Local resistance stalls Yele Mallappa Shetty Lake fencing

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

The Minor Irrigation Department has sought police protection to resume fencing work at Yele Mallappa Shetty Lake in east Bengaluru following opposition from local farmers and residents. In an affidavit before the National Green Tribunal (NGT), the department said fencing had been completed along 6.3 km of the lake's 9.3-km perimeter, leaving 3 km unfinished. Farmers from Hiranahalli are opposing the work, demanding road access to their plots and a nearby graveyard. The department has sought five additional months to complete the fencing. The drive follows an NGT order issued in 2022 to protect the lake, remove encroachments and address pollution. Officials have also sought police assistance for resurveying the lake boundaries.

New scan detects ovarian cancer spread with 86% accuracy: Study

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

A study by doctors at Aster International Institute of Oncology in Bengaluru has found that FAPI PET/CT scans can detect ovarian cancer spread more accurately than conventional CT scans, potentially improving treatment planning. Researchers evaluated a Fibroblast Activation Protein Inhibitor (FAPI) tracer to assess cancer spread, particularly to the peritoneum, the lining of the abdominal cavity. Identifying deposits is crucial in determining whether patients should undergo surgery or receive chemotherapy first. Conventional contrast-enhanced CT scans may miss small or flat cancer deposits. The FAPI PET/CT technique achieved an accuracy rate of 86%, said Dr. S.P. Somashekhar, Global Director of the institute and lead investigator. The study found that the scan influenced treatment decisions in approximately 18% to 21% of patients. Doctors said improved assessment before surgery could help tailor treatment strategies to individual patients, particularly those with advanced disease.

Ashoka asks Siddaramaiah to respond to sting claims

Opposition leader demands evidence and a probe as allegations of a political conspiracy against Karnataka ministers intensify.

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

Leader of the Opposition R. Ashoka on Sunday urged former Chief Minister Siddaramaiah to respond to the sting operation allegations raised by Chief Minister D.K. Shivakumar, demanding clarity on claims that ministers had been targeted.

Speaking at the BJP office in Malleshwaram, Ashoka said Shivakumar had repeatedly claimed that a sting operation had been conducted against Cabinet ministers and that he possessed information about it. Such statements, he said, had created suspicion about the entire Cabinet.

"Should the ministers continue to live in fear? All 30 ministers are now under suspicion," Ashoka said, demanding that Shivakumar either file an FIR or produce evidence and identify those behind the alleged operation.

Ashoka also called on Siddaramaiah to break his silence, alleging that he had remained quiet even during the special session of the legislature. He demanded that allegations against the BJP and JD(S) be stopped.

Kumaraswamy's claims

Union Minister H.D. Kumaraswamy had alleged that the purported sting operation led the Congress high command to remove Siddaramaiah from the Chief Minister's post. He claimed Siddaramaiah had travelled to Delhi expecting discussions on Cabinet expansion but was confronted with the sting allegations and forced to resign. Kumaraswamy also alleged that a media organisation and the Congress high command were involved.

MLA claims evidence

On Friday, Mandya MLA Ganiga Ravikumar alleged that a Union Minister and a senior Karnataka BJP leader had hired private agencies based in Delhi and Kolkata to target officials in the Chief Minister's Office and Cabinet ministers.

Ravikumar claimed the agencies were provided accommodation at a private hotel in Bengaluru and paid to conduct the operation. Displaying a pen drive, he said evidence relating to a plan to target 10 ministers would be released at an appropriate time.

He said he would urge Chief Minister D.K. Shivakumar to look into the documents. The allegations have triggered demands for evidence and a formal probe.

KPSC recruitment scam: Accused give conflicting statements to ED

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

The Enforcement Directorate is intensifying its investigation into alleged irregularities in Karnataka Public Service Commission's veterinary recruitment, with two key accused reportedly denying the allegations and giving differing accounts during questioning.

The ED is questioning former KPSC chairman Shivashankarappa Sahukar and commission member Geetha in connection with the alleged recruitment scam. Their statements are being examined alongside financial records and other evidence collected by investigators.

Geetha denies role

Geetha has reportedly denied any involvement in the alleged irregularities and told investigators that she had no direct knowledge of the recruitment process beyond attending commission meetings and signing documents.

She is said to have asked officials to direct their questions to Sahukar, stating that she attended meetings before the examination and after the results were announced, and subsequently signed the relevant records.

Investigators have reportedly questioned her explanation, examining whether a member of the commission could have signed official documents without knowing the details of the process. Her alleged statements have not independently established the extent of her role.

Financial transactions under scrutiny

The ED has reportedly gathered information about financial transactions between Sahukar and Geetha, along with documents relating to the dealings. Investigators are also examining allegations that money was collected from candidates and their parents.

The agency is looking into how candidates and their families were allegedly contacted, how money was discussed and collected, and whether commission members were involved.

The allegations remain under investigation, and the accused have denied wrongdoing.

Further questioning planned

Officials are reportedly preparing to confront the accused with the evidence collected so far and conduct further questioning. The in-

CYBER FRAUD LOSSES

Cyber fraudsters drain ₹306 crore from Bengaluru in three years

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

Bengaluru residents have lost a staggering ₹306 crore to cyber fraudsters over the past three years, with criminals increasingly using threats of "digital arrest" to extort money from unsuspecting victims.

According to Bengaluru City Police data, 936 cases were registered in 2024, involving losses of ₹132 crore. In 2025, 217 cases were reported, with victims losing ₹111 crore. As of September 30, 2026, another 69 cases had been registered, involving losses of ₹61 crore.

Despite the decline in reported cases, the amount lost remains substantial, highlighting the growing sophistication of cyber fraud networks.

Police action

Since 2024, Bengaluru police have registered 1,222 cases and arrested 58 accused. They have frozen ₹97.75 crore in various bank accounts, recovered ₹21.33 crore and returned ₹12.44 crore to victims.

Educated citizens, technology professionals and senior citizens are among the primary targets. Fraudsters contact victims through WhatsApp, Telegram and other platforms, posing as officials of investigative agencies.

They threaten victims with fabricated allegations involving drug parcels or illegal money transfers, keep them on video calls for hours and pressure them into transferring large sums under the pretext of a digital arrest.

A senior police officer clarified that no investigative agency conducts digital arrests or demands money from individuals.

Police attribute the decline in cases and losses this year partly to public awareness campaigns and stricter enforcement.

Authorities have urged citizens to remain vigilant and report suspicious calls immediately. They stressed that awareness is essential to prevent cybercriminals from exploiting fear and coercing people into transferring their savings.

Vijayendra warns of siege over FIRs against BJP workers

The BJP has threatened protests at police stations and SP offices, accusing the Congress government of targeting its workers over Form 7 submissions.

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

Karnataka BJP president B.Y. Vijayendra on Sunday warned that the party would lay siege to police stations and district Superintendent of Police (SP) offices if FIRs continued to be registered against BJP workers for submitting Form 7 applications during the Special Intensive Revision (SIR) of electoral rolls.

Addressing the media after the state BJP Core Committee meeting, Vijayendra accused the Congress government of misusing the police and creating confusion over the issue. He said the High Court had also criticised the government's approach.

"If the government continues to register FIRs against our workers, the BJP will not remain silent," Vijayendra warned.

Permanent Resident Certificates

The Core Committee objected to the state government authorising Panchayat Development Officers and municipal commissioners to issue Permanent Resident Certificates. Vijayendra said the power should be restricted to tahsildars and officials above their rank. The party would write to the government and bring the matter to the Election Commission's attention.

Local body polls

With by-elections likely to be announced soon, the BJP would consult JD(S) leaders before finalising its candidate, Vijayendra said. He alleged discrepancies in reservation lists for Zilla Panchayat and Taluk Panchayat elections and urged the government not to delay the polls. The BJP will appoint election in-charges and establish district-level election management committees to prepare for the contests.

We will lay siege to the concerned police stations and SP offices."

— B.Y. Vijayendra, BJP state president

Sting operation and KPSC

On alleged sting operations involving ruling party leaders, Vijayendra said the BJP would respond after the facts emerged. He called for clarity on those behind the operations and the veracity of the allegations.

On alleged Karnataka Public Service Commission recruitment irregularities, he demanded an impartial investigation and strict action against those found guilty. He also urged the government to correct reservation-list discrepancies and conduct local body elections transparently.

PAWNING DISPUTE ENDS IN MURDER; ACCUSED ARRESTED

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

A dispute over the return of a pawned mobile phone allegedly ended in murder, with a man being beaten to death with a wooden club near Vidyapeetha Circle in Bengaluru on Saturday night.

The deceased, Manjunath alias Koli Manju, was allegedly attacked by Palani, who has since been arrested by the C.K. Achukattu police.

According to preliminary information, both men have criminal backgrounds. Manjunath, who worked as a mason, had lent money to Palani a few days ago after the latter pawned his mobile phone with him.

Argument turns violent

The two men met near a bar close to Vidyapeetha Circle on Saturday night. During the meeting, Palani allegedly demanded that Manjunath immediately return his mobile phone, which he had pawned in exchange for money.

The demand led to a heated argument, which soon escalated into a violent confrontation. In a fit of rage, Palani allegedly picked up a wooden club lying nearby and repeatedly struck Manjunath on the head and other vital parts of his body.

Manjunath sustained severe injuries, particularly to his head, and died on the spot, police said.

Following information about the incident, personnel from the C.K. Achukattu police station rushed to the spot and inspected the scene. The body was subsequently shifted to Victoria Hospital for a postmortem examination and completion of the necessary legal procedures.

Police confirmed that Palani had been arrested in connection with the murder. Further investigation is under way to establish the sequence of events leading to the fatal assault.

The incident highlights how a dispute over a financial transaction and the recovery of a pawned possession allegedly escalated into a fatal confrontation between two acquaintances.

MYSURU DASARA GETS OFF TO A VIBRANT START

Gavi Mutt seer inaugurates celebrations with a call to conserve rivers; recalls the grandeur of bygone times.

MYSURU

The legendary Mysuru Dasara 2026 (Nada Habba) got off to a traditional start with Koppal's Gavi Mutt seer Mahaswamiji lighting a lamp and offering flowers to the idol of Goddess Chamundeshwari, the presiding deity of Mysuru, atop the Chamundi Hills here on Sunday.

Dasara has evolved into a people's festival: Seer
Speaking after inaugurating the 11-day festivities, swamiiji said Mysuru Dasara, once a royal celebration, has evolved into a people's festival reflecting Karnataka's cultural heritage, unity and social harmony.

He said that thousands of people worked behind the scenes to make the festival a grand success. He prayed to Goddess Chamundeshwari for good rains, bumper crops, farmers' welfare and prosperity and appealed to the people to uphold ethical values above caste identities.

Recalling the contributions of the Mysuru royal family, he cited Shivanasamudra's power generation and Queen Kempananjammani's contribution to dam construction as examples of commitment to public welfare. He also hailed Siddaganga Mutt seer Shivakumara Swamiji's service to students.

Humanity is the base of world peace. Mutts are the strength of society, they are doing most of the work of the government via Akshara, Anna Dasoha besides spreading the message of peace.

- DK Shivakumar, Chief Minister

"Technology can download almost everything, but not food. We depend on crops grown by farmers," he said, calling for greater attention to agriculture and conservation of the Cauvery, Krishna and Tungabhadra rivers.

The seer also urged people to conserve land and water, plant trees, strengthen village schools and ensure access to education, citing Harekala Hajabba's efforts to establish a school for underprivileged children.

May Goddess bless people and people bless govt: CM

MYSURU

Chief Minister DK Shivakumar on Sunday said Dasara transcended religious and community boundaries, drawing on the traditions of the Vijayanagara Empire and Mysuru rulers. Preserving this legacy for future generations was a collective responsibility, he added.

Speaking at the Dasara inaugural ceremony, he called for an end to caste and religious divisions. Stressing the importance of love, peace, humanity and mutual respect, he appealed to the younger generations to preserve Karnataka's literature, music, folk arts and performing traditions, including Veeragase.

After seeking the blessings of Goddess Chamundeshwari for state and its citizens, the CM sought people's support for his government.

Shivakumar said his relationship with seers was beyond question and clarified that he had never asked them to serve him personally, but had urged them to serve the state. Some people had distorted his remarks, he said, asking people not to be distracted by such interpretations.

"I am a representative of the people, while the seers here represent their devotees and communities. This is a memorable day in my life and marks the beginning of a new chapter," he said.

Praising the Koppal Gavisiddheshwara seer for his contributions, the CM described his work as a model for the country and said the State needed a commitment to water conservation.

Dasara, he said, symbolised unity and collective progress. The government had included Kambala, the traditional buffalo race of Coastal Karnataka, in the festivities to promote Karnataka's art and culture despite opposition, he added.

Mysuru's identity was shaped not merely by its palace but also by people's faith in its cultural heritage, he said. This year's procession would feature tableaux representing the Army, Air Force and Navy.

He also claimed that nearly all states, except one or two, had adopted Karnataka's guarantee schemes. He expressed hope that the prayers of seers would bring prosperity to the state.

'Vote chori': Kharge, Rahul to meet CJI Surya Kant today

BENGALURU

Congress president Mallikarjun Kharge on Sunday said he and Leader of Opposition in the Lok Sabha Rahul Gandhi would meet Chief Justice of India (CJI) Surya Kant between 4 pm and 5 pm on Monday to apprise him of the opposition's concerns over alleged "vote chori" and seek his intervention.

Speaking to reporters in Bengaluru, Kharge accused Prime Minister Narendra Modi and Union Home Minister Amit Shah of creating chaos across the country, alleging that the heavy security deployment and mass detentions during Saturday's protests in Delhi reflected the government's fear of the youth-led agitation.

"We have sought a time between 4 and 5 pm. We will also apprise him, as we cannot demand. Only with folded hands, we can request him," Kharge said, referring to the proposed meeting with the CJI.

"Chaos is being created in the country by the home minister and the prime minister, and everywhere an undeclared emergency is imposed," he added.

Kharge said both he and Rahul Gandhi had written to the CJI seeking an appointment. In a post on X, the Congress president reiterated that they would meet Surya Kant on Monday to apprise him of the situation.

Opposition parties have been protesting since Tuesday, accusing the BJP and the prime minister of facilitating alleged electoral manipulation through what they call "vote chori".

109 migrants die after boat capsizes off Djibouti

GENEVA

At least 109 migrants died, including 15 children, and 116 went missing when a boat sank off the shores of Djibouti overnight on October 8-9, a UN agency said Sunday.

Survivors said the vessel, which was carrying 350 people from Djibouti to Yemen, capsized north of the Djibouti town of Obock, as per a statement by the International Organization for Migration (IOM).

"This is a devastating loss of life. Our thoughts are with the survivors and the families who have lost loved ones or remain without news of their relatives," said Alexandre Coissac, IOM chief of mission in Djibouti, in the statement.

He said IOM teams were on the ground alongside Djiboutian authorities to provide emergency aid. "This tragedy is a stark reminder of the dangers faced by migrants along this migration corridor as they seek economic opportunities" by trying to cross the Bab el-Mandeb Strait to Yemen and then to reach Gulf countries. Among the 109 bodies recovered were 52 men, 42 women and 15 boys -- the statement said.

Over 80 people survived the shipwreck, all Ethiopian nationals. "Poverty, insecurity and the growing impacts of climate change drive many to undertake this journey, despite mounting instability across the Middle East," the IOM said.

Residents have sought night-time inspections by the KSPCB's Bengaluru North regional office to identify those responsible and take action under air pollution control laws.

K'taka plans legal action against hospitals withholding bodies over unpaid bills

The government is reviewing existing provisions after complaints that grieving families face financial pressure while trying to claim deceased relatives' bodies.

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

The Karnataka government is considering a new law to enable legal action against private hospitals that withhold deceased patients' bodies over unpaid medical bills, Health Minister U.T. Khader said.

The Health Department plans to consult private hospital associations and other stakeholders before framing the legislation. The move follows complaints that some hospitals refuse to release bodies until families settle outstanding treatment expenses.

Khader said families should not be forced to borrow money or face additional financial hardship to claim the bodies of deceased relatives.

"Even though laws were introduced in 2007 and 2018, they have not been implemented effectively. I will ensure 100% implementation," Khader said, adding that the existing legal framework needed changes.

He said the 2018 provisions allowed hospitals to seek security for unpaid bills and initiate legal proceedings. Consequently, families often borrowed money to settle dues rather than face a case.

The minister said the government would discuss the matter with hospital associations before finalising the proposed legislation.

Private hospitals raise concerns

Dr. Shobha Prakash, president of the private hospitals' association, said the proposal could create difficulties for healthcare institutions.

"Providing intensive care and medicines involves expenses. Releasing a body without payment of the outstanding bill can be difficult," she said, stressing the need for alternative arrangements.

She agreed with the minister's intention but called for consultations with private hospitals before the government introduced changes.

The proposed legislation aims to address the distress faced by bereaved families while balancing concerns over unpaid hospital bills. The government is expected

Hospital bill dispute

- Proposed move: New law to enable action against hospitals withholding bodies over unpaid bills.
- Existing laws: Provisions introduced in 2007 and 2018.
- Next step: Consultations with private hospital associations and other stakeholders.
- Hospitals' concern: Recovery of treatment expenses and unpaid dues.

What the proposed law seeks to address

The proposed legislation aims to prevent bereaved families from being forced to arrange money before receiving the bodies of deceased relatives. The government plans to review existing legal provisions, which the health minister says have not been effectively implemented. Consultations with private hospital associations are expected to help identify workable alternatives for handling unpaid medical bills while ensuring that families are not subjected to additional distress during bereavement.

Parents allege foul play in Bengaluru woman's expressway death

The parents have also questioned why their daughter, who had travelled to Channapatna by car, was later travelling on a motorcycle.

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

The parents of a 22-year-old woman who died after being hit by a car on the Bengaluru-Mysuru Expressway have alleged assault and foul play, seeking a thorough investigation into the circumstances surrounding her death.

The woman, a resident of Ramohalli near Kumbalgodu, died late on October 2 while attempting to cross the expressway near Sankalagere in Channapatna taluk of Bengaluru South district. Channapatna traffic police initially registered a road accident case.

Her parents later lodged a complaint at Channapatna Town police station, alleging that she had been assaulted shortly before the accident. They named her friend Kiran and his brother Ashith in the complaint.

According to the family, the woman had travelled from Bengaluru to Channapatna to meet Kiran, with whom she was reportedly in a relationship. They alleged that an argument broke out between them and that Kiran and Ashith assaulted her.

The parents have also questioned why their daughter, who had travelled to Channapatna by car, was later travelling on a motorcycle. They sought clarification on why those accompanying her allegedly left the scene after she fell while getting off the motorcycle and attempting to cross the expressway.

The family further alleged that Kiran took the keys of the car in which she had arrived and threatened its driver during the altercation. They suspect he called his brother after the argument and that both left following the incident.

Bengaluru South Superintendent of Police Rohan Jagadeesh said police were examining the allegations and reviewing CCTV footage.

"The parents have raised doubts. Based on that, we are verifying those angles as well. Based on CCTV footage, we will check all aspects. Investigation is on," he said.

The parents, accompanied by Kannada activists, approached the police seeking a detailed probe into their daughter's death.

Kumaraswamy questions CM over alleged sting operation

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

Union Minister H.D. Kumaraswamy on Sunday demanded that Chief Minister D.K. Shivakumar disclose the identity of a person allegedly involved in a sting operation and details of their meeting at a hotel near Mount Carmel College.

Speaking at J.P. Bhavan, Kumaraswamy said Shivakumar had claimed that an attempt was made to conduct a sting operation against him. He also referred to reports that the matter had been discussed at a Cabinet meeting.

"How long did you sit with the person who conducts sting operations at the hotel near Mount Carmel College? Who is that person?" Kumaraswamy asked, urging Shivakumar to reveal the details publicly.

He said the Chief Minister had claimed to possess photographs and information, and had referred to a pen drive allegedly containing details involving people from North India, Union ministers and BJP leaders. Kumaraswamy sought clarification on whom Shivakumar had met, what file was handed over and the purpose of the meeting.

The Union Minister questioned why the alleged sting operation had not been investigated and demanded that the person who supplied the file be identified. He alleged that the controversy had emerged amid discussions about a possible change of Chief Minister in Karnataka.

Kumaraswamy also questioned why five ministers allegedly targeted by the sting operation continued in the Cabinet. He said the issue was serious and could damage the state's reputation, calling for an investigation into the allegations.

He further criticised the state government over unemployment and alleged administrative failures, describing it as anti-people.

He announced a youth-focused programme against the government on October 16 at Buntara Sangha.

On the Special Intensive Revision (SIR) of electoral rolls, Kumaraswamy said every citizen's voting rights must be protected, while criticising political protests over the exercise.

Snakebite fatalities

Karnataka reports 191 snakebite deaths in 10 months

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

Karnataka has recorded 16,229 snakebite cases and 191 deaths between January 1 and October 11, 2026, highlighting concerns over delayed access to treatment, particularly in remote and hilly regions.

The state is among the leading regions in the country in reported snakebite cases, according to the figures cited in the report. The death toll could cross 220 in the next three months if the trend continues, it said.

Over the past three years, 49,965 people have suffered snakebites, resulting in 446 deaths. The figures underline the need for timely medical intervention, especially for people living in areas far from healthcare facilities.

People in hilly and remote areas account for a significant share of those affected. Many victims reportedly lose their lives because they do not receive appropriate treatment in time.

The Health Department has stepped up measures to provide snakebite treatment at primary health centres, taluk hospitals and district hospitals. Anti-snake venom treatment is being made available at these facilities to improve access to emergency care.

The department is also conducting death audits of snakebite fatalities under the supervision of district commissioners. The exercise is intended to examine the circumstances surrounding deaths and help identify gaps in treatment and response.

Year-wise figures

The state recorded 13,202 snakebite cases and 98 deaths in 2024. In 2025, the number of cases rose to 20,634, while deaths increased to 154.

In the first 10 months of 2026, 16,229 cases and 191

deaths were reported. Although the period covered is not a full year, the reported death toll has already exceeded the totals for both previous years.

The figures point to the importance of early medical attention and accessible anti-venom treatment.

Why timely treatment matters

Snakebites can become life-threatening when victims do not receive appropriate medical attention promptly. People in remote and hilly areas may face additional challenges reaching healthcare facilities. Anti-snake venom is a key treatment for bites involving venomous snakes, but medical assessment is essential because not every bite injects venom. The Health Department's reported measures include making treatment available at government facilities and reviewing fatalities through district-level death audits.

Karnataka, Kerala discuss cross-border connectivity projects

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

Karnataka and Kerala have discussed a range of infrastructure proposals to improve connectivity between the neighbouring States, with a focus on the Wayanad and Malabar regions and environmentally sustainable transport solutions.

Kerala Agriculture Minister T. Siddique held a high-level meeting with Karnataka Chief Minister D.K. Shivakumar in the presence of Karnataka State Bioenergy Development Board (KSBD) Chairman S.E. Sudheendra on Sunday.

The discussions covered the proposed Nilambur-Nanjangud railway line, with participants examining environmentally responsible engineering options, including tunnels, to minimise ecological disturbance.

The Kerala delegation also proposed operating two dedicated Kerala State Road Transport Corporation (KSRTC) bus services during prescribed night-restriction hours, subject to applicable legal, environmental and regulatory requirements.

In view of transport restrictions along National Highway 766 through the ecologically sensitive Bandipur Tiger Reserve, the meeting discussed a joint technical feasibility study for a twin-tunnel corridor or an elevated highway connecting the Wayanad region.

The participants also highlighted the need to expedite administrative clearances and implementation processes for the proposed Byrakuppe-Perikkalloor bridge across the Kabini River, which is expected to strengthen connectivity between the two States.

Meanwhile, Sudheendra briefed the Chief Minister on Karnataka's biofuel initiatives, including the formulation and implementation of a new State Biofuel Policy. The initiatives aim to promote the production of biobriquettes, biopellets and compressed biogas (CBG) using the State's biomass resources, in consultation with Rural Development and Panchayat Raj Minister Eshwar Khandre.

He also apprised Shivakumar of discussions with Health and Family Welfare Minister U.T. Khader on creating a systematic mechanism for collecting and storing used cooking oil, supported by suitable infrastructure and an efficient supply chain for biodiesel production.

Plagued by expanding garbage blackspots, uncollected household waste, discarded construction debris near busy commercial intersections, and blatant public nuisances outside schools, frustrated residents across Seshadripuram and Kumara Park West are lashing out at municipal authorities. Despite explicit warning notices and repeated civic complaints, mounting trash piles continue to deface local neighborhoods, creating severe health hazards and exposing deep accountability lapses in local sanitation enforcement.

Ignoring explicit warning notices on the compound wall, residents and passersby continue to dump massive piles of trash outside the Sri Kodandaramaswamy Vidyarthi Seva Sangha in Kumara Park West, sparking severe civic outrage among locals.

Residents on Seshadripuram 1st A Cross Road are frustrated by a persistent garbage black spot that repeatedly reappears despite cleanup efforts. Locals report that passersby dump waste there because uncooperative sanitation workers frequently fail to collect garbage from the site.

B'luru traffic destroying your health, warn doctors

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

The legendary congestion plaguing Bengaluru's streets is extracting a heavy price from its residents, extending far beyond routine frustration to inflict serious physical and mental harm. Medical professionals and gastroenterologists across the city are warning that prolonged hours spent trapped in gridlock are directly triggering and worsening a wide array of digestive disorders.

The daily commuting grind forces thousands of citizens into unhealthy lifestyle habits. Rushed mornings often involve skipping breakfast entirely just to beat the early vehicle rush, while unexpected hours stranded in traffic jams lead individuals to postpone vital bathroom breaks. Furthermore, restricted fluid intake to avoid using unhygienic public restrooms and prolonged periods of sedentary sitting combine to wreak havoc on normal metabolic and bowel functions.

Eminent medical experts emphasize that these daily stressors manifest visibly inside the human body. Dr. C.M. Parameshwara, founder of the Smiles Institute of Gastroenterology, notes that a notable percentage of patients present with ailments directly linked to these punishing transit routines. While traffic does not directly cause disease, a two-hour delay shatters natural biological rhythms, forcing skipped meals, dehydration, and a lack of evening exercise.

Similarly, Dr. Kiran S., additional director of gastroenterology at Fortis Hospital in Yeshwantpur, explains that chronic commuters

HOW COMMUTES DISRUPT DIGESTION

Many commuters skip breakfast to beat the morning rush or deliberately restrict fluid intake to avoid using public or roadside restrooms. Repeatedly postponing bowel movements due to unexpected transit delays can lead to chronic constipation and bloating over time.

frequently suffer from persistent constipation, abdominal bloating, acid reflux, and irregular bowel movements. Reduced physical activity from sitting still for hours hardens stools and slows down the digestive tract significantly.

Additionally, psychological stress plays a major destructive role through the gut-brain axis. Dr. Rishabh Agarwal from Prakriya Hospitals points out that chronic gridlock anxiety elevates cortisol hormones, which directly impair gut performance and cause altered bowel patterns. Compounding this issue, heavy exposure to vehicular air pollution during long commutes introduces toxic particles into the system, further aggravating gastrointestinal vulnerabilities. Health experts urge commuters to proactively manage hydration, meal timings, and stress levels to protect their long-term digestive wellness.

Irregular waste collection frustrates Bengaluru residents

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

Rapidly expanding metropolitan areas across India are grappling with an escalating waste management crisis as municipal garbage collection systems show severe signs of strain. While cities like Bengaluru previously achieved notable success with aggressive waste segregation initiatives, recent months have witnessed a troubling decline in momentum. Public awareness campaigns have slowed down, and residents are increasingly left to deal with overflowing bins due to erratic collection schedules and logistical breakdowns.

For many urban families living in booming residential neighborhoods, the daily reality of waste disposal has become an exhausting chore. Deepali Jain, a resident of a housing society in southeast Bengaluru, described how irregular municipal auto-tipper arrivals—sometimes stretching up to ten days apart—create severe hygiene issues at home. Without frequent pickups, decomposing wet waste begins to rot, producing foul odors and attracting pests within residential kitchens. Many citizens are forced to resort to improvised storage methods, such as wrapping organic refuse in old paper, just to survive the agonizing gaps between collection visits.

The situation grows even more alarming in densely populated, low-income communities where municipal infrastructure is stretched to its absolute limits. Residents in areas like Jai Bheem Nagar report that assigned auto-tippers rarely maintain reliable schedules, leading to uncollected mounds of trash accumulating on street corners and open plots. Local urban planners note that systemic issues, including delayed contractor payments, bureaucratic bottlenecks, and recent re-tendering controversies for garbage collection packages, have severely disrupted daily operational efficiency.

Environmental experts warn that without immediate policy

Rebuilding a reliable, responsive municipal collection framework remains essential to preventing widespread public health hazards and restoring cleanliness across India's major metropolitan centers.

Bengaluru breathes easy after fresh rain

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

Residents across Karnataka are waking up to a refreshing and welcome change in their daily environment as recent weather patterns bring a notable transformation to the state's atmosphere. Following a spell of timely rainfall, the Air Quality Index across major urban centers, including the bustling tech capital of Bengaluru, has stabilized comfortably within the 'Good' and 'Satisfactory' brackets. This atmospheric cleansing has provided millions of citizens with a much-needed break from the usual smog and particulate buildup typically associated with rapid urbanization and heavy vehicular congestion.

Environmental monitoring data released by the Air Pollution Control Board highlights a dramatic drop in airborne pollutants across Bengaluru. On October 11, the city recorded an average AQI ranging between 43 and 45. Critical fine dust metrics, specifically PM2.5 and PM10 concentrations, hovered at low levels of approximately 27 micrograms per cubic meter and 32 micrograms per cubic meter respectively. Furthermore, levels of hazardous industrial and vehicular gases such as nitrogen dioxide and sulfur dioxide remained exceptionally minimal. Even notorious traffic bottlenecks and heavily populated commercial zones like BTM Layout, Jayanagar, and the busy Silk Board Junction maintained readings well below any cautionary thresholds.

The positive environmental trend is not limited to the Silicon City alone. Other prominent urban hubs across the state are enjoying equally pristine conditions. Cities like Mysuru, Mangaluru, and Belagavi reported AQI readings comfortably below 50, securing a solid 'Good' classification. Meanwhile, commercial and transit centers such as Hubballi-Dharwad and Davanagere registered moderate indices between 55 and 75, primarily influenced by local traffic movement. Along the coast, refreshing sea breezes have successfully kept atmospheric humidity and pollution in check. Health specialists note that current outdoor conditions are ideal for morning workouts, walks, and recreational activities.

BWSSB reveals nearly a third of B'luru RO plants dysfunctional

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

As parts of the region grapple with dry conditions, fresh official data has exposed major maintenance issues within Bengaluru's public drinking water network. Statistics shared by the Bangalore Water Supply and Sewerage Board reveal that nearly one-third of the city's reverse osmosis purification units are currently offline, leaving thousands of daily wage workers and local residents struggling to find clean and affordable drinking water near their homes.

According to the municipal board's constituency-wise breakdown, out of 1,117 public drinking water plants distributed across various neighborhoods, a staggering 251 units are entirely non-functional. An additional 113 facilities are currently undergoing long-delayed repair and rehabilitation work. The distribution of these broken units varies widely across districts. The Chickpet Assembly constituency faces the most severe crunch, with 19 out of its 20 purification plants completely shut down. Meanwhile, areas like Basavanagudi report that all of their units are out of service, causing widespread frustration among everyday citizens and local market vendors.

Low-income groups and daily wage earners who rely heavily on these subsidized 20-liter purified water cans—priced at just Rs 5—are bearing the heaviest brunt of the infrastructure collapse. Many residents note that with local borewells drying up and public units locked or broken, they are forced to spend hard-earned money on alternative sources or carry heavy water bottles from far away. Local shopkeepers on S.J.P. Road expressed deep concern, pointing out that what used to be a reliable community lifeline has now turned into an unreliable luxury.

In response to mounting public criticism, BWSSB Chairperson Dr. Manjula N. stated that authorities are implementing a strict performance-based framework. Under this renewed model, private contractors will face financial penalties and withheld payments if units remain non-operational beyond designated repair windows. Furthermore, the board has proposed a digital governance structure utilizing QR codes, unified payments, and automated monitoring systems to ensure better accountability and transparency. Officials also plan to integrate Cauvery river pipeline connections into the purification units as an emergency backup plan to secure a stable water supply for residents.

MALINGARAYA PUJAR, GADAG

At a time when severe drought has left agricultural fields dry across Gadag district, a woman farmer from Mulgund has attracted attention by protecting her flourishing chilli crop with an unusual idea.

Nirmala Vibhuti and her mother, Mahadevi Vibhuti, have cultivated a healthy chilli crop on 2.5 acres despite the shortage of rainfall and falling groundwater levels.

With many farmers struggling to save their crops, Nirmala refused to give up. Facing financial difficulties, she arranged water from a borewell on a neighbouring farm and carefully irrigated her field. By making effective use of every available drop of water, she managed to keep the chilli plants green and healthy.

months of hard work. However, the continuing lack of rainfall has made protecting the crop a major challenge.

Adding an unusual touch to their efforts, Nirmala's brother, Shivanand Vibhuti, came up with a creative way to ward off the so-called evil eye.

Instead of using traditional scarecrows, black pots or old slippers commonly placed in fields, he put up photo banners of Kannada film actress Rachita Ram and popular actress Rashmika Mandanna along the chilli plantation.

The colourful banners have become a talking point among passers-by and social media users.

Members of the Vijayapura District 371(J) Agitation Committee have submitted a memorandum to Vasantha Honamode, chairman of the District Guarantee Schemes Implementation Committee, demanding the extension of Article 371(J) reservation benefits to Vijayapura district.

The activists said the district's exclusion from the special reservation provisions had affected educational and employment opportunities for local residents. They urged Honamode to bring the issue to the attention of the Chief Minister and request the state government to forward a proposal to the Union government seeking the district's inclusion.

The committee said Vijayapura's population of around 25 lakh people should also benefit from the provisions available to the Kalyana Karnataka region. The activists highlighted the need for improved educational opportunities for students, reservation benefits in government recruitment for local youth and access to special development grants.

They demanded an amendment to the relevant constitutional provisions to include Vijayapura district under Article 371(J), arguing that such a move would help address regional disparities and support the district's overall development.

Kolar farmers allege sand in KMF cattle feed

CH NEWS, KOLAR

Allegations that poor-quality cattle feed supplied by the Karnataka Milk Federation (KMF) contains sand have triggered concern among dairy farmers in Kolar district. Farmers have reported cases of cattle suffering from diarrhoea after consuming the feed, with some animals allegedly dying.

Kolar district depends heavily on dairy farming, with the Kolar Milk Union reportedly collecting around eight lakh litres of milk daily. The allegations have caused anxiety among farmers who rely on cattle for their livelihoods.

In Mulbagal taluk, farmers have complained that cattle have been suffering from diarrhoea for the past eight to nine days after consuming the feed. Reports also suggest that some cattle have died. According to the complaints, around four to five kilograms of sand was allegedly found in certain feed bags. The Mulbagal MLA Samruddhi Manjunath has called for immediate intervention by the Chief Minister and the concerned ministers. He warned that farmers could launch a protest by dumping sacks of the allegedly substandard feed in front of dairies if strict action was not taken against those responsible.

Complaints have also been raised about cattle feed supplied to the Kolar and Chikkaballapur milk unions from a manufacturing unit in Sadali Hobli. Concerns have been expressed over whether the feed meets prescribed nutritional standards.

KOMUL president Nanjegowda said an official team had visited the manufacturing unit, collected feed samples and sent them for laboratory testing. He said similar complaints had emerged from other areas and called for a review of the public-private partnership model used for cattle feed production. He urged KMF to take direct responsibility for manufacturing the feed.

Madikeri Dasara overshadowed by rising flex banners
CH NEWS, MADIKERI

The dream of celebrating a flex-free Dasara in Madikeri remains unfulfilled, as banners and posters continue to dominate the town during the annual festivities. Despite concerns over the growing number of flex banners, no effective steps have been taken by the local authorities to control their installation. Banners displaying political leaders' photographs are visible at several locations across the town. The City Municipal Council Commissioner said permission was granted only for temple-related banners. However, many displays focus on greetings rather than the festival's history, religious significance and programme details. Senior residents have urged authorities to make Madikeri Dasara flex-free next year and promote decorative lighting instead.

Madikeri Dasara Committee moves HC over DJs
CH NEWS, MADIKERI

The Dasara Dasha Mantapa Committee in Kodagu district has approached the Karnataka High Court seeking permission to use DJ sound systems during the historic Madikeri Dasara procession scheduled for October 21 and 22.

The committee has requested the court to direct the state government and district administration to grant permission for DJs during the Vijayadashami celebrations. The petition has named the State Chief Secretary, Kodagu Deputy Commissioner, District Superintendent of Police and Karnataka State Pollution Control Board as respondents.

Madikeri Dasara is known for its grand procession, which has attracted people from across Karnataka for nearly four decades. The celebrations feature elaborate tableaux representing various temples, making the procession a major attraction during the festival.

The Dasha Mantapa Committee is responsible for organising the event and comprises representatives of committees from 10 temples, including Karavale Bhagavathi Mahisha Mardini Temple and Kundurumotte Chauti Mariyamma Temple.

During the procession, the temple tableaux are traditionally taken through the streets as part of the festivities. The committee is now seeking judicial intervention to allow DJ sound systems to be used during the event.

The petition comes as preparations for this year's celebrations gather pace. The issue has drawn attention among festival organisers and the public, with uncertainty continuing over whether the requested permission will be granted. The committee is awaiting the High Court's next hearing and its subsequent order. The court's decision is expected to determine whether DJ systems can be used during the Dasha Mantapa procession this year.

With the festival dates approaching, the outcome of the legal proceedings has become an important concern for the organisers, who are preparing for the annual celebrations.

Pralhad Joshi condemns Delhi protest violence

The country possesses existing legal frameworks specifically designed to address actions that compromise public order.

CH NEWS, DHARWAD

Union Minister Pralhad Joshi said on Sunday that every citizen has the right to protest, but no one can take the law into their own hands. He made the remarks while responding to questions about the CJP protest in Delhi.

Joshi criticised protests involving alleged damage to public property, saying such actions cannot be justified in the name of democratic protest. He said the country has laws to deal with activities that threaten public order.

Commenting on demands to restore the names of 13 crore voters, Joshi claimed that around 3.5 crore entries related to deceased persons and three crore duplicate entries were involved. He questioned whether duplicate entries should also be restored. These figures were presented by the minister and were not independently verified.

Joshi also referred to former Chief Minister Siddaramaiah's claim that 50 lakh voters had been deleted. He questioned the discrepancy between the figures cited by the state government and those reportedly received by the Election Commission during the Special Intensive Revision (SIR) process. He argued that officials such as tahsildars, assistant commissioners and deputy commissioners responsible for the exercise function under the state government.

Turning to the debate involving Elon Musk, industrialist Mukesh Ambani and Prime Minister Narendra Modi, Joshi said anyone operating in India must respect the country's laws, security and sovereignty.

Protest in Dharwad against SIR

CH NEWS, DHARWAD

A protest was held in Dharwad condemning the arrest of activists opposing the Special Intensive Revision (SIR) of electoral rolls. The protesters demanded the withdrawal of the SIR process and called for the release of those arrested.

The demonstrators expressed concern over the arrests and said the concerns raised by activists opposing the electoral roll revision should be addressed through democratic means. They urged the authorities to reconsider the process and ensure that voters' rights were protected.

The protesters also called for transparency in the preparation and revision of electoral rolls. They stressed the importance of ensuring that eligible voters are not excluded and that the process is conducted fairly, with proper opportunities for people to raise objections and seek corrections.

The SIR exercise has become a subject of political debate, with concerns raised in some quarters over its implementation and the possibility of eligible voters facing difficulties.

SIR WAR: POLITICAL GAIN AT THE COST OF KARNATAKA’S IMAGE?

Congress, BJP-JD(S) must put electoral integrity above partisan interests.

SHYAM SUNDAR VATTAM

The escalating confrontation between the ruling Congress and the BJP-JD(S) combine over the Special Intensive Revision (SIR) of electoral rolls has turned an essential exercise in electoral housekeeping into a political battlefield in Karnataka. The controversy surrounding Form No. 7, the proposed deletion of names from electoral rolls and the filing of First Information Reports (FIRs) against opposition party workers has raised uncomfortable questions about political intent, administrative impartiality and the credibility of the democratic process.

What should have been a routine effort to ensure that electoral rolls are accurate and up to date has instead become a bitter contest of accusations and counter-accusations. The damage is not confined to the parties involved. It risks tarnishing Karnataka’s image as a state with a vibrant democratic tradition and a politically conscious electorate.

The central question is whether political parties are genuinely concerned about protecting voters’ rights or are using the revision process to mobilise their respective support bases ahead of future elections.

Electoral rolls cannot remain static. The names of deceased voters, people who have permanently shifted residence and those who cannot be traced despite due verification may need to be removed in accordance with election rules. Equally, no eligible citizen should lose the right to vote because of administrative negligence, an incorrect assessment or a politically motivated complaint.

This is where the controversy demands careful scrutiny. Deleting an ineligible entry after proper verification is fundamentally different from deleting the name of a living, eligible voter without adequate notice or an opportunity to establish eligibility. The former protects electoral integrity; the latter undermines it.

Form No. 7, which is used to object to the inclusion of a name or seek deletion of an entry under the prescribed electoral procedures, must not become a political weapon. Every objection must be supported by valid grounds and subjected to verification by the competent electoral authorities. Neither the ruling party nor the opposition can claim the right to determine whose name should remain on the voters’ list.

Congress’s opposition to the SIR process also merits examination. Is the party concerned primarily about the possibility of genuine voters being excluded, or does it fear that a thorough revision could alter the electoral calculations in its strongholds? The concern about disenfranchisement is legitimate, but it must be supported by evidence rather than sweeping political allegations.

The Congress leadership has also been aligned with the broader opposition demand at the national level for the scrapping of SIR. This raises a pertinent question: is the Karnataka government’s stand being shaped by the state’s assessment of the process or by the political position adopted by the party high command? A state government must be guided by constitutional principles, verifiable facts and the protection of citizens’ rights, rather than by political instructions from any party headquarters.

At the same time, the BJP-JD(S) combine cannot be absolved of responsibility. If individual workers have submitted false objections, fabricated information or attempted to manipulate electoral records, the law must take its course. Opposition status does not confer immunity from investigation. However, allegations must be established through evidence, not through political rhetoric.

The filing of FIRs against opposition workers has added another layer of suspicion to the controversy. If offences have been committed, action is justified. But why do the cases appear to be directed at BJP and JD(S) workers? Have complaints against members or supporters of the ruling party been investigated with equal seriousness? Are the same legal standards being applied to all political parties?

These questions deserve transparent answers from the police and the election authorities. The existence of an FIR does not establish guilt, and political affiliation cannot be a substitute for evidence. If action is selective, it will strengthen the opposition’s charge of political vendetta. If the allegations are substantiated, the government must make the evidence and the legal basis for action clear.

The government must also ensure that police investigations do not become a means of intimidating legitimate political activity. Equally, opposition parties must not use allegations of selective action to shield wrongdoing by their workers. The rule of law must apply equally, regardless of political colour.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Drought Relief Cannot Wait
With 217 of 240 taluks declared drought-hit and losses estimated at Rs 50,000 to Rs 60,000 crore, Karnataka faces an unprecedented agrarian crisis. Central teams have begun assessment, but farmers need immediate help, not just surveys. The state’s release of Rs 1,250 crore as first instalment is welcome, but not enough for drinking water, fodder and crop loss. Centre and state must cooperate on this disaster, not politicize it.

Protect Voter Rights
The Special Intensive Revision (SIR) row in Karnataka is worrying. Over 91,000 Form 7 applications filed to delete voters, including 7,561 in Ballari alone where an FIR was lodged, raise serious questions about electoral integrity. The CEO’s assurance that no deletion has happened yet is reassuring, but inquiry into bulk applications is a must. The right to vote is sacred and any conspiracy to delete names must be probed criminally.

PRIVACY IN THE DIGITAL AGE: RIGHTS AND GROWING CHALLENGES

Today, a person’s digital identity has become as important as their physical existence. What we search for, where we go, what we buy, who we communicate with, and what topics we are interested in – all of these leave a digital trail. The question then is not only who has our information, but also how much control we have over it. In this context, the issue of privacy in the digital age has emerged as a serious constitutional and social challenge concerning individual freedom, dignity, and autonomy.

Privacy is an individual’s right to control others’ access to their personal information, identity, and private life. This right gained historical significance in India when the Supreme Court, in K. S. Puttaswamy v. Union of India (2017), recognized privacy as a fundamental right protected by the Constitution. The Court linked privacy to life and personal liberty, dignity, and autonomy. It also clarified that any intrusion on privacy must comply with constitutional standards such as law, legitimate purpose, and proportionality. The proliferation of digital technology has broadened both the scope and challenges of this right.

First, the state’s growing surveillance capabilities pose a significant challenge to privacy. Technologies such as facial recognition, biometric identification, location tracking, and digital communication analysis can be useful in crime control and national security. However, without adequate legal limits and independent oversight, these same technologies can become a means of mass surveillance. Striking a balance between security and privacy is therefore a crucial responsibility of democratic governance.

On the other hand, the massive collection of personal data by private digital companies is also a matter of concern. Social media, e-commerce, search engines, and mobile applications collect vast amounts of data about our behavior. By combining this information from different sources, detailed behavioral profiles of individuals can be created. This makes it possible to personalize services, but this process also creates the potential to influence consumer preferences, behavior, and decisions. Thus, data becomes not just information but a source of economic and social power.

Privacy threats aren’t limited to large-scale data collection. Incidents like doxing involve the disclosure of a person’s address, phone number, photo, or other personal information without their permission. This can lead to online harassment, threats, and physical safety threats. Similarly, deepfake technology has added a new dimension to identity and reputation abuse. Artificial intelligence can be used to create content that appears authentic, using a person’s face or voice. This can impact privacy as well as a person’s dignity and reputation.

Additionally, data breaches and cyberattacks pose a serious threat to citizens’ privacy. Theft of financial information, health records, identity documents, and other sensitive information can lead to identity theft, financial fraud, and blackmail. Compounding the problem is algorithmic profiling. When automated systems make decisions about people based on personal data, inaccurate or biased data can lead to discriminatory outcomes. If such decision-making processes are not transparent, it becomes difficult for individuals to understand or challenge decisions made against them.

Another characteristic of the digital economy is that data is no longer confined to a single entity. Governments, private companies, advertising agencies, app developers, cloud service providers, and technology vendors may be involved in various processes related to an individual’s data. As a result, it becomes difficult to trace the full chain of data flow and establish responsibility. Cross-border data flows further exacerbate this problem, as a citizen’s information may be collected in one country and stored or processed in another.

One of the biggest practical difficulties in protecting privacy is “consent fatigue.” Users click “I Agree” without reading long and complex privacy policies. In this situation, consent becomes a legal formality but no longer a truly informed choice. Another challenge is that technological innovation often moves faster than regulation. However, protecting privacy does not mean completely restricting state security needs or technological innovation. In some circumstances, access to information may be necessary to combat crime and terrorism, and to protect national security. The challenge is to ensure that such powers are lawful, necessary, and proportionate, and that their abuse is effectively monitored and remedied.

India has taken significant steps in this direction through the Digital Personal Data Protection Act, 2023. What is needed now is effective implementation, robust institutional oversight, and a simple grievance redressal mechanism for citizens. Furthermore, “privacy by design” should be integrated into the technology architecture of digital governance and the private sector. This means embracing principles such as data minimization, secure storage, encryption, and limited data collection from the outset, rather than adding privacy protections after a technology is built.

“India must develop a digital system where technology is a tool of power, not control; data is a tool of development, not exploitation; and citizens’ freedom and privacy are equally protected along with security.”

The accountability of digital platforms should also be increased.

DR. PRIYANKA SAURABH

In Indian culture, parents are considered divine. Our values reflect a world of love, sacrifice, and compassion at the feet of a mother, while a father’s life is marked by hard work, responsibility, and protection. Parents put aside their own desires for their children’s future. They sacrifice their own needs to fulfill their children’s. Their happiness resides in their children’s smiles, and their lives are spent nurturing their families. But the irony is that at the very age when they need the most love, respect, and support, many elderly people are neglected in their own homes. If parents are not respected and supported in their lifetime, then the rituals after death are incomplete.

In our society, there is a tradition of remembering our ancestors during Shradddha, Tarpan, and Pitru Paksha. People reverently offer food, give donations, and perform religious rituals. This tradition symbolizes our cultural memory and gratitude to our ancestors. But we must ask ourselves one question: is the meaning of this reverence limited only to the rituals performed after death? If we hesitate to offer our parents two meals a day, a few words of respect, and affection while they are alive, how can a grand feast after their death conceal our insensitivity?

Today, economic prosperity has increased in families, but in many places, emotional prosperity seems to be declining. Amidst the hustle and bustle of modern life, jobs, businesses, and personal ambitions, finding time for parents is becoming increasingly difficult. Many elderly people feel lonely even while living at home. Fathers who toiled to build their homes are now seen as obstacles in their sons’ busy lives in old age. Mothers who suppressed their hunger

“Instead of remembering our parents after their death, it is better to make them realise while they are alive how precious they are to us.”

to feed their children are sometimes neglected in their own homes.

The most painful situation is when living parents are taunted, their needs are considered a burden, and their feelings are disregarded. After death, long queues form to offer flowers to their portraits. Grand celebrations are held for those with whom we never had time to interact during their lifetime. This contradiction is not just a family problem, but also a serious question mark on our social sensitivity.

A father’s life is often a story of struggle for his family. Within limited resources, he cared for his children’s education, marriage, housing, and future. He fulfilled his family’s dreams, putting his own on hold. A mother also devoted a significant portion of her life to the family’s needs. Staying up all night during illness, rejoicing at the smallest joys of her children, and standing as a shield during difficult times – parental love cannot be measured in monetary terms. Therefore, in old age, their greatest right is not property, but respect and belonging.

The growing need for nursing homes also forces us to reflect. Not every nursing home is a symbol of a bad system. Their emotional displacement from the home they built with their own hard work is a test of our family values.

The true meaning of Shradddha lies not just in food and charity, but in devotion. And devotion should not only be for the dead, but also for living parents. Feeding crows, donating to Brahmins, and performing religious rituals may be important in their own right, but if a mother is hungry at home, a father is waiting for medicine, and children are unwilling to even speak to them, we must reconsider the meaning of our religion and karma.

Serving parents isn’t a favor. It’s not even an attempt to fully repay a debt no child can ever repay. It’s simply a duty – a human duty, a familial duty, and a moral duty. Sitting with them for a while, listening to them, taking care of their medications, showing them respect, understanding their likes and dislikes, and sharing their loneliness – these small acts can become a great joy for them.

It’s easy to offer flowers after death, but difficult to wipe someone’s tears while they’re still alive. Putting a garland on a photo is easy, but sitting for a few minutes every day and listening to your parents is the true test. A greater virtue than hosting a feast is to respectfully feed your living parents. Before searching for God at pilgrimage sites, it’s important to recognize the two faces at home who gave meaning to our lives.

Therefore, Shradddha and Pitru Paksha should not only remind us of our departed ancestors, but also remind us of our responsibility towards our living parents. Before offering Pind Daan, there should be a gift of love; before rituals, there should be compassion; and before devotion, there should be service. Because at the feet of our parents resides not only a pilgrimage site, but the world of our own roots.

Honoring them while they’re alive is the greatest tribute. Bringing joy to their eyes while they’re alive is the greatest offering. And there is no greater act of righteousness than sharing their loneliness while they’re alive.

BEYOND THE FIRST JOB: HELPING WOMEN BUILD LASTING CAREERS

Getting women into the workforce is an important step toward equality, economic independence and social progress. But getting a job is only the beginning. The larger challenge is helping women stay in work, progress in their careers and build stable professional lives.

Across many societies, women enter education and employment in growing numbers, yet their careers may be interrupted by family responsibilities, unsafe workplaces, inadequate childcare, unequal opportunities or social expectations. Therefore, true empowerment cannot be measured simply by how many women receive their first job. It must also be measured by how many are able to remain, grow and succeed in the workplace.

One of the biggest barriers to lasting careers is the unequal distribution of household responsibilities. Even when both partners work, women often continue to carry a larger share of childcare, eldercare, cooking and household management. This can leave women with less time and energy for professional development. A career break may then become unavoidable, especially after marriage or childbirth.

Flexible work arrangements can make a significant difference. Flexible working hours, hybrid options where appropriate, predictable schedules and opportunities to return after career breaks can help women balance professional and family responsibilities without permanently sacrificing their careers. Flexibility should not mean reduced ambition or fewer opportunities for advancement. It should mean creating systems that recognize the realities of modern family life.

Workplace culture also matters enormously. A woman may obtain a job but leave because she feels undervalued, excluded or unsafe. Respectful workplaces, clear policies against harassment, fair promotion systems and mechanisms for reporting concerns are essential. Women should be able to concentrate on their professional responsibilities without constantly having to overcome unnecessary social or workplace barriers.

Career progression is equally important. Keeping women in entry-level positions without providing opportunities for learning and advancement is not genuine empowerment. Women need access to training, mentoring, leadership development and challenging assignments. Organizations should evaluate employees on their skills, performance and potential rather than assumptions about gender or family responsibilities.

Pay equity is another important part of lasting employment. Equal work should receive fair compensation, and salary structures should be transparent enough to reduce unjustified disparities. Financial independence becomes much more meaningful when women have opportunities to earn, save, invest and progress economically throughout their careers.

Career breaks should also be viewed differently. Taking time away from employment to raise children, care for parents or deal with family responsibilities should not automatically destroy a person’s professional future. Employers can develop returnship programmes, refresher training and re-entry pathways that help experienced professionals reconnect with the workplace.

The first job opens the door. A supportive system helps women build the career beyond it.

Technology can further support women’s careers. Online learning, digital collaboration and remote-work tools can create opportunities for women who face geographical or family-related constraints. At the same time, digital access and skills must be widely available so that technology does not create another form of inequality.

Schools and educational institutions can contribute by encouraging girls to develop not only academic knowledge but also confidence, communication, digital skills, financial literacy and career awareness. Young women should be encouraged to imagine careers as long-term journeys rather than simply as ways to obtain their first salary.

Businesses, too, benefit when women stay and grow. Organizations retain experienced employees, reduce recruitment costs and gain from diverse perspectives. Women who remain in the workforce can eventually become mentors and leaders, creating a positive cycle for the next generation.

The goal, therefore, should not simply be “more women at work.” The goal should be more women with stable, meaningful and rewarding careers. Employment is the entry point; retention, growth and leadership are the real measures of progress.

Empowerment begins when a woman gets an opportunity. It becomes meaningful when she has the freedom and support to continue that journey. A society that wants lasting equality must move beyond helping women enter the workplace and start building systems that help them stay, grow and thrive.

WHY EVERYONE NEEDS ONE LOYAL WORK FRIEND

In every office, there are colleagues, teammates, collaborators, and then, if you are lucky, there is that one person. The one loyal office mate. Not your work bestie for coffee and gossip, but a constant. The person who will tell you when you have spinach in your teeth before a presentation and when your idea is genuinely bad before you pitch it to the boss.

We talk a lot about networking, about building a wide circle, about personal branding. LinkedIn tells us to connect with 500+ people. But survival, and more importantly growth, in the modern workplace rarely depends on 500 weak ties. It depends on one strong one.

“Everyone needs a mentor, everyone needs a manager. But more than both, everyone needs that one loyal person in the next cubicle who has your back.”

UMMI JAAN

First, let’s be honest about what an office really is. It is not just a place of work. It is a place of constant low-level evaluation. Your affairs are evaluated, your tone is evaluated, your lunch break is evaluated. That kind of sustained scrutiny is exhausting. A loyal office mate is the one place where you can take the mask off for ten minutes. You can say, “I have no idea what I’m doing in this project,” without fear that it will become tomorrow’s corridor news. That emotional safety valve is not a luxury; it is essential for mental health. Studies on workplace loneliness show it is as damaging as any other form of isolation. Having one trusted person cuts through it.

Second, a loyal colleague makes you professionally better. Friends flatter, loyalists give feedback. The loyal office mate is the one who will stay back for five minutes to proofread your report, who will tell you that you interrupted the client three times in the meeting, who will remind written rules, shifting alliances, and moments of unfairness. You cannot understand it all alone. You need someone to decode the silence after you spoke, to tell you that the manager was having a bad day and it wasn’t about you, to warn you when you are about to step on a landmine. A loyal mate doesn’t pull you into groupism; they give you perspective. They become your reality check when the echo chamber of your own mind gets too loud.

People often say, “Don’t make friends at work.” That’s the bus in a team meeting. It means giving credit where it is due, especially when you are not in the room.

How do you find such a person? You don’t find them by hunting. You find them by being one. Be the person who listens without immediately reporting, who helps without keeping score, who celebrates without jealousy. Trust is built in small, boring moments — covering a shift, sharing a contact, admitting your own mistake first.

In an age of hybrid work, Slack messages, and constant you of that deadline you forgot. They are invested in your success, not threatened by it. When you win, they genuinely clap. When you lose, they don’t distance themselves. That kind of honesty is rarer than talent.

Third, they help you navigate office politics without becoming political yourself. Every organization has un-cynical advice from people who had bad experiences. Better advice is: don’t make work your only place for friends, but do find one true friend at work. The difference matters. You don’t need to share your deepest secrets or spend weekends together. Loyalty in the office is different. It means confidentiality. It means not throwing you under job-hopping, we are more connected than ever and more alone than ever at work. Your resume might get you the job, your skills might get you the promotion, but it is that one loyal office mate who will make you want to stay, who will make the bad days bearable and the good days memorable.

THE SILENT WEIGHT FATHERS CARRY EVERY DAY

We talk easily about a mother’s sacrifice. We have poems, songs, WhatsApp forwards and awards for her. We rarely talk about fathers. Not because they sacrifice less, but because they are taught to hide it better.

A father’s struggle is often invisible because he is expected to be invisible — a provider, a background figure who makes things work without making noise about it. His love is not expressed in daily kisses and long conversations, but in overtime, in EMIs paid on time, in saying “you buy it, I don’t need it.”

The first unseen struggle is the pressure to never break down. From the time a man becomes a father, he is handed an unwritten contract: you will be strong. You will not cry when the baby is born because you have to hold everyone else. You will not panic when the school fees double, you will just find a way. You will not complain about the boss who insults you, because you have a family waiting at home. So he learns to swallow anxiety, to turn fear into silence. We call it stoicism. Psychologists call it emotional suppression, and it is killing men slowly.

The second struggle is financial anxiety that never sleeps. A father is often the default emergency fund. Job loss, medical bill, leaking roof, college admission — the expectation is that he will figure it out. I have seen fathers in Bengaluru taking a second job driving cabs at night after working nine hours in an office, just because their daughter wanted to study engineering in a private college. He will never tell her he sleeps four hours. He will only ask, “How was your exam?”

Third is the loneliness of being needed but not known. Children run to their mother for a bad dream, for a secret, for comfort. They go to their father for permission, for money, for a signature. Over years, this creates a strange distance. He is respected, maybe even feared a little, but not intimately known. He wants to be hugged without being asked for something. But he doesn’t know how to ask for it, so he sits a little away, watching TV a little louder, becoming a little more of a stranger in his own house.

Fourth is the struggle of changing roles without a manual. Today’s father is not his own father. He is expected to be a provider and be present, be strict and be friendly, be traditional and be progressive. He is told to help in the kitchen, but also to work harder because expenses have doubled. He is told not to be toxic, but no one teaches him how to be tender when he himself was never held tenderly.

And finally, the struggle of aging without acknowledgment. When children grow up and fly away, mothers often vocalize their empty nest. Fathers just get quieter. His body hurts — back pain from years of two-wheeler rides, eyesight weak from late nights, sugar and BP from stress eating — but he will say, “I am fine, don’t waste money on checkups.”

We need to change the way we see fathers. Not as ATMs, not as superheroes who don’t feel pain, but as humans who are tired, scared, and trying their best.

If you are a father reading this, your unseen efforts are seen. Your silence is not weakness. It is okay to say you are tired. It is okay to ask your son to just sit with you. It is okay to not have all the answers.

And if you have a father, maybe today just ask him not about what he can do for you, but how he is. Not “Appa, I need money,” but “Appa, did you sleep well?” You will be surprised how much that one question weighs after years of silence.

“Fathers don’t need a trophy. They need to be heard before their struggles become unseen forever.”

YOUR HOUSE NEEDS TO BREATHE LIKE YOU

We spend a fortune choosing tiles, paint shades, modular kitchens and false ceilings. We ask about Vaastu, about square footage, about parking. We rarely ask the most basic question: does this house breathe? In our race to seal ourselves from dust, noise and heat, we have built airtight boxes and then complained that the box feels suffocating. Ventilation is not a luxury feature. It is the difference between a house that keeps you healthy and a house that slowly makes you sick.

My grandparents’ home in Mysuru was never called well-ventilated in a brochure. It simply was. It had high ceilings, a central courtyard, windows that faced each other, and a kitchen that had a vent that actually worked. You could feel the air move even in May. Today’s apartments have three bedrooms, two balconies that have been converted into storage, and windows that open onto another building two feet away. We have ACs, air purifiers and scented candles to mask what one cross-breeze could have solved.

The science is straightforward and unforgiving. A poorly ventilated house traps carbon dioxide, cooking fumes, VOCs from paint and furniture, moisture from bathrooms and human sweat. CO2 levels in a closed bedroom overnight can easily cross 2000 ppm. You wake up groggy, with a headache, and blame it on stress. It is not stress. It is your own stale air. Children studying in such rooms lose concentration faster. The elderly feel more fatigued.

Then comes the invisible enemy — dampness. Without air circulation, moisture from kitchens and bathrooms has nowhere to go. It settles on walls, behind cupboards, on ceilings. In Bangalore’s monsoon, I have seen new flats develop black mold within a year. That mold is not just an ugly patch. It releases spores that trigger allergies, asthma, and chronic coughs. We then spend thousands on medicines and dehumidifiers instead of just opening two opposite windows for twenty minutes a day.

Ventilation is also about temperature and money. A house that breathes stays cooler by 3 to 4 degrees naturally. Cross-ventilation pulls hot air out and brings cooler air in, especially in the early morning and late evening. That means your AC runs less, your electricity bill is lower, and your carbon footprint shrinks. In a state where we face both scorching summers and power shortages, this is common sense, not climate activism.

There is a mental health angle we ignore. Natural air and light regulate our circadian rhythm. A bright, airy room feels hopeful. A dark, stuffy room feels heavy, no matter how expensive the interior design is. During the pandemic, we all learned what it feels like to be trapped indoors. Some of us never unlearned the habit of keeping everything shut.

Builders must be held accountable too. Ventilation should not be an afterthought. Building bye-laws mandate setbacks and window sizes for a reason. But what we get is often a tiny sliding window in the name of a ventilator. Buyers must demand better — windows on at least two sides of a room, a kitchen with an exhaust that vents outside, bathrooms with a real shaft, and balconies that remain balconies.

If you live in a house that doesn’t breathe, you can still fix it. Open opposite windows for at least 30 minutes in the morning and evening to create cross-draft. Never block ventilators with cupboards. Use exhaust fans honestly, not just as a light. Keep at least one door open to a balcony. And let sunlight in: sunlight is nature’s best disinfectant.

“A house is not just four walls and a roof. It is a lung. If it cannot breathe, you won’t either.”

BLACK HAIR: TIMELESS, POWERFUL, AND INFINITELY BEAUTIFUL

If you have ever seen black hair in direct sunlight, you know it is never just black. It is blue-black, it is chestnut-black, it is ink with a hint of wine. It holds light instead of reflecting it loudly, like a secret. In a world obsessed with changing hair color every season, black hair remains a quiet, confident statement.

There is something undeniably striking about black hair. It frames the face with definition. Whether it is porcelain skin or deep brown skin, black hair creates a contrast that makes features pop. Eyebrows look sharper, eyes look brighter, skin glows warmer against it. It is nature’s own contour. That is why in portraits, from Raja Ravi Varma to modern fashion magazines, black hair never goes out of style. It does not need to try.

But black hair is not just about looks. It is about what it says.

In India, black hair has always been more than beauty. It has been culture, health, and pride. Our grandmothers oiled it on Sunday mornings, braided it with jasmine, tied it with care. Thick, long, black hair was seen as a sign of good health, good genes, good care. Ayurveda talks about it as a balance of the body. Maybe that is why even today, when we see someone with naturally dense, shiny black hair, we instinctively think — well-nourished, well-rested, well-rooted.

What I love most about black hair is its versatility. It can be anything and still look powerful. Left loose, it looks like a river at night — deep, flowing, mysterious. Tied in a tight bun, it looks sharp, professional, no-nonsense. In a braid, it looks traditional and graceful. In a short pixie or a blunt bob, black hair looks incredibly modern and edgy. The same color, a hundred personalities. Blonde and brown often need cuts and colors to create drama. Black hair brings its own drama.

There is also a myth that black hair is boring or common. That myth comes from people who have not looked closely. No two black heads are the same. There is jet black, soft black, brownish-black that turns golden in the sun, black that has a natural wave and catches shadows beautifully. Under a microscope, black hair has the most melanin, which makes it the strongest, thickest strand among all hair colors. That strength shows. It is less prone to breakage from sun damage, it holds its youth longer, greys later and more gracefully with silver strands that look like stars.

In fashion, black hair is having a real comeback. For years, international beauty standards pushed lighter hair as desirable. Now models, actresses and influencers are reclaiming their natural black. From Deepika Padukone’s glossy waves to Zendaya’s inky curls to the stark black bob on a Paris runway, black hair is being celebrated as high-fashion, not just traditional. It is seen as bold, not basic.

Of course, black hair needs love too. It shows dryness faster because it does not reflect shine unless it is healthy. Oiling, gentle shampooing, and less heat styling are its best friends. But when cared for, nothing shines like well-kept black hair. It has a mirror-like, glassy shine that no serum can fake. It is the kind of shine you see from across the room.

India's draft steel policy targets 604 mn tonnes capacity

NEW DELHI

A draft steel policy released by the government aims to nearly triple India's crude steel capacity, from about 220 million tonnes now to 604 million tonnes by 2047. The policy sets out a roadmap for cutting carbon emissions in the sector and for improving the supply of iron ore and coking coal to meet the expected rise in demand. The two raw materials make up over 65-70 per cent of the cost of making steel. India meets most of its iron ore needs on its own but imports nearly all the coking coal it uses.

Akhilesh predicts power shift in UP in 2027 Assembly polls

The SP leader says his party will form the government with a record number of seats during the 2027 assembly polls.

LUCKNOW

Samajwadi Party (SP) chief Akhilesh Yadav on Sunday asserted that a change of government was certain in the 2027 Uttar Pradesh Assembly elections, claiming that public discontent with the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) had already set the process in motion.

Speaking to reporters after paying tribute to Loknayak Jayaprakash Narayan on his birth anniversary at the Jayaprakash Narayan International Centre (JPNIC) in Lucknow, Yadav said the BJP would be voted out of power in the next Assembly elections.

Invoking Jayaprakash Narayan's Total Revolution movement, Yadav said its principles remained relevant in challenging the ruling establishment.

"The process of change has begun. The anguish among the public will accelerate the process of change," Yadav said after garlanding Narayan's statue at the memorial.

The SP chief also targeted Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath over Ayodhya, days after challenging him to contest elections from the holy city.

Responding to the chief minister's questions concerning Ayodhya, Yadav said individuals displaying arrogance would be unable to withstand the strength of the PDA alliance.

PDA stands for Pichhda, Dalit and Alpsankhyak, representing backward classes, Dalits and minorities. Yadav claimed that the BJP was concerned about the alliance's

ICMR to set up high-altitude medical research centre

SHIMLA

Union Health and Family Welfare Minister J.P. Nadda will on Monday lay the foundation stone of the ICMR Centre for High Altitude Medicine and Public Health Research (ICMR-CHAMP) at Keylong in Himachal Pradesh's Lahaul-Spiti district, officials said on Sunday.

The Indian Council of Medical Research (ICMR) is setting up the centre under the Department of Health Research of the Union Ministry of Health and Family Welfare. It is meant to strengthen multidisciplinary research, innovation and capacity building in the country's high-altitude and climate-sensitive regions.

The Himalayan ecosystem presents distinct public health challenges because of high altitude, extreme weather, difficult terrain, geographical isolation and increasing climate variability. These conditions affect disease patterns, access to healthcare,

Security personnel brought from borders: CJP

NEW DELHI

The Cockroach Janta Party (CJP) on Sunday claimed that troops from "Naxal (Maoist)-affected and border areas" have been brought in to enforce curbs in the national capital to restrain protests, as it reiterated its demand for the resignation of Chief Election Commissioner (CEC) Gyanesh Kumar over alleged irregularities in the Special Intensive Revision (SIR) of electoral rolls.

Addressing a press conference hours after being released by a Delhi court following preventive arrest, CJP co-convenor Saurav Das said: "The entire city of Delhi has been turned into a cantonment for the last few days."

"Between 30,000 and 40,000 security personnel have been called in. Troops from Naxal-affected areas, Bengal and Kashmir, including BSF personnel from border areas, have been airlifted to Delhi. More than 40,000 personnel have reportedly been deployed, and the city has been placed under heavy restrictions," he claimed.

"This is creating a major problem. If you want to create a negative atmosphere around protesters and a certain movement, you do not just make things difficult for the protesters; you also create problems for ordinary citizens who may not even be participating in the protest.

This creates a negative image of the movement, and that is exactly what is happening in Delhi," he stated.

Das added that the closing of metro stations, suspending trains coming to Delhi from other states, and shutting shops are affecting ordinary people.

Mentioning that Sunday might have witnessed more footfall at shops, he said: "What purpose does shutting shops serve? The government believes this will create a negative atmosphere against the youth and this movement.

Clash erupts at UP Cong HQ during new state chief swearing-in

LUCKNOW

An internal rift within the Congress came to the fore at the party's Uttar Pradesh Committee headquarters on Sunday, when a clash broke out between supporters of former State party President Ajay Rai and newly appointed State party President Aradhana Misra Mona during the swearing-in ceremony of the new leadership.

The altercation reportedly led to heated exchanges, pushing and shoving, and physical clashes among party workers, creating chaos at the state Congress headquarters.

The commotion continued for around half an hour, while a video purportedly showing the incident has been circulating widely on social media.

Ajay Rai arrived at the State Congress headquarters along with his supporters to attend the swearing-in ceremony of Aradhana Misra Mona as the new State party President and Imran Masood as the state unit Working President. During the proceedings, a disagreement reportedly arose between Rai and a woman party leader while they were engaged in a conversation.

Following the exchange, Rai allegedly left the office in anger. His supporters subsequently demanded that the woman leader be removed from her position and issue an apology.

They reportedly said that Rai would return to the state Congress office only after their demands were fulfilled. Some people also alleged that women were treated indecently during the altercation. However, these allegations have not been independently verified.

‘Show proof for your claims before spreading anarchy’

MUMBAI

Evidence or facts should be put forward before anyone spreads anarchy in the state just for the sake of it, Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) leader Ram Kadam said on Sunday, condemning the protests that have engulfed the national capital and other major cities.

"Ever since he (Rahul Gandhi) returned from the US, it is unclear what has come over him and what is driving his actions. Is foreign funding behind his attempts to create unrest here? The voter list purification process has been carried out during the tenures of several Prime Ministers, from Jawaharlal Nehru to Manmohan Singh," Kadam said.

"More than 6.3 crore voters have left their original homes. It's a transparent process. If you have concrete proof and evidence, present it, but spreading anarchy in the state in the form of protests owing to foreign funding can't be supported," he said.

Responding to remarks by NCP-SP MLA Rohit Pawar about the death of former Nationalist Congress Party (NCP) Chief and Deputy Chief Minister Ajit Pawar, Kadam said, "Rohit Pawar has engaged in political theatrics by claiming that he would reveal the mystery behind the muffler on October 10. Ajit Dada Pawar has passed away, and 15 days ago, Rohit Pawar said he would reveal the mystery, but October 10 has passed without any revelation. This shows that he is engaging in cheap political stunts."

Pawan Kalyan seeks Jana Sena's local representation

AMARAVATI

Jana Sena Party cadres must get adequate representation in the upcoming local body elections, Andhra Pradesh Deputy Chief Minister Pawan Kalyan said on Sunday, adding that their sacrifices for the formation and success of the ruling alliance deserved recognition.

Launching the 'Adavitalli Bata 2.0' programme at Kakavada in Polavaram district's Rampachodavaram constituency, Kalyan asked alliance leaders to honour their responsibilities towards party workers and make sure they were given due respect and representation in local governance.

Party cadres, known as Janasainiks, had worked selflessly in the 2024 general elections and put the interests of the State and the alliance ahead of their own political ambitions, the Jana Sena leader said.

PoK families seek answers months after brutal crackdown by Pak

NEW DELHI

Months after Pakistani security forces launched a brutal crackdown on peaceful protesters in Pakistan-occupied Kashmir (PoK), families of victims continue to seek answers amid allegations of human rights violations, wrongful detentions, and extrajudicial killings, according to a recent report.

The unrest in PoK initially erupted over rising electricity prices and the increasing cost of living but gradually developed into a wider challenge to the region's constitutional and political structure. The Joint Awami Action Committee (JAAC), a coalition of grassroots activists, called for a boycott of elections held in phases from July 27 to August 10, arguing that the existing system failed to adequately represent the interests and aspirations of local residents.

According to a recent report published by The Independent, the move was followed by a ban on the group and a violent crackdown on protesters by Pakistani security forces. Subsequently, the Pakistani government proscribed the JAAC under stringent anti-terrorism laws, arrested several of its leaders, and launched a security operation to suppress the movement. The operation was accompanied by allegations of human rights abuses, arbitrary detention and extrajudicial killings, the report stated.

The report also highlighted the case of 26-year-old Fahad Barkat, whose sister spent more than two months believing that he had been detained by the police and hoping that he would eventually be released. Barkat had gone to a military hospital in Rawalakot to donate blood but never returned home.

Rahul-Priyanka's aggressive street shows in Oppn's power game

NEW DELHI

It has been amusing to watch how the Gandhi siblings have been conducting themselves of late. From elbowing and pushing police personnel to dangling from a bus, they seem to have suddenly discovered a more aggressive style of politics. Rahul Gandhi and his Congress party have rarely been respectful in their words about Prime Minister Narendra Modi. The PM has long been a target of the Gandhis and other Congress leaders, who have often used the harshest language against him. Now, the confrontation has moved beyond words. They are taking to the streets, getting into scuffles with police personnel, attempting to enter government offices, lying on roads and shouting at security personnel.

GUWAHATI

The Narcotics Control Bureau (NCB) arrested two drug traffickers and seized 53.937 kg of methamphetamine/WY tablets, suspected to be originating from Myanmar and valued at approximately Rs 43 crore in the illicit market, in Guwahati, an official said on Sunday. The NCB, Guwahati, achieved a significant breakthrough on October 6 in its sustained campaign against organised narcotics trafficking with the help of an intelligence input, said an official statement. Army detects, destroys 5 landmines along LoC in Poonch

JAMMU

The Army said on Saturday that it has detected and safely destroyed five landmines along the Line of Control (LoC) in Jammu and Kashmir's Poonch district. "While two landmines were detected by an Army patrol party near the border fence in Basoni top area today morning, three others had been found in the same area the previous day," the Army officials said. "The explosives were subsequently destroyed through controlled explosions by the Bomb Disposal Squad of the Army without causing any damage," officials added. The forward areas along the LoC are dotted with landmines as part of an anti-infiltration obstacle system. However, heavy rainfall can sometimes wash away the mines, causing them to surface in areas where they may pose a potential risk. Landmines that move away from their original mapped positions due to weather and other reasons are technically called 'drift landmines'.

Kejriwal's 2015 video: Rijiju questions Oppn on SIR

The video, which dates back to January 2015, shows Kejriwal raising concerns over alleged irregularities, including duplicate entries and individuals holding multiple voter identity cards.

NEW DELHI

Union Parliamentary Affairs Minister Kiren Rijiju on Sunday shared a 2015 video of Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) national convener Arvind Kejriwal, in which he is seen demanding an intensive revision of electoral rolls over alleged irregularities and duplicate entries in Delhi's voter lists. The video has intensified the political confrontation over the ongoing Special Intensive Revision (SIR) of electoral rolls, with the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) citing past statements by Opposition leaders to defend the exercise against criticism from the AAP and Congress. Sharing the video on X, Rijiju questioned Kejriwal and Congress leader Rahul Gandhi over their current opposition to the revision process.

"After Kapil Sibal, once again Kejriwal Ji's old video demanding SIR exposed himself and Rahul Gandhi Ji," Rijiju wrote. In January 2015, ahead of the Delhi Assembly elections, Kejriwal and the AAP had alleged serious discrepancies in electoral rolls, claiming that several individuals possessed multiple voter identity cards. Kejriwal had then claimed that approximately 3.96 lakh to four lakh people allegedly held around 11.5 lakh voter cards. The AAP had also questioned similarities between electoral rolls in Delhi and neighbouring states, including Haryana and Uttar Pradesh, alleging that such discrepancies could facilitate electoral manipulation. The latest exchange follows Rijiju's criticism of the Congress over remarks made by senior advocate and former

Union Law Minister Kapil Sibal in Parliament concerning deletions from electoral rolls. Opposition parties have described the ongoing SIR exercise as "vote chori", demanded its cancellation and raised concerns about transparency and the possible exclusion of eligible voters. They have also sought action against Chief Election Commissioner Gyanesh Kumar. The BJP maintains that the revision process addresses electoral-roll irregularities, while the Opposition continues to question its implementation and accountability.

Kolkata cops issue fresh notice to TMC MP

KOLKATA

Kolkata Police on Sunday served a fresh interrogation notice to Trinamool Congress general secretary and Diamond Harbour MP Abhishek Banerjee in connection with the August 27 scuffle involving party workers, police personnel and Kolkata Municipal Corporation (KMC) staff outside his Camac Street office in central Kolkata. The fresh notice directs Banerjee to appear for questioning at Shakespeare Sarani Police Station on Monday. The police station has jurisdiction over the office where the incident took place. A team from Shakespeare Sarani Police Station visited Banerjee's residence in Kalighat, South Kolkata, on Sunday afternoon and served the notice. Police had attempted to serve an interrogation notice at the same residence on October 8 but could not do so because the MP was in New Delhi. The latest notice follows a

Rahul Gandhi urges youth to keep protesting

CHENNAI

Lok Sabha Leader of the Opposition and senior Congress leader Rahul Gandhi on Saturday pledged support for young protesters and said the opposition would continue its campaign to defend the Constitution and defeat those he accused of attacking it. In remarks shared on X during his Chennai visit for the "Chhatron Ki Goonj" student outreach programme, Gandhi challenged the Union government to arrest opposition leaders and young people, declaring that they would not retreat. His comments came amid police action against people attempting to join a protest in Delhi demanding the removal of Chief Election Commissioner Gyanesh Kumar. Gandhi accused Prime Minister Narendra Modi and the RSS of cowardice, saying more than a decade of confronting them had given him an understanding of their approach. "I've been fighting Narendra Modi and the RSS for over a decade now. I understand them like you would understand your opponent," he said. He targeted Home Minister Amit Shah, RSS chief Mohan Bhagwat, Kumar and National Security Adviser Ajit Doval, describing them as the "villains of this story". Gandhi claimed that the space available to these figures was narrowing as their opponents intensified their efforts. "We are closing that space," he said. Challenging PM Modi over the deployment of police, Gandhi said the government could mobilise as many personnel as it wanted and arrest leaders, young people or the opposition. "We are surrounding you, and we are not going to back down," he asserted. He pledged to protect the voice of the Indian people and prevent a repetition of what he alleged had happened to the country over the past 10 to 15 years. Expressing pride in India's youth, he urged them to "keep protesting" and assured them of the opposition's support. The Delhi protest was organised by the Cockroach Janta Party at Jantar Mantar. Police said more than 3,000 people trying to reach the venue were detained, alongside over 600 people with criminal records held as a preventive measure.

No official US offer to sell F-35 fighters to India: IAF chief

JODHPUR

Indian Air Force chief Air Chief Marshal A.P. Singh on Saturday clarified that the United States had made no official offer to sell its fifth-generation F-35 stealth fighter aircraft to India, dismissing speculation that Washington had offered the advanced combat jets to New Delhi and that India had rejected the proposal. Singh made the remarks at a press conference on the sidelines of the concluding ceremony of the multinational air exercise Tarang Shakti-2026 in Jodhpur. Sitting alongside the commander of the US Air Force's Pacific Air Forces (PACAF), he responded to a question about the reported F-35 offer with a humorous observation. "These people don't even let us go near the aircraft, and you are talking about selling it to us," Singh said. His comments sought to clear the air amid speculation over India's reported decision not to proceed with the acquisition of the American stealth fighter. The IAF chief's statement indicated that no formal offer had been made to India, countering reports suggesting that New Delhi had turned down a US proposal.

Singh also addressed the possibility of India acquiring Russia's fifth-generation Su-57 fighter aircraft. He said the Russian offer was yet to be considered and that no decision had been taken on the matter. India is continuing to evaluate its future combat aircraft requirements while focusing on strengthening indigenous defence manufacturing. Meanwhile, Singh described the conclusion of Tarang Shakti-2026, the second edition of the multinational air exercise, as a proud moment for the Indian Air Force. "It is indeed a very proud day for me today that we are in the final stage of Exercise Tarang Shakti, the second version of it," he said. The IAF chief recalled that the exercise began in 2024, when the plan was to organise it every two years.

4.2-magnitude quake jolts Uttarkashi, triggers panic

DEHRADUN

An earthquake measuring 4.2 on the Richter scale struck Uttarakhand's Uttarkashi district on Saturday evening, triggering panic among residents in Uttarkashi town and the Yamunotri valley. According to the National Centre for Seismology (NCS), the earthquake occurred at 8:07 p.m., with its epicentre located 2 km northwest of Uttarkashi. The tremor originated at a depth of 11 km. The sudden shaking prompted several residents to rush out of their homes and seek open spaces as the tremors were felt across the affected areas. Officials from the Uttarakhand State Disaster Management Authority (USDMA) said no damage had been reported following the earthquake as of the latest update. Authorities continued to monitor the situation. Saturday's earthquake was the second tremor measuring above magnitude 4 to hit Uttarakhand within four days, raising concerns among residents in the Himalayan state, which is vulnerable to seismic activity. On October 6, a 4.9-magnitude earthquake struck Chamoli district, with the tremors raising concern among people in the region. According to experts, the back-to-back earthquakes have once again highlighted the importance of preparedness in Uttarakhand, where mountainous terrain, scattered settlements and vulnerable infrastructure can complicate emergency response efforts in the event of a major earthquake. Uttarkashi, located in the Garhwal Himalayas, is among the state's important pilgrimage and tourist destinations, serving as a gateway to the Yamunotri shrine, they added. The district has experienced damaging earthquakes in the past, including the 1991 Uttarkashi earthquake, which caused significant loss of life and widespread damage. Although no immediate damage or casualties were reported in Saturday's incident, residents remained concerned following the recent seismic activity.

PUBLIC MOVEMENT

Tushar Gandhi vows nationwide stir till govt resigns

MUMBAI

Mahatma Gandhi's great-grandson Tushar Gandhi on Sunday vowed to continue protests across the country until Chief Election Commissioner Gyanesh Kumar resigns and Prime Minister Narendra Modi's entire Cabinet steps down, describing the demonstrations as a public "no-confidence motion" against the government.

Speaking after his release from detention, Tushar Gandhi criticised the authorities over his detention during a protest at Mumbai's historic August Kranti Maidan. He said he was initially taken to D.N. Nagar police station before being moved to Borivali station for a medical examination because he was a senior citizen. Gandhi said he was informed at 6 pm on Saturday that he would be released, but his mobile phone was not returned to him. He added that four officers subsequently took him home in the same vehicle. Despite his detention and the apprehension of other organisers, Gandhi said people continued to arrive at August Kranti Maidan voluntarily, demonstrating public opposition to the government. He argued that the protests reflected citizens' dissatisfaction with the administration and alleged electoral manipulation. Gandhi announced plans to organise similar demonstrations across India every week until the movement's demands are met.

— Tushar Gandhi, Mahatma Gandhi's great-grandson

Referring to climate activist Sonam Wangechuk, Gandhi urged him to participate directly in street protests. "I would tell Sonam Wangechuk not to make statements but to take to the streets. Our movement will continue until our demands are met," he said.

Poonawalla Fincorp shares down nearly 16 pc in a year

NEW DELHI
Investors are expected to watch Poonawalla Fincorp shares closely on Monday after the non-banking financial company posted a more than five-fold rise in its September-quarter profit, helped by strong loan growth, better asset quality and lower credit costs. The stock has lost nearly 16 per cent over the past year and is down 7.6 per cent, or Rs 36.70, so far this year. It has, however, risen 9.24 per cent, or Rs 37.75, over the past six months. In the past month the shares have barely moved, edging up 0.28 per cent, or Rs 1.25, while in the last five trading sessions they have gained 1.27 per cent, or Rs 5.60.

BMC to crack down on illegal debris disposal, impose Rs 25,000 fine

MUMBAI
With worries about air quality returning after the monsoon's withdrawal, the Brihanmumbai Municipal Corporation (BMC) is reportedly preparing to enforce its construction and demolition (C&D) waste rules more strictly across the city. From Monday, every vehicle caught carrying construction debris or excavated material without an active, authorised Vehicle Tracking and Monitoring System (VTMS) will be fined Rs 25,000. Building sites that have not registered on the BMC's Mumbai Debris Control and Tracking System (MDCTS) portal will also pay Rs 25,000 for each violation. The step follows growing concern over the illegal dumping of construction waste and its effect on Mumbai's environment and air quality. In a circular sent to all 26 municipal wards, the BMC has told officials to start inspections and enforcement drives at once. The city produces more than 8,000 tonnes of C&D waste a day, far more than it can treat. Its two processing plants, at Dahisar and Shilphata, can together handle only about 1,200 tonnes of debris a day, and the large shortfall has led to widespread illegal dumping. It also lets civic officials follow debris vehicles in real time, spot those that stray from their routes and pick out suspected cases of illegal dumping.

India's pulse imports dip 31 per cent as fuels production

NEW DELHI
The 'Mission for Aatmanirbharata' lifted India's pulse output to 274.09 lakh tonnes in 2025-26 from 256.83 lakh tonnes in 2024-25, and also brought a steep fall in imports of the protein-rich staple over the same period, according to an official factsheet released on Sunday. The import bill for pulses shrank 31.52 per cent, from Rs 46,427.60 crore in 2024-25 to Rs 31,793.59 crore in 2025-26. Exports, meanwhile, grew at a double-digit pace of 13.4 per cent, from $855 million to $969.53 million, with shipments totalling 10.01 lakh tonnes in 2025-26.

Satya Nadella urges emergency brakes for AI models

NEW DELHI

Microsoft Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Satya Nadella has urged companies deploying advanced artificial intelligence systems to prepare for the possibility of AI models being compromised, calling for safeguards that allow their operations to be halted immediately if they behave unexpectedly.

Rather than relying only on what developers promise, organisations should regard powerful AI models as possible insider threats, Nadella said.

"We must assume a model is compromised and contain it from the start," Nadella wrote on X, comparing his proposed safeguard to an emergency brake that can stop a model partway through an operation.

The remarks come as the security risks of advanced AI systems draw closer scrutiny, especially those of agentic models, which can carry out tasks on their own, work with outside platforms and act with little human involvement. In recent months, Anthropic and OpenAI have reported cases of AI models acting in ways they were not meant to, among them an Anthropic model that sent a false tip in a police homicide case, and several hacks involving third-party websites. He also called for greater transparency when significant AI failures or security breaches occur.

Warning against treating highly capable AI systems as opaque technologies, Nadella said their behaviour must remain observable, their limitations testable and their actions controllable.

South Korean central bank's foreign returns jump 32%

SEOUL

South Korea's central bank recorded 16.9 trillion won ($12.5 billion) in returns from foreign assets in 2025, marking a 32 per cent increase from the previous year, according to data released by the Bank of Korea (BOK). In its 2025 annual report, published in March, the central bank put the rise down to the Korean won's weakness against the US dollar and a rally in stock markets. The figures were provided to a lawmaker of the main opposition People Power Party. Meanwhile, South Korean equities came under pressure in the latest trading session of the previous week, extending their losses for a third consecutive session as elevated oil prices fuelled inflation concerns. The benchmark Korea Composite Stock Price Index (KOSPI) opened 0.07 per cent higher but closed down 177.97 points, or 2.62 per cent, at 6,625.93. The Korean won strengthened against the US dollar during the session. Institutional investors recorded net stock sales worth 1.67 trillion won ($1.24 billion), while foreign investors sold shares worth 1.99 trillion won. Individual investors, meanwhile, made net purchases of 2.9 trillion won.

Banks mull more cybersecurity spending after AI-linked hacks

SEOUL

After a string of recent hacking attacks on local lenders, South Korean banks are weighing higher spending on cybersecurity systems and staff, industry sources said on Sunday. Big lenders such as Shinhan Bank, Hana Bank and KB Kookmin Bank have reported that customer data was leaked or exposed in hacking incidents this month, raising fears over how large the breaches could be, a news agency reported. On October 1, Shinhan Bank said the personal details of about 25,000 customers, among them their names, phone numbers and annual incomes, had been leaked. The hackers are reported to have used advanced artificial intelligence (AI) tools. Other banks also reported leaks or exposure of customer information. Responding to the AI-linked attacks, KB Kookmin Bank plans to raise its cybersecurity budget from $6.07 billion won this year to more than 100 billion won (US$74 million) in 2027, the sources said.

According to the sources, Shinhan Bank intends to set aside a record cybersecurity budget, while Hana Bank plans to put tens of billions of won into strengthening its security systems next year. The lenders also intend to add cybersecurity staff next year. The plans follow President Lee Jae Myung's call over the weekend for a thorough investigation into the attacks. On Monday, the Financial Supervisory Service (FSS) traced Internet Protocol (IP) addresses in 12 countries that are suspected of links to the AI-assisted hacking attacks. Investigators, however, could not pin down the locations behind some of the addresses.

Infosys sees no material impact from US PERM suspension

NEW DELHI

IT major Infosys has said it does not expect the US government's suspension of Permanent Labor Certification (PERM) applications to have a material impact on the company. Last week, the US government said it was suspending several major global technology and IT firms, Infosys among them, from the PERM green card programme, which lets skilled foreign workers gain permanent US residency through their employment. "Infosys is aware of the decision announced by the United States Department of Labor concerning the suspension of new and pending applications by certain companies, including Infosys, under the Permanent Labor Certification ('PERM') program. We welcome the opportunity to work with the Department of Labor and related government agencies to answer any questions they may have," the company said in an exchange filing. "We do not anticipate the announcement of such suspension to have a material impact on the organisation. The company will make further disclosures, if required, in accordance with applicable regulatory standards. Infosys has invested in building a strong local workforce and technology and innovation hubs in the United States," it added. US Labor Secretary Keith Sonderling announced the suspensions as the Trump administration stepped up its drive against alleged visa fraud and employment practices that it says put American workers at a disadvantage. Tata Consultancy Services (TCS), India's largest IT firm, said on Friday that it had taken note of the US government's announcement on PERM and would comply with any directive from the Department of Labor.

YOUNG ROBOTICS INNOVATORS

Indian robotics teams win Geneva opportunity

NEW DELHI

Team Singularity won the Junior title and Ferrum Incubators the Senior title at the Robotics for Good Youth Challenge India 2026-2027, and the two teams will now represent the country at the global grand finale in Geneva, Switzerland, next year. The International Telecommunication Union (ITU) and the Department of Telecommunications (DoT) organised the contest with support from the I-Hub

Foundation for Cobotics (IHFC), alongside the India Mobile Congress (IMC) 2026. Fifty-seven teams took part, 28 in the Junior Category and 29 in the Senior Category, with about 300 students and mentors from 14 states showing their skills in robotics and problem-solving. The participants, aged between 10 and 18, designed, built and programmed autonomous robots for a mission on responding to public health emergencies.

Their robots had to extract and deliver samples, build quarantine zones, hand out medical kits and carry out medical triage. The contest pushed the young teams to come up with practical robotic answers to emergencies, while testing how well they worked as a team, planned their projects, made decisions under pressure and kept to deadlines. The event was inaugurated by Atul Sinha, Director General of the DoT's National Communications Academy-Technology (NCA-T), who also gave the keynote address. Dr Bilel Jamoussi, Deputy Director and Chief of the Study Groups and Policy Department at the ITU's Telecommunication Standardization Bureau, gave the welcome address. The challenge also promoted inclusive participation by encouraging the use of free software and hardware, helping reduce barriers for students who cannot afford expensive robotics kits.

Pope Leo to undergo lung growth surgery

VATICAN CITY
Pope Leo announced that he will undergo surgery this week to remove a small, early-stage growth detected on his lung during a routine health check. The 71-year-old pontiff shared the news with pilgrims in St. Peter's Square, reassuring everyone that the localised nodule was caught early and remains well contained. Doctors advised the prompt operation, his first major health scare since his election last year. The Vatican expects the Holy Father to recover fully within a week of the scheduled procedure.

UN chief condemns Riyadh airport attack

UNITED NATIONS
United Nations Secretary-General Antonio Guterres strongly condemned a deadly Houthi drone or missile strike on Riyadh's King Khalid International Airport. The attack on the crowded Saudi passenger terminal killed 12 people and injured more than 300 civilians, among them foreign nationals as well as local citizens. Guterres stressed that targeting civilian infrastructure breaches international law and must stop immediately. The Saudi-led coalition denounced the bombing as a serious war crime and promised a firm military response to the escalating Houthi aggression.

Indian-Americans lead historic electoral bids

WASHINGTON
Indian-American candidates are chasing historic firsts across the United States ahead of the November 3 elections. Los Angeles City Council member Nithya Raman has pulled ahead of Mayor Karen Bass in a recent poll and could become the city's first Indian-American mayor. Pooja Sethi in Texas, Jyot Singh in Georgia, Saritha Komatireddy in New York and Amar Mukunda in Maryland are also bidding for unprecedented legislative and executive milestones. More than 250 Indian-Americans now hold office, a sign of the community's growing political representation nationwide.

Pakistan plans $58 bn electricity sector expansion

KARACHI
Pakistan has approved an ambitious and financially risky 2025-2035 roadmap for its power sector, which needs a staggering 58 billion dollars in fresh investment in electricity generation and transmission. The National Electric Power Regulatory Authority gave conditional approval to the Integrated System Plan, which projects that peak electricity demand will rise from 26,950 megawatts in 2025 to 35,521 megawatts by 2035, requiring 26,045 megawatts of additional generating capacity. The approval was clouded by sharp internal disagreement. All three members of the regulator's board, the Chairman among them, recorded dissenting or advisory observations in the forty-five-page document, questioning the basic economic logic of the expansion.

Conflicts, debt dominate IMF-World Bank talks

Dominated by escalating Middle East conflicts, crippling energy shocks, and soaring sovereign debt, global financial leaders have convened in Thailand.

BANGKOK

Middle East conflict, severe energy supply shocks and soaring sovereign debt are overshadowing the annual meetings of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank, which have brought global financial leaders together in Thailand. The war involving the US, Israel and Iran, now in its eighth month, has shut critical trade corridors such as the Strait of Hormuz, cutting off nearly twenty percent of the world's oil supplies. The disruption has put unprecedented strain on international markets, adding to inflationary pressures and slowing global economic growth. US Treasury Secretary Scott Bessent is notably missing from the high-profile gathering. World Bank President Ajay Banga warned that compounding risks, among them soaring diesel prices, climbing fertilizer costs and a looming extreme El Niño weather phenomenon, are hitting vulnerable economies hard. Emergency releases from reserves have softened the blow for now, but accessible commercial storage is running down fast, leaving energy markets increasingly fragile. The IMF, for its part, pointed out that global public debt stands at historic highs not seen since World War Two and is expected to pass one hundred percent of global GDP before 2030. Emerging markets and low-income nations face a brutal mix of high interest rates, capital outflows and crushing debt-servicing costs, which on average swallow more than ten percent of public revenues. Developing nations have called for help, but diplomats say major economies show little appetite for reviving the debt relief moratoria of the pandemic era.

Pressures dominating the Bangkok agenda

Middle East War & Energy Fragility

The ongoing conflict involving the US, Israel, and Iran—now in its eighth month and marked by the closure of the Strait of Hormuz—has triggered a historic energy supply shock.

Soaring Global Public Debt

IMF Managing Director Kristalina Georgieva warned delegates that “Winter is coming,” highlighting that public debt has climbed to its highest level since World War Two and is projected to exceed 100% of global GDP before 2030.

Compounding Crises & Climate Shocks

Leaders are also addressing overlapping risks, including rising fertilizer prices and an impending “super” El Niño weather phenomenon that threatens agricultural yields and public health.

High-Level Absences

Notable friction surrounds the absence of US Treasury Secretary Scott Bessent, who skipped the summit and G20 talks for domestic engagements amid rising transatlantic and geopolitical tensions over the Middle East, Ukraine sanctions, and international trade policies.

Zelenskiy offers to halt refinery strikes

KYIV

Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskiy said his country is ready to suspend drone and missile attacks on Russian oil refineries if Moscow carries out a complete and verifiable halt to its relentless bombardment of Ukraine's energy infrastructure.

Speaking through his official Telegram channel, Zelenskiy said any meaningful path towards de-escalating the conflict must rest on strict reciprocity. One-sided concessions were impossible, he stressed, without concrete security guarantees from international partners and a genuine end to the Kremlin's attacks on critical civilian power grids.

The announcement comes amid intense diplomatic and political friction. Only a day earlier, United States President Donald Trump publicly rebuked Ukraine, demanding that it stop its strategic campaign against Russian petroleum facilities and controversially suggesting that Kyiv should consider changing its leadership.

Trump claims Putin seeks peace, blames Kyiv

US President Donald Trump stated that Russian leader Vladimir Putin is eager to negotiate an end to the war in Ukraine. However, Trump sharply criticized Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskiy, accusing him of missing past opportunities to make a deal. The comments follow a telephone call between Trump and Putin, alongside a controversial US agreement for Russian diesel exports. While Trump argued that Ukraine would have secured better terms years ago, the Kremlin noted that Russia's core objectives remain unchanged, leaving immediate peace talks uncertain.

Landslide dams Nepal river, evacuation alert issued

KATHMANDU

Nepali authorities ordered urgent evacuations after a huge landslide set off severe flooding along the Budhi Gandaki River in central Nepal, sweeping away homes, bridges and vital infrastructure. Disaster struck in Chumnubri village in Gorkha district, about 100 kilometres west of the capital, Kathmandu. No deaths have been confirmed so far, but the national disaster management authorities said five people, two women and three men, are missing. Soldiers of the Nepali army rescued 49 stranded people, among them a foreign national whose nationality has not been made public. The flash flood caused widespread damage in the area, destroying about a doz-

Stagflation pressures mount in Bangladesh: Report

DHAKA

Bangladesh is under severe stagflationary pressure as stubbornly high inflation, sluggish growth, weak private investment and shrinking household purchasing power combine to strain the country's financial stability. Analysts say the conflict in the Middle East has made these economic headwinds much worse by pushing up global energy prices, transport costs and the cost of essential imports. Inflation remains the central problem. Headline inflation stood at 8.26 percent in August, only slightly below July's 8.32 percent, while non-food inflation rose further to 9.32 percent. Growth prospects have weakened in step. The World Bank projects growth of 3.9 percent for fiscal year 2026, and the International Monetary Fund forecasts a modest 3.5 percent for fiscal year 2027. Experts warn that such rates are too low to create productive jobs, raise incomes or drive the investment the country needs. Without structural reforms, they say, Bangladesh risks a long period of economic stagnation.

US Senators assail Trump's Russian diesel waiver

WASHINGTON

President Donald Trump's decision to temporarily ease sanctions and allow imports of Russian diesel has set off a fierce bipartisan backlash in Washington. Lawmakers from both parties warn that the move will line Moscow's coffers and undermine congressional efforts to rein in Vladimir Putin's war machine. Independent Senator Angus King of Maine attacked the policy reversal, saying it helps the Kremlin far more than American consumers struggling with fuel costs. A powerful group of Democratic leaders, among them Senate Democratic Leader Chuck Schumer, Senator Jeanne Shaheen and Senator Elizabeth Warren, echoed him and condemned the decision as a “total betrayal” of Ukraine and Western allies. Senator Richard Blumenthal sharply criticised the administration, called for the decision to be reversed at once and warned American companies against accepting what he called “Putin's blood money”. The White House defends the measure as a necessary step to ease high fuel costs for truckers, farmers and ordinary businesses, but critics argue that the small short-term volumes will do little to bring prices down. Congressional opponents warn instead that the concession rewards Moscow at a time of intense conflict, setting up a high-stakes standoff between the White House and Capitol Hill over the enforcement of foreign policy.

Indonesia relocates endangered Borneo orangutans

JAKARTA

Indonesian authorities and conservation specialists have successfully relocated eight critically endangered Borneo orangutans to a secure habitat after devastating wildfires obliterated their natural jungle homes. The Southeast Asian nation is currently battling its most ferocious wildfire crisis in 11 years, primarily ravaging the islands of Sumatra and Borneo. Government officials warn that these catastrophic blazes could persist through November, drastically worsened by the compounding pressures of an intense El Niño weather phenomenon. According to a joint statement from the Indonesian government and the wildlife protection foundation Yayasan Inisiasi Alam Rehabilitasi Indonesia, the recent rescue mission saved three mother-child pairs alongside two adolescent male orangutans between August and September. Conservation teams carefully transported the group to the Batu Nyambu protected forest area, a move designed to grant the primates a vital second chance at thriving in the wild. Tehran slams Saudi-Pakistan defense pact over Yemen

TEHRAN

Tehran has stepped up its diplomatic and rhetorical campaign against the newly operational defence pact between Saudi Arabia, Pakistan and Turkey, widely known as the Mecca Defence Alliance, warning that any military involvement or intervention in Yemen would have severe destabilising consequences for the wider Middle East. The three-way security framework formally became operational after a sharp rise in cross-border missile and drone attacks on critical Saudi energy infrastructure by groups aligned with Yemen. Once the pact's mutual defence mechanisms were activated, Ankara and Islamabad both took preliminary steps to give Riyadh defensive and technical support. Those deployments immediately drew fierce criticism from Iranian officials, who see the alignment as a direct geopolitical challenge. Responding to reports that tens of thousands of troops could be sent to the Arabian Peninsula, Iranian Foreign Ministry spokesman Esmail Baghaei publicly dismissed the rumours but added a stark warning: regional capitals know well that meddling in Yemen brings unwelcome blowback across the region. Foreign Minister Abbas Araghchi echoed those concerns, calling for regional self-reliance and cautioning that multilateral military pacts would neither constrain Iran's strategic posture nor change its calculations. Tehran's diplomatic anger has been aimed more sharply at Islamabad than at Ankara. Pakistan has long kept a delicate diplomatic balance, often acting as a mediator between Iran and Western or Gulf powers, so its formal alignment with Saudi security initiatives has angered Iranian observers.

TUSK THREAT PLOT

Warsaw on alert as Polish leaders face threats

WARSAW

Poland's security agencies held an emergency high-level meeting after receiving credible intelligence about a possible threat to Prime Minister Donald Tusk and Defence Minister Wladyslaw Kosiniak-Kamysz. Interior Ministry spokesperson Karolina Gafęcka said on social media that the Polish Police had flagged the potential plot, prompting immediate action from top government officials.

Official spokespeople gave no details of the nature, origin or methods of the plot, but private broadcaster Radio Zet reported that law enforcement had received an anonymous threat by email. Officials remain on high alert after a series of recent security incidents at home. In

A nation on edge

Sunday's scare arrives during an already tense week for Polish authorities, who remain on edge following recent domestic tragedies, including a violent school incident that left a caretaker dead. Security agencies have not yet publicly revealed the exact source or origin of this latest threat. However, investigators are working around the clock to track down the sender and ensure complete safety for the country's leadership. Citizens and officials alike hope that swift, decisive action will keep the nation stable during these uncertain times.

August, police detained a twenty-three-year-old who was formally accused of inciting the assassination of senior state leaders. Tusk also said publicly that he had received direct threats in 2024, shortly after the shocking attempt on the life of neighbouring Slovakia's Prime Minister, Robert Fico. Sunday's emergency security meeting also came at a time of intense national vigilance after a tragic wave of school violence that ended in the fatal stabbing of a school caretaker earlier in the week. As investigations go on, state security services have stepped up protection around key ministers to deter any hostile actors and keep the country stable.

Morgan Rogers shines in Chelsea's victory

LONDON

Chelsea head coach Xabi Alonso has offered high praise for Morgan Rogers, calling him a complete modern football player. This glowing remark came after Chelsea secured a dominant 5-1 victory over Bournemouth in the Premier League at Stamford Bridge. Rogers played a starring role in the match, scoring his fourth goal for the club since completing a high-profile transfer from Aston Villa before the start of the current campaign. The match itself was an absolute goal fest from the opening whistle. Chelsea burst out of the blocks when experienced midfielder Jordan Henderson opened the scoring inside just two minutes on his home debut. Henderson collected a precise pass from Cole Palmer before unleashing a powerful long-range strike that went in off the post. Just a minute later, Henderson turned provider by setting up Rogers. The twenty-four-year-old forward expertly curled his shot into the far corner with a slight deflection, doubling the lead. Following a comfortable first half, Joao Pedro extended the advantage to three goals immediately after the restart. Although Bournemouth managed to pull one back through Evanilson, Joao Pedro quickly restored the three-goal cushion. Henderson then capped off a stellar individual performance by scoring a magnificent free-kick from twenty-five yards out to seal the comprehensive win. Rogers has enjoyed an explosive start to his career at Stamford Bridge. Linda Noskova withdraws from Wuhan Open

Wimbledon champion Linda Nosková has withdrawn from the Wuhan Open due to a left calf injury, prioritizing recovery ahead of her debut WTA Finals appearance.

CHINA

World No. 6 and Wimbledon champion Linda Nosková has officially withdrawn from the prestigious Wuhan Open due to a left calf injury. The late-breaking tournament scratch comes just days after the 21-year-old Czech star secured her maiden career qualification for the elite year-end WTA Finals, alongside compatriot Mirra Andrejeva. Because Nosková pulled out before the publication of the opening order of play, tournament organizers restructured the singles main draw hierarchy. No. 9 seed Belinda Bencic inherited Nosková's open slot on Line 48, moving directly into the second round via a first-round bye. Meanwhile, Anna Kalinskaya stepped up into Bencic's previous position on Line 9 to face veteran player Zhang Shuai in her opening match. An incoming lucky loser will fill the vacancy left by Kalinskaya's shift ahead of Monday's main draw matches. Nosková's absence adds her to a growing list of marquee withdrawals from the high-profile WTA 1000 event during the grueling Asian swing, joining world No. 1 Elena Rybakina, Coco Gauff, Naomi Osaka, and Amanda Anisimova on the sidelines. Additionally, lower-tier qualifying adjustments saw Oleksandra Oliynykova drop out due to a right ankle issue, clearing a path for qualifier Aoi Ito. The setback arrives during a breakthrough 2026 campaign for Nosková, highlighted by her historic grass-court major title at Wimbledon, a semifinal run at the WTA 1000 Indian Wells event, and a stellar quarterfinal appearance at the US Open.

Ben Shelton stunned at Shanghai Masters

SHANGHAI

Professional tennis can be a brutally tough sport, and even the biggest stars experience sudden heartbreak on the court. American tennis sensation Ben Shelton learned this lesson the hard way today after suffering a surprising defeat at the Shanghai Masters. The world number four fought hard but ultimately fell in a tight straight-set loss to France's Arthur Gea, who played the match of his life to pull off a massive upset. The encounter was a fierce battle from the first point to the last, with both sets heading into tense tie-breaks. Gea handled the immense pressure with total calmness, edging out Shelton to claim his very first career victory against a top-ten opponent. Following the disappointing exit, Shelton showed complete sportsmanship by openly admitting that his opponent simply outplayed him on the day. Speaking to reporters after the match, Shelton pointed out that he arrived in China without enough time to properly adjust to the local conditions and recover from jet lag. His recent schedule has been incredibly demanding, following a historic run to his first-ever Grand Slam final at the US Open. That heavy workload, combined with minor injuries and a taxing Davis Cup journey, disrupted his usual preparation. However, the American star made sure to give full credit to the young Frenchman. Gea neutralized one of Shelton's greatest weapons: his famously powerful left-handed serve. The winner consistently returned deep balls right to the baseline, completely robbing Shelton of the easy points and aggressive baseline control he usually relies on. Despite this unexpected stumble, Shelton can still look back proudly on a fantastic season. He has already captured a career-best four titles this year and remains in a strong position to qualify for the prestigious year-end championships in Turin.

ABU DHABI

The international cricket arena witnessed a breathtaking display of leadership and resilience today at the Sheikh Zayed Stadium. Afghanistan captain Rahmat Shah etched his name permanently into the history books during the opening match of the one-off Test against Bangladesh. Stepping onto the field for his very first assignment as the official Test captain, Shah delivered a masterclass in batting, crafting a magnificent century that kept his team afloat against a fierce bowling attack. Replying to a formidable first-innings total of 346 posted by Bangladesh, Afghanistan found themselves under immense pressure early in the innings. Wickets fell at regular intervals as the rival seamers exploited the early morning moisture on the pitch. However, Shah stood firm like a solid rock amidst the ruins, anchoring the innings with remarkable patience and technical brilliance. By reaching the three-figure mark, Shah achieved a historic milestone, becoming the very first Afghan cricketer to score a century on his Test captaincy debut. His patient knock of 105 runs came off 216 deliveries and included ten elegant boundaries and two towering sixes, showcasing both his defensive solidity and his ability to punish loose deliveries. Support for the captain came in brief spells from opener Abdul Malik, who contributed a steady 62 runs from 120 balls, and wicketkeeper-batter Ikram Alikhil, who chipped in with a fighting 32. Despite their efforts, Afghanistan was eventually bundled out for 240 runs, giving Bangladesh a crucial 106-run lead. The standout star for Bangladesh was fast bowler Hasan Mahmud, who ripped through the batting lineup with a sensational hat-trick and a five-wicket haul. As teams prepare for the next phase, cricket fans celebrate a truly unforgettable day of historic performances.
