economy: Piyush Goyal

NEW DELHI

Union Commerce and Industry Minister Piyush Goyal on Saturday said that fewer H-1B visas for Indian professionals could benefit the country’s economy, arguing that restrictions on overseas employment may encourage skilled workers to contribute to India’s growth. He also said he had never raised the issues of H-1B visas or green cards with the United States administration during the past seven-and-a-half years.

Goyal’s remarks come amid increased scrutiny of the H-1B visa programme under the Donald Trump administration. The programme allows US employers to hire foreign professionals for specialised occupations, including information technology, engineering and other technical fields.

“I personally believe that not getting more H-1B visas is absolutely good for the Indian economy,” Goyal said, expressing the view that reduced access to overseas work opportunities could have positive implications for India.

The comments follow reports that the United States has suspended the processing of certain employment-based certificates required by Indian IT professionals seeking permanent residency. Major Indian technology companies, including Tata Consultancy Services (TCS) and Infosys, were reportedly affected by the move.

The suspension has raised concerns about potential delays for Indian professionals seeking permanent residence in the US.

Goyal said he had not taken up the H-1B visa or green card issue in his discussions with the US administration over the past seven-and-a-half years. His statement comes amid continuing debate over immigration policies, overseas employment and the future of Indian professionals working in the American technology sector.

The H-1B programme has long been an important route for Indian technology workers seeking employment in the United States. Changes to visa policies and permanent residency procedures can affect both employees and companies that depend on international talent.

The latest developments have renewed discussion about whether tighter US immigration rules could encourage skilled Indian professionals to remain in the country and strengthen domestic industries.

Delhi deploys 2,947 bus marshals, 56 special buses for women

NEW DELHI

The Delhi government has deployed 2,947 bus marshals in Delhi Transport Corporation (DTC) buses and is operating 56 special buses for women as part of measures to strengthen public safety, Chief Minister Rekha Gupta said on Saturday.

Of the 56 special buses, 15 operate during the evening shift, with armed women police personnel deployed on board after 5 pm. Gupta said in a statement. All buses have been connected to the Bus Management System, with panic alarms, live CCTV feeds and GPS tracking monitored round the clock through a control centre.

The Department of Women and Child Development will soon introduce additional accommodation facilities for working women in Vishwas Nagar and Rohini. Gupta said the government was working to ensure that women received prompt assistance during emergencies and had access to essential facilities.

The chief minister also highlighted measures to strengthen child protection. Sub-Divisional Magistrates have been designated as Child Marriage Prohibition Officers to prevent child marriages, she said.

Around 1.5 lakh CCTV cameras have been installed in schools to improve children’s safety. Self-defence training is also being provided in 1,397 schools under the Rani Lakshmbai Self-Defence Training Programme, Gupta added.

Highlighting road safety and infrastructure, she said 96,000 streetlights had been installed on roads maintained by the Public Works Department (PWD). These include 45,000 high-pressure sodium vapour lights and 51,000 LED lights.

Gupta further said 2,53,983 CCTV cameras under the

The chief minister described the measures as part of a broader safety network covering women’s transport, emergency assistance, child protection and public infrastructure.

Academics demand withdrawal of Bengal university transfer Bill

KOLKATA

Eighteen academics have called for the withdrawal of the West Bengal Universities and Colleges Amendment Bill, 2026, alleging that it threatens university autonomy and academic freedom. The demand was raised during an all-India online protest meeting held on October 8, organised by the Association of Bengal University Teachers (ABUTA) along with other teachers’ organisations.

The Bill was introduced and passed during a special session of the West Bengal Assembly on September 10. It empowers the state government to transfer teaching and non-teaching staff between eight state universities across West Bengal. Academics have expressed concern that the provision could undermine institutional independence and discourage teachers from expressing dissenting views.

Jawhar Sircar, former principal secretary of higher education in the state government and former chief executive officer of Prasara Bharati, described the proposed legislation as a “direct attack on university autonomy”. He called for collective efforts to protect publicly funded higher education.

Teachers’ organisations to challenge the Bill in court

A.H. Rajasab, former vice-chancellor of Tumkur University in Karnataka, alleged that attempts were being made to suppress progressive and rational thinking in public universities. Arun Kumar, general secretary of the All-India Federation of University and College Teachers’ Organisations, described the Bill as an attempt to “punish teachers and create an atmosphere of fear”.

Syed Akhtar Husain, president of the Jawaharlal Nehru University Teachers’ Association and FEDCUTA, urged teachers across the country to oppose the legislation through political, legal and social means.

ABUTA general secretary Goutam Maity argued that the fear of transfers could prevent teachers from thinking independently and expressing dissent. He warned that the measure could undermine creativity and innovation in education and research, with wider implications for economic and social development.

WBCUTA general secretary Nilay Kumar Saha said teachers’ organisations would jointly challenge the Bill in court and continue their agitation.

MANJA BAN ENFORCEMENT

Telangana to cancel licences of synthetic manja sellers

HYDERABAD

Telangana’s Head of Forest Force, Vinay Kumar, has directed officials to cancel the licences of shops selling prohibited synthetic manja and intensify enforcement measures to protect people, birds and other wildlife.

The directions were issued during a review meeting with senior officials from various government departments at Aranya Bhavan on Friday. Kumar called for stricter action against the sale and use of synthetic manja, which poses risks to human safety and wildlife, particularly Indian rollers.

Noting that synthetic manja was being supplied from other states, especially Rajasthan and Gujarat, he instructed officials to strengthen surveillance of incoming consignments. Greater Hyderabad Municipal Corporation (GHMC) officials were asked to direct shopkeepers not to sell the prohibited material and take stringent action against violators.

Kumar also directed the police to monitor online platforms and e-commerce websites to prevent the sale of Chinese manja. Officials were

Bus drivers and conductors will also be advised to inform the Forest Department helpline if they notice the illegal transportation of synthetic manja or wildlife, including Indian rollers.

During the meeting, officials raised complaints from voluntary organisations about the use of Chinese manja at the Kite Festival organised by the Tourism Department. Kumar directed officials to ensure that synthetic manja was not permitted at this year’s festival and that any material found was confiscated immediately.

He also instructed officials to prevent Indian rollers from being kept in cages for display at Durga pandals. The Endowments Department was asked to ensure that temples complied with the directions.

Kumar stressed the need for coordinated action among government departments to enforce the ban and strengthen wildlife protection.

Household income, wealth, debt stress rose from 2022 to 2025: Fed

WASHINGTON

Most US families saw their incomes and wealth rise as the country emerged from the COVID-19 pandemic, a new Federal Reserve survey of the 2022-2025 period has shown, with the less well off gaining most in income but more of the wealth going to the top 10%. The bigger income gains among poorer families did little for their wealth: the net worth of the bottom fourth of households dropped by more than 50%, to $1,700 from $3,800 at the time of the previous survey in 2022.

Russia to supply diesel to US, global markets: Trump

WASHINGTON

Russia has agreed to supply diesel to world markets to help bring down fuel prices, President Donald Trump said. His administration also temporarily lifted US sanctions on Russian fuel, which were meant to deny Moscow revenue for its war on Ukraine. In a social media post, Trump said he had held a "highly successful" discussion with President Vladimir Putin, in which they agreed that Russia would immediately supply more than 300,000 metric tons of diesel, or about 2.25 million barrels, to US and global markets.

RBI tightens forex derivative rules

The measures come amid persistent foreign portfolio outflows, elevated hedging demand from importers and continued RBI intervention to limit the rupee's weakness.

NEW DELHI

The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) on Saturday announced fresh regulatory measures to curb currency speculation, strengthen risk management and maintain orderly trading in the foreign exchange market. The central bank reduced the threshold for undertaking foreign exchange derivative transactions involving the rupee without establishing an underlying exposure from $100 million to $5 million. The revised limit applies across authorised dealers. A similar reduction has been introduced for exchange-traded currency derivatives involving the rupee across recognised stock exchanges.

Under the new directions, authorised dealers will not permit users to rebook rupee-related foreign exchange derivative contracts, whether deliverable or non-deliverable, if the contracts were cancelled with any authorised dealer after the directions were issued. The RBI has also directed authorised dealers to obtain and retain undertakings from users entering into rupee-related foreign exchange derivatives to hedge contracted exposures. Users must confirm that the same underlying exposure has not been hedged through another authorised dealer. Additionally, the central bank introduced a Foreign Exchange Risk Reserve (FERR) requirement. For rupee-related derivative contracts exceeding $2 million in notional value, undertaken to hedge current account exposures where users purchase foreign currency against rupees, authorised dealers must maintain a cash reserve with the RBI equivalent to 20 per cent of the rupee value of the no-

'Dear Prime Minister Ambani,' Musk fires fresh salvo

NEW DELHI

Elon Musk, chief executive of SpaceX and Tesla, has again targeted billionaire Mukesh Ambani over Starlink's entry into India. Addressing him as "Dear Prime Minister Ambani," Musk accused him of trying to hold on to a monopoly and asked whether he would let the satellite internet service compete in the country. Writing on X, Musk called Ambani the "real boss of India" and said sorry for failing to recognise his influence. He went on: "Naturally, you would prefer to maintain your monopolistic exploitation of the great people of India, but would you nonetheless consider allowing Starlink to compete?" Musk added that "there are many areas of India, as there are in all countries, with no Internet access, which denies children the opportunity for education and for small businesses the opportunity to sell their goods to a global market. Starlink would change their lives for the better." He also said: "Starlink has proven to be essential for saving lives during natural disasters throughout the world, when all other communications systems have failed, so you would also be helping save men, women and children throughout India."

Earlier, Musk had asked why Starlink was still waiting for the final approvals it needs to start commercial operations in India, saying the satellite internet firm had spent five years following the country's laws and regulations. At first, Musk blamed unnamed "oligarchs" for holding up Starlink's entry into India, alleging that powerful business interests wanted to shield their position in the Indian telecom market. He named no company or individual. The government then hit back at the US businessman over his claim that Starlink's satcom services were being blocked, and made it clear that every satcom licensee in the country must, without exception, demonstrate compliance with security norms.

Amitabh Kant defends India's Starlink regulations

NEW DELHI

Former G20 Sherpa and NITI Aayog chief executive Amitabh Kant on Saturday defended India's right to protect its national security amid the controversy surrounding Starlink's entry into the country's satellite communications market. In a post on social media platform X, Kant said India welcomed innovation, investment and fair competition but could not compromise its national interests to accommodate any global corporation. He argued that the security measures considered legitimate by the United States should not be dismissed as protectionism when adopted by India. Kant was responding to a recent post by Elon Musk, chief executive of SpaceX and Tesla, who took a swipe at billionaire Mukesh Ambani over Starlink's entry into India. Musk referred to the industrialist as "Dear Prime Minister Ambani", prompting Kant to criticise the remark as being in poor taste. Kant said suggesting that India was controlled by one

WASHINGTON

The US-India Strategic Partnership Forum (USISPF) has strongly defended the Green Card and H-1B visa programmes, calling them major drivers of American economic growth and innovation, even as the Trump administration moves to tighten scrutiny of legal immigration pathways. "The Green Card and H-1B programs are among the United States' most significant economic policy success stories, strengthening America's economic growth, innovation, and global competitiveness," USISPF said in a statement. According to the organisation, these routes to immigration have drawn some of the brightest minds in the world, enabling American companies to grow, add jobs and stay ahead in technology. USISPF cited an analysis of US Census Bureau data for 2022, saying the legal immigration pathways had produced $2.1 trillion in combined household income. The analysis, according to the organisation, showed that the immigrants covered had paid $382.9 billion in federal taxes and another $196.3 billion in state and local taxes. Their combined spending power stood at $1.6 trillion. The statement came against the backdrop of recent action by the US Department of Labor concerning the Permanent Labor Certification (PERM) programme, an important route for employment-based permanent residency.

USISPF expressed support for the administration's efforts to prevent misuse of immigration programmes but cautioned against overlooking their economic benefits. "We fully support the administration's efforts to prevent fraud and abuse in legal immigration programs," the organisation said, adding that such abuse undermines the domestic job market.

EUROPE-CHINA TRADE TENSIONS

China's trade practices threaten Europe's industry

BEIJING

China's trade practices and dominance over critical raw materials are raising concerns across Europe, with growing calls for stronger trade safeguards and diversification of supply chains to protect the continent's industrial base. A recent report has described China's state subsidies, alleged currency manipulation and control over essential raw materials as factors contributing to pressure on European manufacturers.

It argues that these practices have intensified competition for domestic industries and exposed the risks of excessive dependence on Chinese supplies.

According to the report, French and German leaders are calling for sector-wide anti-dumping investigations targeting Chinese electric vehicles, chemicals and machine tools. They are also seeking greater powers to reduce Europe's dependence on Chinese supply chains. The report points to industrial job cuts in Germany, the closure of domestic assembly lines by European automobile manufacturers and the outsourcing of critical supply chains as signs of mounting pressure on the region's manufacturing sector. However, it questions whether a proposed European Union rapid-response mechanism would be effective, arguing that the European Commission may struggle to address the structural vulnerabilities behind the problem. Even if Brussels manages to push the button, Beijing holds the real levers of power." — The report, on the proposed EU rapid-response mechanism

It also warns that an aggressive tariff conflict could raise costs for European consumers and manufacturers, while China retains considerable influence through its control of rare earths and semiconductor-grade gases. The debate has renewed attention on the United Kingdom's efforts to diversify trade and investment ties beyond China. Europe's efforts to diversify supply chains and deepen trade partnerships with countries such as India could become increasingly important as policymakers seek to reduce strategic dependence on China.

Taapsee Pannu opens up about anxiety and online trolling

Actor Taapsee Pannu has spoken about mental health, anxiety and online trolling on World Mental Health Day, sharing how the COVID-19 pandemic helped her understand the importance of addressing her emotional well-being.

Taapsee said she once believed mental health support was needed only during serious conditions. Over time, she realised it also involved finding peace, staying present and managing emotional challenges, especially in the demanding entertainment industry.

The actor explained that she previously kept herself busy with work, sports and physical activities to avoid confronting anxiety. During the pandemic, however, she had to spend more time alone and understand her emotions.

Speaking about online trolling, Taapsee said she would not romanticise the experience with statements about self-worth. She explained that constant criticism and personal attacks could affect actors because their careers often depended on public perception.

She admitted that she once tried to please everyone, which left her exhausted. It took years for her to realise that she had wasted valuable time trying to satisfy trolls instead of focusing on personal and professional growth. She added that negative media coverage could also affect mental health.

Taapsee believes social media has increased anxiety and comparison among celebrities. She said actors sometimes present carefully created public images instead of showing their real personalities because of constant judgement.

The actor eventually chose to become inactive on social media to protect her mental well-being rather than face continued criticism.

Taapsee also revealed that she attended therapy sessions during the pandemic. She said the experience helped her learn to manage her emotions instead of escaping from difficult feelings.

She welcomed the growing acceptance of therapy and stressed the importance of understanding mental health beyond serious conditions. Her experiences highlight the need to address anxiety and emotional well-being openly.

Magnitude 7.7 earthquake shakes Panama

PANAMA CITY
Southern Panama was hit by a magnitude 7.7 earthquake that damaged buildings and drove thousands of people into the streets, but the country appeared to have been spared widespread destruction or deaths. According to the US Geological Survey, the quake struck at a depth of 12.6 km (7.8 miles), with its epicentre in a sparsely populated area about 200 km (124 miles) from the capital, and some casualties were possible. In the upscale business hub of downtown Panama City, office workers who had poured into the streets worried about how to get home through the snarled traffic.

Germany sticks to Russia sanctions after Trump’s diesel deal

BERLIN
Germany will keep its sanctions on Russia over the war in Ukraine, the government said on Saturday, after US President Donald Trump announced that his administration had temporarily lifted US sanctions on Russian fuel. In a statement, government spokesperson Stefan Kornelius said: “The federal government has taken note of the US decision relating to Russian diesel deliveries.” Germany’s position was clear, he said: “The federal government remains committed to the decisions on sanctions against Russia and is working with its European partners on further sanctions.” Kornelius added that Germany’s support for Ukraine was unchanged and that diplomatic efforts to reach a solution would go on. According to Trump, Russia has agreed to supply diesel to world markets to help bring fuel prices down. He said his administration had temporarily lifted the US sanctions on Russian fuel that were designed to deprive Moscow of revenue for its war on Ukraine. Diesel, which is used in farming, home heating and trucking, now costs close to record levels, a risk for Trump’s fellow Republicans ahead of the November 3 congressional elections, which will decide whether they keep their thin control of Congress. Chancellor Friedrich Merz, who visited Kyiv last weekend, has said repeatedly that Germany, the largest European donor to Ukraine, will not cut its support for the government in Kyiv.

Taiwan vows freedom, rejects subordination to China

Taiwan President Lai Ching-te defended higher military spending and rejected subordination to China, drawing swift criticism from Beijing during National Day celebrations.

TAIPEI

President Lai Ching-te said on Saturday that Taiwan cherish peace but will not surrender its freedom, reaffirming the island’s commitment to self-determination as China steps up its military and political pressure.
In his National Day address, Lai said building up the island’s defences should not be seen as a provocation. Peace could not rest on goodwill alone, he stressed, adding that Taiwan was open to exchanges but would reject any arrangement that put it under Beijing’s control.
Lai said in his speech outside the Presidential Office: “Taiwan cherishes peace, but we will not give up our freedom. We are open to exchanges, but will not accept subordination.”

China was quick to criticise the speech. Its Taiwan Affairs Office accused the president of distorting facts, misleading the public and pursuing separatist aims.
Taiwan, which has a democratically elected government, faces growing pressure from Beijing, which has never renounced the use of force to bring the island under its control. China has repeatedly called Lai a separatist and rejected his offers of dialogue.
Taiwan has responded by raising defence spending and upgrading its armed forces to counter China’s military edge. Beijing keeps expanding its capabilities, including stealth fighter jets, aircraft carriers and missile systems.

US sanctions ICC after former judge wins Nobel Peace Prize

WASHINGTON

US President Donald Trump’s administration has imposed sanctions on the International Criminal Court, hours after “We will ban transactions with this rogue court, cutting off their resources and crippling its ability to operate.”
— Marco Rubio, US Secretary of State
one of the court’s former judges won the Nobel Peace Prize, setting Washington on a diplomatic collision course with its European allies.
“The Court cannot stand alone. Its fate now rests also in the hands of the states that created it,” the court said in a statement. “This is not just about defending a single institution, but about safeguarding the international order grounded upon the rule of law. History will judge this moment.”

The Trump administration has long been hostile to the court, which was set up in 2002 to prosecute war crimes, crimes against humanity and genocide, and it has already sanctioned the court’s prosecutors and judges.
The US signed the Rome Statute that founded the court but never ratified it.
Secretary of State Marco Rubio said in a statement: “President Trump will never allow the International Criminal Court to prosecute Americans.”
The US Treasury announced the sanctions with an initial six-month grace period, along with other exemptions that would allow some transactions for telecoms, software, pension payments and matters related to detainees.

Firewall against far-right AfD feels the heat in Germany

BERLIN

Concern that the political barriers meant to isolate the farsembly. The ballot was secret, but suspicion fell on members of Merz’s Christian Democratic Union (CDU), whose lawmakers had been told to abstain.

Karin Prien, deputy chair of the national CDU, said there would be consequences if members of her party were found to be responsible. The AfD hailed the result as a turning point, arguing that lawmakers’ freedom to act could break down the political firewall built against it.
The vote follows the AfD’s record win in Saxony-Anhalt’s regional election last month. The party narrowly missed an absolute majority, but its result deepened fears among mainstream rivals that it could contend for national power in the 2029 federal election.

Ethiopian forces enter border city after Eritrean incursion

MEKELLE

Ethiopian government forces and allied militias entered Adigrat, a strategic city near the border with Horn of Africa neighbour Eritrea, on Saturday, three residents said, days after Eritrean troops were driven back from it.
The incursion by Eritrean troops, which Eritrea has denied and which could not be independently verified, has stirred fears of a return to all-out war along Ethiopia’s northern border, where the two nations have clashed before. Conflicts elsewhere in the region and tensions across the Red Sea have raised the stakes further.

Three residents of Adigrat said they had seen the Ethiopian army and an allied militia in the city on Saturday morning; one of them said soldiers were on patrol with military vehicles.

It could not be confirmed whether the army was in control of Adigrat, which lies 30 km (19 miles) from the border with Eritrea. Ethiopia’s military did not immediately respond to a request for comment, and city officials could not be reached on Saturday.
In a letter to members of the UN Security Council this week, Ethiopia said Eritrean troops had pushed up to 60 km (37 miles) into Tigray in recent days, and warned that the presence of foreign forces left it no option but to defend itself.
Eritrea has called the reports of an incursion false, saying they are part of an Ethiopian plan to justify a war of aggression.

Saudi conferences to go ahead despite Riyadh airport attack

RIYADH

Two major Saudi energy and investment conferences will go ahead this month, their organisers said, as they sought to reassure visitors about security after missile attacks on Riyadh’s airport this week killed four people and badly damaged an airliner.
The attacks caused widespread disruption to flights, forcing travellers onto land routes or roundabout alternative flights. Britain, France and Germany have warned their citizens to stay away from Riyadh. The World Petroleum Congress, due to bring together top global oil executives and policymakers from Sunday to Thursday, will go ahead as planned with foreign leaders and ministers attending, its organisers said in an email to delegates.

“Your comfort is our priority,” the email said, adding that other routes to Riyadh were available, among them a four-hour drive from Dammam on the kingdom’s eastern coast.

Italian Energy Minister Gilberto Pichetto Fratin said he would join the International Energy Forum Ministerial Meeting, an event on the sidelines of the World Petroleum Congress, by video link rather than fly to Riyadh.
The Future Investment Initiative, launched a decade ago by Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman as the kingdom’s flagship investment conference, will also go ahead as planned on October 26-29, its organisers said. “Safety and well-being remain our highest priority,” said a statement attributed to IIF CEO Maha Al Saud.

Among the expected guests were the chief executives of some of the world’s biggest financial institutions, including JPMorgan’s Jamie Dimon and Citi’s Jane Fraser.

Amelia Earhart expedition hunts for plane wreckage

LOS ANGELES

A team of US-based marine archaeologists has set sail for a tiny island in the far western Pacific to examine the latest tantalising clue to one of the great unsolved mysteries of the 20th century: the disappearance of the famed aviator Amelia Earhart in 1937.
The group, backed by Purdue University, an institution long linked with Earhart and her legacy, wants to find out whether an underwater object spotted in satellite images of the island’s lagoon six years ago is the wreck of Earhart’s twin-engine Lockheed Electra 10-E aeroplane.

The team left Los Angeles earlier this month and is expected to reach Nikumaroro on Tuesday, October 13, local time. The uninhabited speck of land lies in the remote Phoenix Islands, part of the archipelago nation of the Kiribati Republic.
Purdue general counsel Steve Schultz, a member of the expedition who was in

Fiji last week doing advance work for the trip, said in an interview: “This would be solving one of the great mysteries in aviation history, certainly one of the great mysteries of the 20th century.”
Not everyone is convinced. The leading sceptic is rival Earhart explorer Ric Gillespie, co-founder of TIGHAR, short for The International Group for Historic Aircraft Recovery, and author of the 2024 book “One More Good Flight: The Amelia Earhart Tragedy.”

Gruesome injuries to teen throw spotlight on France’s policing

PARIS

A 14-year-old boy was left with a broken jaw and several shattered teeth when a tear gas grenade fired by a police officer hit him in the face during student protests in France last week, his family and lawyer said.
The boy, named only as Eden to protect his family’s privacy, was sitting on a wall looking at his phone near a demonstration in Saint-Ouen-l’Aumône when it happened. The local prosecutor said an officer went up to Eden and hit him with a baton.

Elsa Marcel, the family’s lawyer, alleged that the officer shot Eden in the mouth and left him on the ground without calling emergency services. The family has lodged a complaint of attempted murder. On Tuesday, the officer was placed under formal investigation on suspicion of assault by a public official causing permanent disability or disfigurement.

The police response has revived criticism of rubber bullets, tear gas launchers and stun grenades.

A French teenager’s severe facial injuries have intensified scrutiny of police tactics as student protests trigger nationwide anger and investigations.

Interior Minister Laurent Nuñez said about 200 students had been hurt in the unrest, but insisted that police action was rarely to blame. The authorities also reported that around 700 police officers had been injured, that schools had been damaged and that thousands of people, mostly minors, had been arrested.

Russian strike kills 12 in Zaporizhzhia

ZAPORIZHZHIA

A Russian attack on the southern Ukrainian city of Zaporizhzhia on Saturday killed at least 12 people, three of them children, as rescuers searched the rubble of damaged residential buildings for survivors. Local authorities said 14 people were also wounded.
Among the dead was a six-year-old girl whose body was pulled from the wreckage of an apartment building. Her grandfather, Anatoliy Chumnyi, stood grieving beside her body after rescuers brought it out. He said the family would have celebrated her birthday later this month.

The strike came a day after US President Donald Trump announced a deal to lift sanctions on Russian diesel exports, a move sharply criticised by Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy.
Zelenskyy later argued that easing the pressure on Russia could encourage it to press on with its military campaign.

Regional governor Mykhailo Semikin said Russian forces hit several places at once in the early hours of Saturday. Emergency workers clamoured over broken masonry and concrete to reach people trapped inside. One man could be heard screaming in pain as rescuers freed his leg from the debris.
The city has been bombarded by Russia many times, and the attacks have intensified in recent months.

Churchill Brothers Eye Winning ISL Debut

FATORDA

Churchill Brothers head coach Dimitris Dimitriou has expressed confidence in his team's preparations ahead of their Indian Super League (ISL) debut against Mumbai City FC at the Fatorda Stadium in Goa on Saturday.

Churchill Brothers prepare for their historic ISL debut against Mumbai City FC, with coach Dimitris Dimitriou promising competitive football, a strong club identity and renewed excitement for supporters across Goa.

The match, scheduled for 7:30 p.m., marks a historic occasion for the Goan club as it begins a new chapter in India's top-tier football competition. Dimitriou said the team's primary objective was to establish a strong footballing identity, remain competitive against established opponents and bring happiness to supporters across Goa.

The coach thanked club owner Churchill Alemão and his family for their continued support, describing the opportunity to guide the historic club in the ISL as a great honour.

Acknowledging the challenge ahead, Dimitriou highlighted Mumbai City FC's squad strength and the experience of their head coach, Manolo Márquez.

Despite a relatively short pre-season, Churchill Brothers completed 37 training sessions over four weeks to prepare for the competition. The retention of 12 players from the previous season is expected to provide continuity and strengthen coordination within the squad.

Dimitriou emphasised that building a recognisable playing style and maintaining competitiveness would remain central to the club's approach throughout the campaign.

Meanwhile, Churchill Brothers player Kingslee Fernandes described representing the club in the ISL as a proud moment.

Fernandes said the squad featured a balanced combination of young and experienced players, adding that the coaching staff had motivated the team throughout preparations. With supporters eagerly awaiting the club's debut, Churchill Brothers will aim to deliver a strong opening performance against Mumbai City FC.

Rutherford's fireworks after WI script record chase

RANCHI

West Indies captain Shai Hope said building partnerships and Sherfane Rutherford's explosive batting were key to his team's six-wicket victory over India in the second T20I, as the visitors chased down a daunting target of 250 at the JSCA International Stadium Complex here on Friday. Hope smashed a blistering 45-ball century, while Rutherford hammered 84 off 37 deliveries to help the West Indies complete the second-highest successful run chase in men's T20I cricket, reaching 252/4 with two overs to spare.

Reflecting on the early setbacks that saw the visitors reduced to 5/2, Hope admitted the chase had become challenging but said playing in India always gave a team belief that a target could be achieved.

"That it's going to be a tough chase. But when you chase here in India, you always give yourself a chance. You always think you're in the game, regardless of what score is on the board. But five for two was always going to be challenging," Hope said after being named Player of the Match.

Hope said the partnership with Rovman Powell helped the West Indies regain momentum before Rutherford's counter-attacking knock provided the decisive impetus to the chase.

"When we got that partnership there, myself and Rovman, we just got some more impetus in the innings, and then obviously Sherfane came and did what he did, played really well with the bat, and just gave us that spark that we needed to get over the line today," he said.

The West Indies skipper also explained why he was content to let Rutherford take the attacking role during their match-winning 120-run fourth-wicket partnership.

Indian women's hockey team captain Salima Tete, two other players felicitated

KOLKATA

Salima Tete, captain of the Asian Games gold medal-winning Indian women's hockey team, was felicitated at the South Eastern Railway (SER) headquarters in Kolkata on Friday. Nikki Pradhan and Deepika Soreng, two other members of the team, were also felicitated during the occasion. All three are from Jharkhand and work for SER.

Salima led her team to a historic gold medal at the Asian Games in Aichi-Nagoya, Japan, by defeating world champions China in the finals. This was the first Asian Games gold medal for the women's hockey team in 44 years.

The Indian captain has humble roots in a Jharkhand village and has had to struggle hard to reach the top. She displayed her exceptional talent throughout the continental tournament. In the extremely tough final match, she had to leave the field for a while after suffering a severe hand injury. There was major concern regarding the Indian defence till she returned to the field. The Asian Games victory also got the Indian women's team entry to the Los Angeles Olympics.

Her humble background made the win especially special, Salima said after the victory. She also said that the players had gone to the tournament with the determination to win. Every match was treated as a final, she said.

The win was a great achievement after a disappointing start earlier in the year when the team missed out on reaching the World Cup semi-final spot.

During the day, the three players were felicitated by SER general manager Anil Kumar Jain. The victory has brought immense pride to the railway fraternity and the nation, he said, pointing to how their dedication, teamwork and sporting excellence have brought many laurels to Indian hockey.

He also wished them all the best for the future and assured all support. "SER has always stood by sportspersons, and there have been several nationally and internationally acclaimed ones serving with us.

Robin Singh Stresses High Skills in T10

NEW DELHI

Former India cricketer Robin Singh has emphasised that T10 cricket demands exceptionally high skill levels, with batters required to take calculated risks and deliver immediately in the fast-paced 60-ball format.

Singh, who serves as Team Director of Royal Desert Champions, explained that T10 offers little time for players to settle at the crease. Unlike longer formats, batters must be ready to attack from the opening delivery, making confidence, execution and decision-making crucial to success.

Comparing T10 with T20 cricket, Singh said the shorter format resembles the final overs of a T20 match or the powerplay, when scoring quickly becomes essential and every delivery can influence the outcome.

He cautioned that players who hesitate or second-guess their abilities could struggle in the format, where there is little opportunity to recover after a slow start.

Singh also discussed Royal Desert

Champions' strategy during the player draft. The franchise had secured Nicholas Pooran, Phil Salt and Sherfane Rutherford through pre-signings before adding players including Muhammad Waseem, Naseem Shah and Maheesh Theekshana.

According to Singh, the team secured approximately 80 per cent of its desired selections, although the unpredictable nature of drafts required flexibility and alternative plans.

He explained that franchises must prepare backup options depending on which players are selected by rival teams.

Singh stressed that T10 leaves no room for complacency, with players needing to remain alert and effective throughout the contest.

"T10 is almost like playing the last 10 overs of a T20 game to some extent or in the power plays, for that matter."

- Robin Singh (Royal Desert Champions Team Director)

"You have to take a lot more risks in T10. So your skill levels have to be very high."

- Robin Singh (Former India Cricketer)

T10 Demands:

- Only 60 balls per innings.
- Batters must attack from ball 1.
- Confidence and execution are crucial.
- Teams need balanced squads and adaptable draft strategies.

Cole Palmer Commits Future to Chelsea

LONDON

Chelsea forward Cole Palmer has signed a new contract extending his stay at the Premier League club until 2034, underlining the team's commitment to one of its most influential attacking players.

The 24-year-old has made a significant impact since joining Chelsea in August 2023, registering 91 goal contributions in 138 appearances. His performances have helped the club secure the FIFA Club World Cup and UEFA Conference League titles.

Palmer expressed his happiness at committing his future to Chelsea, saying discussions with the club's owners, sporting directors, manager and players had strengthened his confidence in its direction and ambitions.

"Chelsea means a lot to me, and I think the club is going in the right direction, so I'm delighted to sign, and I'm obviously very happy," Palmer said.

During his debut season in 2023-24, Palmer scored 25 goals and provided 19 assists. Six goals came across consecutive Premier League hat-tricks, while his performances earned him Chelsea's Player of the Season and Players' Player of the Season awards. He also received the Premier League Young Player of the Season and PFA Young Player of the Year honours.

Palmer continued to deliver decisive performances in subsequent campaigns, including four first-half goals against Brighton and Hove Albion and a hat-trick of assists against Wolverhampton Wanderers.

He played a crucial role in Chelsea's European success, providing two assists in the UEFA Conference League final against Real Betis.

India U17 Women Eye Historic Asian Cup Qualification

SELAYANG: India's U17 women's national team will face hosts Malaysia in a decisive AFC U17 Women's Asian Cup China 2027 qualifier at the MP Selayang Stadium on Sunday, October 11, with a draw enough to secure qualification. Both teams have collected six points from their opening two Group E matches, setting up a direct battle for the group's only qualifying spot. India hold the advantage on goal difference, having scored 16 goals without conceding, while Malaysia have scored five and maintained two clean sheets. Only the eight group winners will qualify for the continental tournament, joining defending champions DPR Korea, Japan, Australia and hosts China PR, who secured direct entry after finishing among the top four at the 2026 edition. India reached the quarter-finals of the previous tournament, marking their first appearance in the knockout stage. Qualification this time would make them the first Indian team to reach consecutive Women's Asian Cups in any age category, including the senior level. Head coach Joakim Alexandersson has urged his players to pursue victory rather than settle for a draw, while maintaining tactical discipline. India began their campaign with a record 14-0 win over Iraq before defeating Syria 2-0. Forward Anushka Kumari has scored seven goals, including five against Iraq and both goals against Syria.
