DKS: Emphasizing cooperative sector as rural backbone

Chief Minister D.K. Shivakumar championed rural cooperatives, women's empowerment, and infrastructural rights during recent addresses.

BENGALURU

Karnataka Chief Minister D.K. Shivakumar said cooperatives help farmers gain financial independence and sustain rural livelihoods.

Inaugurating the 73rd Cooperative Week, he said nearly 17 lakh farmers benefit from interest-free crop loans backed by ₹1,135 crore in state support. District central cooperative banks and land development banks disbursed ₹1,551 crore in long-term loans to about 75,000 families.

Shivakumar defended the milk price increase, saying dairy farmers need better returns as fodder and cattle care costs rise.

He said Karnataka farmers receive ₹54 per litre, compared with ₹61–₹62 for Amul suppliers. The Ksheeradhare scheme provides a ₹5 per litre incentive.

He put enrolment in the Yeshasvini health scheme at 52 lakh cooperative members.

Karnataka has sought ₹22,000 crore in central drought relief against estimated losses of ₹60,000 crore. The state has approved a 250-bed multispecialty hospital in Ullal and a government college in Yeshwantpur.

Unveiling the logo for the Commonwealth Women Parliamentarians India Region Conference, Shivakumar called for swift implementation of women's reservation in the Lok Sabha and state legislatures.

He pointed to women serving as Karnataka's Governor, Chief Secretary and Legislative Council Secretary.

About 150 legislators and presiding officers are expected at the Bengaluru conference, whose main sessions on November 17 and 18 will focus on online safety and strengthening women's legislative skills.

At a Children's Day event honouring Jawaharlal Nehru, Shivakumar credited India's first prime minister with laying the foundations for industrial, scientific and agricultural development.

He urged Congress workers to recruit members for the Bharat Jodo Yuva Sanghas and use party software to help eligible voters missing from revised electoral rolls. He said a second list of appointments to state boards and corporations would be released soon.

> The Mekedatu project is Karnataka's right, and it is our duty to implement it in accordance with the Supreme Court's directive. Instead of opposing the move, Tamil Nadu should send a delegation so I can explain the benefits they stand to gain from it.

Government backing for the sector

- Interest-Free Crop Loans: Approximately 1.7 million farmers currently receive interest-free agricultural credit, backed by state grants exceeding ₹1,135 crore.
- Dairy Industry Support: With 2.5 million farmers enrolled in milk cooperatives, the administration continues to disburse a ₹5 per liter subsidy under the 'Ksheeradaana' scheme, alongside defending fair pricing to offset high cattle-rearing and fodder costs.
- Healthcare Protection: The popular 'Yashasvini' health insurance scheme provides medical coverage to 5.2 million cooperative members through a network of nearly 9,500 empanelled hospitals.

Shivakumar said Karnataka had the right to build the Mekedatu balancing reservoir and invited a Tamil Nadu delegation to visit the site. He said Karnataka would honour Tamil Nadu's share of Cauvery water under Supreme Court directives.

He put spending on subsidised power for farm pumps at ₹30,000 crore, up from ₹20,000 crore amid drought and demand for lift irrigation.

RaGa questions voter roll integrity

HYDERABAD

Lok Sabha Opposition Leader Rahul Gandhi questioned the integrity of India's electoral rolls at the closing session of the Bharat Summit 2026.

He spoke at HICC Novotel alongside Telangana Chief Minister A. Revanth Reddy before delegates from about 70 countries.

Gandhi alleged that 140 million people who voted in the 2024 Lok Sabha elections were later classified as ineligible or nonexistent during nationwide revisions of the electoral rolls.

"If the Election Commission has declared 140 million voters illegal non-voters, then how is that election possibly legitimate?" he asked.

He cited Maharashtra, where the opposition performed strongly in the general election before losing the Assembly election later that year.

Gandhi claimed the opposition received roughly the same number of votes in both contests and alleged that seven million voters were added, benefiting the Bharatiya Janata Party.

In an earlier response to Congress, the Election Commission reported about 4.88 million additions and 800,000 deletions between the two elections, a net increase of about 4.08 million.

> Today, we fulfilled that promise: ₹5 lakh accident insurance, ₹10 lakh health insurance, 1% of earnings for pension, rights over their data and earnings, and rest centres with Wi-Fi at various locations.
> - Rahul Gandhi, LoP Lok Sabha

Gandhi also argued that a surge in political funding and changes in campaigning in 2014 disrupted an era of close contests and coalition governments. He described intolerance of dissent in business, academia and politics and said authoritarian tendencies surface when institutions weaken.

The Election Commission and the BJP have previously rejected allegations of electoral manipulation. The commission has urged critics to submit signed declarations backed by evidence. BJP leaders have accused Gandhi of undermining constitutional institutions.

"Education is key to social transformation and good citizenship"

CH NEWS, MYSURU

Education alone can bring about transformation in society, and it is also essential for shaping responsible citizens, said University of Mysore Vice-Chancellor Prof. N.K. Lokanath.

Speaking after inaugurating the 19th Graduation Day ceremony organised at Sri Chayadevi College of Education here on Saturday, he emphasised that teachers have a significant role to play in bringing about social change.

Explaining the importance of the teaching profession, he said teachers should correct mistakes, forgive children and impart knowledge. Student-teachers, who are preparing to shape the future generation, should not restrict themselves to academic instruction but also mould children's behaviour and instil human values in them.

Pointing out that every child has different abilities, even in a classroom of 30 students, Prof. Lokanath said teachers should identify individual talents and encourage students accordingly. They should kindle interest and curiosity among children and develop in them the habit of asking questions. Instead of focusing merely on marks and report cards, teachers should strive to bring about a positive change in students' attitudes and mindsets. As the education system is undergoing rapid changes, teachers must embrace technology and use it to provide quality education. Students can no longer be prepared merely for Karnataka or India, as they must be equipped to compete at the global level. Therefore, imparting essential skills to students is equally important.

A glass of water, a gesture of care

PM Modi wins hearts by coming to the aid of an elderly woman in Mysuru

SHYAM SUNDAR VATTAM, MYSURU

A moment of compassion amid a high-profile public event stole the spotlight in Mysuru on Friday when Prime Minister Narendra Modi stepped forward to help a 70-year-old woman BJP worker who suddenly felt unwell during the inauguration of the COSMOS-Mysuru Planetarium.

The woman, identified as Prema K. of Nanjangud, was on the dais when she appeared dizzy, lost her balance and seemed on the verge of collapsing. Noticing her discomfort, Modi immediately moved towards her, enquired about her health and personally offered her a glass of water.

Setting aside the formalities of the occasion, the Prime Minister also instructed officials to ensure that she received special attention and directed his medical team to examine and monitor her condition.

The incident, captured in photographs that soon circulated widely on social media, added an unexpected human touch to the inauguration ceremony.

Prema K. greets the Prime Minister with folded hands

According to BJP Rural district president K.N. Subbanna, who later visited Prema at her residence, she was doing fine. Party sources said she had reportedly skipped lunch and walked two to three kilometres to reach the venue, leaving her exhausted.

Previous incidents

The Mysuru incident is not the first occasion on which Modi has responded to a medical emergency during a public engagement. In January 2019, while addressing a gathering at Surat airport in Gujarat, he abruptly halted his speech after noticing a cameraman, Kishan Ramolia, collapse. He immediately instructed security personnel to arrange an ambulance. Ramolia later thanked the Prime Minister, saying that Modi had noticed him falling and ensured that help reached him.

In another instance, in September 2022, Modi's convoy stopped on the Ahmedabad-Gandhinagar highway to allow an ambulance to pass. A similar gesture was witnessed in November 2022 at Chambi in Himachal Pradesh's Kangra district, when his motorcade halted to give an ambulance an unobstructed passage.

These incidents have repeatedly drawn attention to the importance of prioritising human lives over protocol and security arrangements.

A gesture that resonated

The Mysuru incident also generated considerable discussion on social media, with the BJP Mahila Morcha describing it as "a helping hand, a caring heart" and praising the Prime Minister's concern for the elderly worker. Photographs of the interaction were widely circulated.

A local BJP leader, K.N. Subbanna, subsequently confirmed that Prema was doing well after his visit to her home.

The incident offered a simple but striking reminder that sometimes a small gesture of concern can become the most memorable moment of a grand public occasion.

Mysuru goes bananas!

Two-day banana mela opens to a colourful start

CH NEWS, MYSURU

Mysuru witnessed a colourful celebration of banana diversity as a two-day 'Banana Mela' got off to a vibrant start at Nanjaraja Bahadur Choultry here on Saturday, bringing together more than 150 varieties of bananas, traditional farming practices, culinary delights and an array of banana-based products.

Organised by Sahaja Samrudha in association with the Department of Horticulture, Karnataka State Agricultural Produce Processing and Export Corporation Limited (KAPPEC), ICAR-JSS Krishi Vigyan Kendra, Suttur, and Abhay Naturals, the mela aims to promote indigenous banana varieties, traditional cultivation practices and the rich food culture associated with the fruit.

The world of bananas is remarkably diverse. From birth to death, bananas are closely intertwined with human life and culture. Each variety has its own distinctive taste, colour, size and shape. India, considered the homeland of bananas, is home to hundreds of varieties, with Karnataka particularly renowned for its rich banana diversity.

Kamalapura Red Banana, Elaichi Banana, Nanjangud Rasabale, Kallu Bale, Nati Bale, Boodu Bale, Hampi Sugandhi, Sakkare Bale, Huli Bale and Chukke Bale are among the traditional varieties that have long been part of Karnataka's agricultural heritage. However, the growing commercial cultivation of Robusta and Cavendish varieties has pushed many indigenous varieties towards extinction.

The mela seeks to revive interest in these traditional varieties and create awareness about their conservation and commercial potential.

One of the major attractions is the rare collection brought by Daya Prasad of Sullia, who has conserved around 400 banana varieties. Visitors will get an opportunity to see some of the rare specimens from his collection.

National award-winning plant conservationist Ram Prasad Hegde of Sirsi is also showcasing rare banana varieties and planting materials. An eight-foot-long 'Sahasra Bale' and a striking red banana variety, whose entire plant appears as though it has been set ablaze, are expected to draw considerable attention.

More than 50 stalls have been set up at the mela, featuring banana-based delicacies, value-added products, banana-fibre crafts, organic products, fruit saplings and indigenous seeds. A variety of banana-based dishes and products are also available for visitors to explore and purchase.

Banana lovers can buy fruits of several varieties, including Nanjangud Rasabale, Nendran, Yelakki, Finger Banana and Red Banana.

Those interested in cultivating bananas can purchase quality planting suckers. Sahaja Seeds is showcasing planting materials of several indigenous varieties, including Kamalapura Red Banana, Nanjangud Rasabale, Karpuravalli, Poovan, Chandra Bale, Madarangi and Elaichi Banana.

A training programme on banana cultivation and opportunities in value addition was scheduled for Saturday at 2 pm. A children's painting competition and a banana-based cooking competition are scheduled for today (Sunday) at 10.30 am. Interested participants can take part in the competitions.

KAPPEC Managing Director J. Venkatarama Reddy Patil inaugurated the two-day mela. Dr. Giridhar Parvatam, Director of the CSIR-Central Food Technological Research Institute (CFTRI), Mysuru, released the 'Banana Bharat' app.

Joint Director of Horticulture Roopashree K.N., Kodagu banana grower Ravi Shankar of Ponnampet, Dr. Gnanesh B.N., Head of ICAR-Krishi Vigyan Kendra, Suttur, and Dr. Umesh H. Hebbar, Senior Scientist at CFTRI, were among the chief guests.

The mela provides an excellent platform for farmers, researchers, entrepreneurs and the public to appreciate the extraordinary diversity of bananas, rediscover traditional varieties and explore opportunities to conserve and promote this valuable crop.

Forming long, serpentine queues, the young visitors eagerly waited for their turn to explore the fascinating world of wildlife. From a variety of birds to majestic animals, every enclosure offered them an opportunity to discover and admire nature's wonders.

The celebrations were equally delightful at the Dasara Exhibition grounds, where the Karnataka Exhibition Authority (KEA) rolled out a special treat for its youngest visitors.

KEA Chairman Ayub Khan had made arrangements for free distribution of fruits and refreshments, including oranges, apples, biscuits, ice creams and cucumbers. The goodies were neatly displayed in pushcarts, attracting enthusiastic children who made a beeline to grab their favourite treats.

For many, the day was not just about visiting the zoo or enjoying a free snack, but about creating happy memories with classmates and teachers.

Children in fancy dress at the Children's Day programme on the exhibition premises

Over-12s denied free entry

However, some high school students who had arrived expecting free entry on Children's Day were stopped by security personnel and asked to purchase tickets. A few students pleaded with the staff, saying they did not have money to buy tickets and requested permission to enter. Despite their appeals, security personnel refused to allow free entry to students above 12 years of age.

Children arriving in the morning were symbolically welcomed at the entrance with flowers and sweets. Inside the exhibition grounds, heaps of oranges, sweet limes, chocolates, biscuits and groundnuts were arranged especially for them. Children were encouraged to help themselves, and they happily collected as much as they could carry.

Later, the students visited various commercial and government stalls and explored the exhibits. Some also purchased different products displayed at the commercial stalls.

On the occasion, senior journalist and Chief Minister's Communications Adviser Deepak Thimmaiah, yoga achiever N. Hasini and classical dancer P. Yalinikrishna were felicitated.

Former Mayors Pushpalatha and T.B. Chikkanna, former Zoo Authority Chairperson Mallige Veeresh and Exhibition Authority CEO Rudresh were among those present. Light refreshments were also arranged for the children after the programme.

Use Mahadayi water for twin cities first: Sobaradamath

CH NEWS, HUBBALLI

The State Government should immediately utilise the 3.9 TMC of water allocated to Karnataka under the Mahadayi project to meet the drinking water requirements of Hubballi-Dharwad, said Raita Sena Karnataka State president Veeresh Sobaradamath. Speaking to reporters, he urged the government to resolve the legal hurdles delaying the project and consider appointing a more effective legal team to represent Karnataka in the Mahadayi water dispute. He announced that a meeting would be held on November 19 at 11 am at Sawai Gandharva Hall in Deshpande Nagar to discuss the project and the drinking water crisis. All 82 members of the Hubballi-Dharwad Municipal Corporation, concerned officials and farmers have been invited. Officials have been asked to bring relevant documents and provide detailed information. Demand to change legal team Sobaradamath said he had repeatedly requested the Chief Minister to review Karnataka's legal team, led by senior advocate Mohan Katarki. He argued that the government should first focus on utilising the water already allocated to the State for drinking purposes before pursuing additional demands. He said the Mahadayi Tribunal's award had been accepted by the concerned States, but Goa's petition in the Supreme Court and pending environmental and wildlife clearances had affected the project's progress.

Metro funding dispute

Commenting on the political dispute between the BJP and Congress over Metro funding, Balakrishna said opposition leaders should approach the Central Government and demand the release of funds due to Karnataka instead of engaging in public arguments.

He said Chief Minister D.K. Shivakumar had already presented the State's concerns to Prime Minister Narendra Modi during his visit to Karnataka.

Railway project challenge

Responding to Union Minister V. Somanna's allegation that the State Government was not cooperating with the Hejjala-Chamarajanagar railway project, Balakrishna offered to personally oversee the land acquisition process.

He challenged Somanna to provide the letter submitted to the Chief Minister regarding the project and said land acquisition could not be completed within just 25 days of submitting a request.

Remarks on JD(S) leaders

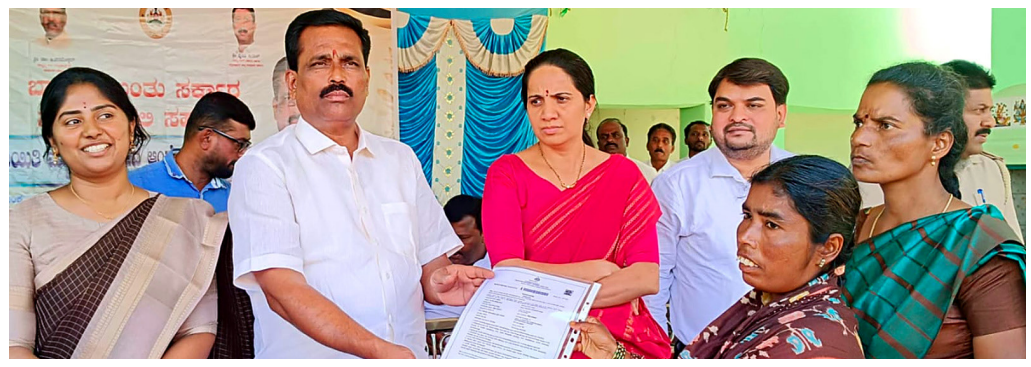

Reacting to A.T. Krishnappa's allegation that the Chief Minister had offered ₹500 crore to JD(S) MLAs, Balakrishna claimed that the funds were discussed in connection with constituency development.

He alleged that the issue was being used for political purposes and made remarks about the competition for the JD(S) ticket between Krishnappa and Masale Jayaram.

Bilimale warns Kannada schools are vanishing fast

CH NEWS, RAICHUR

Kannada schools are shutting down and employment opportunities for Kannadigas are declining, despite repeated government directives to protect and promote the language, said Kannada Development Authority Chairman Dr. Purushottama Bilimale.

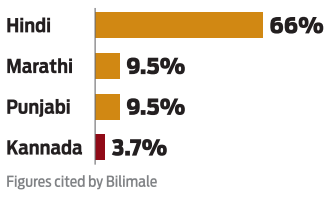

He was speaking after inaugurating the 12th District Kannada Sahitya Sammelana, organised by the district unit of the Kannada Sahitya Parishat at Pandit Siddarama Jambaladinni Rangamandira on Saturday.

Bilimale said Kannada faces challenges at the local, district and State levels. Although the government issues orders favouring Kannada, their implementation remains weak. He expressed concern over the closure of Kannada-medium schools and the declining number of students.

Employment for locals

Referring to the proposed investment of ₹10 lakh crore in Karnataka announced by Minister M.B. Patil, Bilimale said such investments must create sufficient employment for local people. He pointed out that the Sarojini Mahishi Report, aimed at securing jobs for Kannadigas, was yet to be implemented despite being revised and submitted to the government.

He said migrant workers were increasing in Bengaluru and other parts of Karnataka, while local people were moving elsewhere in search of jobs. He also expressed concern over the shortage of Kannada-speaking workers in Shivamogga's arecanut plantations.

Bilimale said nearly 2,000 schools had reportedly disappeared and many candidates appearing for examinations lacked adequate Kannada knowledge. He also criticised the declining use of Kannada words in visual media.

Kannada must be first language

He stressed that Kannada should be the first language in all schools, irrespective of their medium of instruction. He warned that CBSE schools ignoring this requirement could face action, including cancellation of recognition.

Referring to language growth figures, he said Hindi had grown by 66 per cent, Marathi and Punjabi by 9.5 per cent, while Kannada's growth stood at just 3.7 per cent.

He urged literary organisations and the public to press the government for effective implementation of Kannada-friendly policies. While acknowledging the importance of English for international communication, he said Kannada must receive priority in its home State.

He warned that neglecting Kannada in favour of other languages could weaken the State's linguistic and cultural identity.

They also criticised the recent increases in bus fares and milk prices, demanding that the government withdraw the hikes.

Addressing the gathering, Shirahatti MLA Dr. Chandru Lamani alleged that the government was using misinformation about SIR to divert attention from administrative shortcomings. He said such statements could affect public confidence in constitutional institutions.

Youth leader Anil Menasinakai criticised the increase in essential costs and said the higher bus fares and milk prices would affect poor and middle-class families. He urged young people and the public to participate in the protest and warned that the agitation would be intensified across the district if the price increases were not withdrawn.

Chitradurga CMC plans ward-wise schedule for applications

A speaker at the Ward Sabha organised by the CMC for Wards 1 to 4 in Chitradurga

CH NEWS, CHITRADURGA

A ward-wise schedule will be introduced for the speedy processing of e-Khata and e-Swathu applications in Chitradurga city. A separate help desk will also be opened at the City Municipal Council (CMC) office to assist residents, Deputy Commissioner S. Ramya announced.

She was speaking after inaugurating a Ward Sabha organised by the CMC on Saturday at the Ekanatheshwari Padagudi premises on Kote Road. The meeting was held to address complaints from residents of Wards 1, 2, 3 and 4.

e-Swathu, ward by ward

1. Schedule: applications taken ward-wise
2. Help desk: documents checked at the CMC office first
3. Directly: no need for intermediaries
4. Five days: documents delivered after a complete application

Ramya said staff shortages at the CMC had delayed the processing of applications. Therefore, applications would be accepted according to a ward-wise schedule. A list of required documents would also be displayed, and residents could get their documents checked at the help desk before submission.

Cleanliness and drinking water first

The Deputy Commissioner urged residents to use designated waste bins instead of throwing plastic bottles, wrappers and other waste on roads. She said such waste blocks drains and creates difficulties for sanitation workers.

She also directed officials to give priority to drinking water supply and sanitation. Repairs to leaking water pipelines would be taken up shortly. Officials were instructed to speed up underground drainage maintenance before the monsoon.

She assured residents that the e-Swathu initiative would be implemented without inconvenience. Vacancies caused by the retirement or departure of permanent sanitation workers would be addressed through temporary outsourced appointments.

Municipal Commissioner Lakshmi said residents could apply directly for e-Swathu documents without approaching intermediaries. She stated that documents would be delivered within five days of submitting applications with the required records. Ward-wise application collection would begin the following Thursday.

Residents raise civic concerns

Former CMC president H.T. Krishnamurthy criticised delays in processing public applications. He urged officials to inform applicants about missing documents instead of keeping files pending for months.

He also sought urgent action on the proposed second-phase drinking water project from Marikanive reservoir, recruitment of 84 sanitation workers and control of stray dogs and pigs.

Residents submitted petitions regarding drinking water, streetlights, drainage and other civic problems. CMC environmental engineer Jaffer, officials, former presidents, members and residents of the four wards attended the meeting.

Kashempur backs Bidar farmers' sugarcane price protest

CH NEWS, BIDAR

Former Minister and senior JD(S) leader Bandeppa Kashempur visited the indefinite farmers' protest near Ambedkar Circle in Bidar on Saturday and extended his party's support to their demands.

The protest, organised by the District Farmers' Associations Coordination Committee, began on November 12 in front of the District In-charge Minister's office. Farmers are demanding a price of ₹4,000 per tonne of sugarcane and additional financial support from the government.

Addressing the protesters, Kashempur said sugarcane was the main commercial crop in Bidar district and farmers deserved a fair price. He also extended support to the large-scale agitation planned for November 18 and 19.

He criticised the government over drought relief payments, claiming that farmers had received only ₹500 or ₹1,000 in some cases. He questioned the difference between the initially announced relief of ₹2,500 per hectare and the later announcement of ₹5,000 per family.

Opposes leasing out BSSK

Kashempur urged farmers not to demand that the Bidar Sahakari Sakkare Karkhane (BSSK) be leased to private operators. Instead, he wanted the government to continue running the factory. He recalled that the previous JD(S)-led government had provided a grant of ₹20 crore to revive the factory.

He also referred to the farm loan waivers implemented during his party's tenure and criticised the present government for its response to farmers' difficulties.

Assam announces compensation after Kaziranga road accident

GUWAHATI

Assam Chief Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma on Saturday announced compensation of Rs 9 lakh for each family of the 26 people killed in a road accident near Kaziranga, and said the state government would support those affected.

Sarma visited the crash site in the Rongajaan area of Golaghat district to review the situation and meet officials managing the response. In a post on X, he called the incident "heartbreaking" and expressed condolences to families who had lost loved ones.

"Each bereaved family will receive Rs 9 lakh in compensation," Sarma said, adding that no payment could make up for the loss, particularly for households that had lost more than one member. He said the government would ensure families did not face the aftermath alone.

The chief minister said he would personally visit the home of every bereaved family within two to three days. Additional doctors had been sent from Guwahati and other hospitals to speed up post-mortems and provide care to injured people, he said. Sarma added that a detailed investigation was underway to establish the cause of the collision.

The crash occurred on Friday when a passenger vehicle and a container truck collided head-on near Kaziranga National Park. The death toll had risen to 26 by Saturday, officials said. Twenty-four victims had been identified, while two remained unidentified.

Nineteen injured people were initially taken to Jorhat Medical College and Hospital. Two later died there, and one person at the hospital was still unidentified, according to officials.

HC moots lowering juvenile age to 16

KOCHI

The Kerala High Court has urged lawmakers to consider lowering the age threshold for juveniles and children in conflict with the law to 16, citing growing maturity at that age.

Justice A. Badharudeen made the observation while hearing a petition by Kollam resident Vinod Vikram. He sought action against the sale and serving of liquor to people below 23, as well as their consumption of alcohol.

The petition referred to a crash at Nedumbassery. An 18-year-old, allegedly under the influence of alcohol, drove a Mini Cooper into a scooter, killing three people. The petition names the state government, the Director of the Vigilance and Anti-Corruption Bureau, the Excise Commissioner and the managing directors of three bars alleged to have served liquor to Suhail Sajeev, the accused in the case.

The High Court of Kerala in Kochi

In an interim order on Friday, the court said the petition needed detailed consideration, pointing to similar incidents. It said lawmakers should consider changes to statutes dealing with juveniles and children in conflict with the law, taking account of what it described as growing maturity among 16-year-olds.

The court directed the Excise Commissioner to file a statement describing steps taken to enforce provisions of the Kerala Abkari Act. The commissioner must also suggest ways to apply the law and protect the public from danger.

Pistols seized, man held in Mumbai

MUMBAI

The Mumbai Crime Branch arrested a man and seized two country-made pistols and 19 live cartridges in Agripada, police said.

The accused, identified as Ganesh Landge, was allegedly carrying the weapons without a licence or permit.

Police said Crime Branch Unit 2 received information that a man planned to bring illegal firearms and ammunition into the area. Officers laid a trap and detained Landge, who they said was moving suspiciously. A search allegedly found the two pistols and cartridges.

A case was registered at Agripada police station under relevant sections of the Arms Act. Investigators are examining where the weapons came from, why they were brought to the area and whether others were involved. Police told a court that information had pointed to four people sitting together with weapons, and said some suspects were absconding. The accused claimed officers had arrived suddenly to arrest him. Police also referred to the investigation of the Tiger Shroff case. The court remanded Landge to two days in police custody.

Argentine leader calls for shift to renewables

HYDERABAD

Climate change is a challenge for all humanity, and countries must shift to renewable energy and reduce fossil fuel use, Argentina's Socialist Party Secretary General Alfredo Remo Lazzeretti said on Saturday.

Speaking at the Bharat Summit 2026, Lazzeretti said El Niño was one of several problems linked to rising global temperatures. He said climate change affects people around the world and requires a shared response. He called for reducing fossil fuel consumption and moving to renewable energy as soon as possible, saying fossil fuels are a major source of pollution.

Lazzeretti said he had attended discussions over the summit's two days on the global economy, democracy, election campaigns, climate change and the changing world economic order. He said the meetings brought together people from different regions and allowed progressive political groups to exchange ideas and experiences.

He said he had joined panels on climate change, electoral campaigns and the new world economic order. Some sessions took place at the same time, preventing him from attending every discussion, he added. Lazzeretti said the range of perspectives had enriched the conversations.

Bharat Bhushan Sharma, a sub-divisional officer with the Uttar Pradesh Irrigation Department's Ganga division, said stopping the flow and removing waste was difficult. He said public participation helped make the work possible, with thousands joining government teams and local organisations.

The clean-up has drawn attention to the wider challenge of protecting the river, which serves households, farms and industries across a large basin. Authorities are preparing for the 2027 Ardh Kumbh in Haridwar, scheduled from January 14 to April 20. Large crowds of devotees and religious leaders are expected. A floating trash barrier is being installed to catch solid waste during the event. Officials and residents have also urged people not to leave clothes, plastic or offerings in the water, and to use bins instead.

Gautam also announced plans for Constitution Day on November 26. He said party workers would march from the Congress office to a statue of Dr Babasaheb Ambedkar. Telangana launches security scheme for gig workers

Telangana says its new security scheme and Gig Workers Act will strengthen protections for workers, following a promise made during Rahul Gandhi's Bharat Jodo Yatra.

HYDERABAD

Telangana Chief Minister A Revanth Reddy and Lok Sabha Opposition Leader Rahul Gandhi took part in the launch of the state's Gig Workers Special Security Scheme. Reddy said the Gig Workers Act would be enforced under Gandhi's guidance.

The Chief Minister's Office said the state had set up a Gig Workers Board and was providing insurance coverage to workers. Reddy called the launch a promise fulfilled, recalling Gandhi's assurance during the Bharat Jodo Yatra in Telangana.

Reddy said gig workers had met Gandhi during his 4,000-kilometre march from Kanyakumari to Kashmir and shared difficulties they faced at work. He said Gandhi had promised that a Congress government in Telangana would pass a law to protect them. The state later enacted the legislation, Reddy said.

"The Lok Sabha LoP had gained a first-hand understanding of the hardships faced by the poor," Reddy said, describing the workers' meeting with Gandhi during the yatra. He said the government was committed to supporting gig workers and thanked Gandhi on behalf of the community.

Reddy said the government provides accident insurance to gig workers. He also said the coverage limit under the Aarogyasri health scheme had been raised to Rs 10 lakh. According to the Chief Minister, the law aims to protect gig workers in every aspect. He said the state would stand by them and provide support whenever needed. Reddy said the Gandhi family had a history of keeping commitments and described the new law as protection for workers statewide.

"No Leniency": ABVP protests Haldwani assault case

DEHRADUN

The Akhil Bharatiya Vidyarthi Parishad (ABVP) held protests in Dehradun and Haldwani over the alleged sexual assault of a minor in Haldwani, demanding swift action and strict punishment for anyone found guilty.

In Dehradun, protesters burnt effigies of the accused and called for justice for the girl. ABVP said one of the four arrested, Dheeraj Bisht, had earlier been a student union candidate but currently held no post in the organisation. The group demanded a full investigation into the role of everyone named in the case, including Bisht.

ABVP Uttarakhand Secretary Yashwant Pawar said the incident was condemnable and called for an impartial inquiry. "No leniency should be shown towards anyone involved in such serious crimes," he said, adding that ABVP would support efforts to secure justice for the victim.

Police said four people had been arrested: Bisht, Nitin Pal, Ansh Khatri and Himanshu Boni. Nainital Senior Superintendent of Police Manjunath TC said the girl's family had filed a complaint with the police. The complaint alleged that the accused lured and pressured the minor to go to a hotel, where she was sexually assaulted through threats and intimidation.

Police registered a First Information Report. The SSP said investigators inspected the hotel and reviewed CCTV footage, which he said supported the occurrence of the incident. ABVP urged authorities to take strict legal action against anyone found guilty.

Jagan accuses Naidu of taking credit for AP's AEI rise

AMARAVATI

YSRCP chief Jagan Mohan Reddy said in a post on X that Andhra Pradesh rose from 10th place in the 2021 Access (In)Equality Index (AEI) report to third in the 2024 report. He called Chief Minister N. Chandrababu Naidu's claim "credit chori" and said the progress reflected policies of his government.

Jagan said the index, published by OP Jindal Global University with the Centre for New Economic Studies, assessed states across five areas linked to social and human development. He said the 2021 report used data from before 2019, while the 2024 report drew on figures from 2021 to 2023.

Andhra Pradesh in the AEI, 2021 to 2024

OVERALL 10th to 3rd	HEALTH 8th to 2nd
SOCIO-ECONOMIC SECURITY 11th to 1st	LEGAL RECOURSE 15th to 2nd

He said Andhra Pradesh's Health Index position improved from eighth to second, while its Socio-Economic Security ranking rose from 11th to first. In the Legal Recourse category, he said the state moved from 15th place to second. Jagan attributed the changes to welfare programmes, support for private consumption during hardship, and assistance to industry and manufacturing.

Jagan also disputed Naidu's description of the state's finances under the previous government, saying the gains came during a period the Chief Minister had described as the state being "on a ventilator."

YSRCP seeks proof of Lokesh's claim on Rs 5,000 crore fee dues

AMARAVATI

YSR Congress Party spokesperson G. Veera Shekhar Reddy challenged Andhra Pradesh Education Minister Nara Lokesh to provide evidence for his claim that Rs 5,000 crore in fee reimbursement dues had been paid.

Shekhar Reddy said the minister should answer questions about student dues instead of making personal remarks about Jagan's family. According to a YSRCP release, fee reimbursement and Vasathi Deevena payments total more than Rs 12,400 crore, including about Rs 9,100 crore in fee reimbursement and Rs 3,300 crore under Vasathi Deevena.

He claimed the government had paid Rs 2,800 crore in two years, leaving around Rs 9,600 crore outstanding. He also cited Comptroller and Auditor General figures, saying Rs 1,771 crore was paid under fee reimbursement in 2024–25.

Students denied hall tickets

The spokesperson alleged that students were being denied entry to classes, hall tickets and certificates because colleges had not received payments. The release referred to two students at a private engineering college in Chittoor who reportedly attempted suicide amid fee-related pressure.

A call for a white paper

Shekhar Reddy urged Lokesh to issue a white paper showing when the claimed Rs 5,000 crore was paid and which budget funded it. He said the government should prioritise students' education over publicity and event spending.

"Bundle of Lies": Bawankule hits Rahul's claims

NAGPUR

Bawankule dismissed the phone-tapping claim as having no substance

Maharashtra Minister Chandrashekhar Bawankule criticised Congress leader Rahul Gandhi over his allegation that the Central government had tapped his phone, calling the claim baseless.

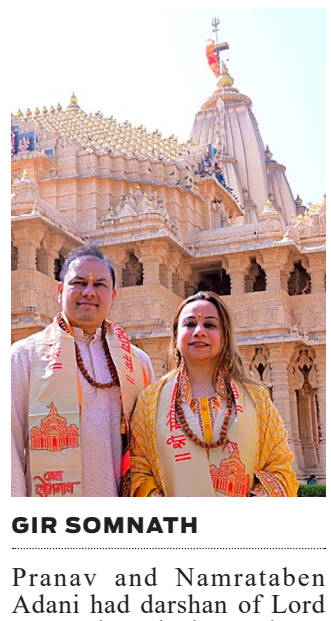

Speaking to reporters on Saturday, Bawankule accused Gandhi of making frequent allegations to attract public and media attention. "Rahul Gandhi is a bundle of lies," he said, dismissing the phone-tapping claim as having no substance. He also predicted a major National Democratic Alliance victory in the 2029 election.

Bawankule said Prime Minister Narendra Modi was committed to fulfilling promises made in the BJP's 2024 manifesto and to building a developed India. He argued that this would help the NDA win nationally and said Gandhi had lost his footing.

His comments followed Gandhi's claim that Modi was aware of surveillance because his phone was being tapped. Gandhi renewed his call for an open debate with the Prime Minister. In a video shared by Congress on X, he said a face-to-face discussion would allow the public to hear who was under the influence of foreign powers and who was acting against national interests.

Gandhi also said evidence supporting his claims was on his phone and that Modi knew what it contained.

GIR SOMNATH

Pranav and Namrataben Adani had darshan of Lord Somnath Mahadev, a devotional visit to the deity, and performed Jalabhishek, a ritual offering of water. They also took part in Shri Someshwar Mahapuja and Dhwaja Puja, following traditional scriptural practices at the temple.

Somnath is revered as the first Jyotirlinga, a sacred shrine dedicated to Lord Shiva.

The couple offered an Annakut Manorath to the deity. Shree Somnath Trust General Manager Vijaysinh Chavda welcomed the couple on behalf of the trust and presented them with a memento and temple prasad.

During the visit, Pranav Adani also went to the Baan Stambh, or Arrow Pillar, located within the temple premises. He appreciated the ancient geographical knowledge reflected in Sanatan culture.

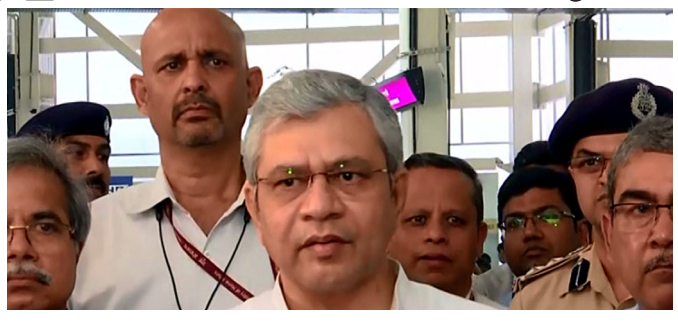

The Shree Somnath Temple is in Gujarat's Gir Somnath district.

JANAKPUR RAIL LINK

India approves weekly train between Ayodhya, Janakpur

NEW DELHI

The Ministry of Railways said the route connects two sites associated with the Ramayana tradition: Janakpur Dham, revered as the birthplace of Sita, and Ayodhya, regarded as the birthplace of Lord Ram.

The service will run between Janakpur Dham and Ayodhya Cantt, with commercial stops at Jaynagar, Madhubani, Shisho, Sitamarhi, Raxaul, Narkatiaganj, Gorakhpur, Basti, Mankapur and Ayodhya Dham.

The weekly train will leave Janakpur Dham on Saturdays and Ayodhya Cantt on Mondays. It is also expected to support travel for education, business and family visits, and bring opportunities for local traders, hotels, tourism operators and traditional artisans along the route.

Railway officials from India and Nepal have discussed the service, including customs, immigration, security, signalling and passenger facilities. Officials inspected the Jaynagar–Janakpur Dham–Kurtha section after reaching an initial understanding on responsibilities for passenger and train security on each side of the border. An Indian train also completed a trial run from Jaynagar to Kurtha earlier this month.

Nepal Railways Managing Director Paribesh Parajuli told ANI that Indian Railways would operate the service for now, with Nepal potentially taking over when it has the resources. He said the plan was for one round trip each week, with frequency subject to passenger demand. The new link adds a rail connection between neighbouring countries with longstanding cultural and social ties, and could make travel between the two religious destinations more convenient.

China's party discipline risks weakening governance

NAYPYIDAW

The Chinese Communist Party's tighter control over officials could leave them more worried about making political mistakes than solving public problems, the Ayeyarwaddy Times reported. President Xi Jinping's anti-corruption campaign, launched in 2012, has expanded across government agencies, state-owned companies and local administrations. The report said investigations can help uncover misconduct, but a rise in cases could reflect either more corruption or stronger enforcement.

China and US weigh mutual tariff cuts

Trade officials explored lower import taxes on roughly $30 billion in goods from each country before Trump meets Xi Jinping.

BEIJING

China and the United States discussed lowering import taxes on goods worth about $30 billion from each country, days before US President Donald Trump and Chinese President Xi Jinping are expected to meet in Shenzhen.

Officials raised the proposal at the first meeting of the US-China Board of Trade, China's Commerce Ministry said on Saturday. The two sides also discussed farm trade and how to put agreements from earlier talks into practice.

Lists of imports

Under the proposal, Washington and Beijing would each draw up a list of imports that could qualify for lower taxes. Both countries would have to agree on which products to include. Together, the two lists would cover roughly $60 billion in goods. Officials also have to work within domestic trade rules.

The plan grew out of talks between Trump and Xi in Washington in September. The White House said at the time that the new trade board would start by discussing which imports could get lower rates. Friday's meeting gave officials a chance to pick up that work before the leaders meet again.

$30 bn in goods from each country could get lower import taxes

$17 bn of US farm products in the proposal, Reuters reported

Farm goods

Farm goods could make up a large share of the US list. Reuters reported that the proposal includes about $17 billion worth of American farm products that China imported in 2024. Lower duties on those goods would reduce the taxes that Chinese importers pay when they bring them into the country.

Trump and Xi are expected to meet during the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation summit in Shenzhen. The tariff plan is still under discussion, and Friday's meeting ended without a final deal. A decision on which products will qualify and how far their duties will fall would give exporters and importers a clearer idea of what the agreement would mean for their businesses.

Pakistan sends its climate minister to Delhi forum

ISLAMABAD

Musadik Masood Malik will represent Pakistan at a gathering in India that brings countries together to discuss their cultural heritage.

Pakistan's Foreign Office announced Malik's nomination on Saturday. He will attend the Shanghai Cooperation Organisation's Civilisational Dialogue Forum, which runs from Nov. 20 to 22 in New Delhi. Malik is Pakistan's federal minister for climate change and environmental coordination.

India invited all members of the Shanghai Cooperation Organisation, including Pakistan, to the first edition of the forum. Pakistan's Foreign Office said earlier this month that it had received the invitation and that the country's leaders would decide whether to take part. Saturday's announcement named Malik as Pakistan's representative.

Indian Defence Minister Rajnath Singh announced in October that New Delhi would host the event. He was speaking at a meeting of the organisation's heads of government in Dushanbe, Tajikistan. The forum follows a proposal from Indian Prime Minister Narendra Modi for member countries to hold talks about their cultures and histories.

India plans to open the forum on Nov. 20, with Modi expected to attend the opening ceremony. China, Saudi Arabia, Türkiye and Iran were among the countries that had confirmed attendance. The programme includes sessions on art and architecture, as well as languages, literature and manuscripts. Delegates are also expected to visit Purana Qila, a historic fort in New Delhi where excavations have uncovered traces of the city's past.

Musadik Masood Malik will join delegates from across the region for three days of talks on art, literature and heritage.

Pakistan took over the rotating chair of the organisation's Council of Heads of State from Kyrgyzstan in September. Malik's trip would be the first visit to India by a Pakistani minister in more than three years.

INDIA REJECTS UN CALL TO PAUSE EXECUTIONS

NEW YORK

India voted against a United Nations draft resolution calling for a pause in the use of the death penalty. During Friday's vote in the General Assembly's Third Committee, India said countries should be able to decide their own laws and penalties. It argued that there was no international agreement against capital punishment.

India backed a separate draft resolution urging countries to end unlawful executions. However, it refused to support a paragraph asking governments to consider recommendations from a UN expert whose report said the death penalty itself amounted to torture or ill-treatment. India said its support for that draft reflected its opposition to executions carried out without legal authority.

Bhavika Mangalanandan, a first secretary at India's UN mission, said courts in India reserve the death penalty for the "rarest of rare" cases. She said a higher court must confirm every death sentence and that courts must consider circumstances that could justify a lesser penalty. She also argued that an international treaty on civil and political rights allows countries to use the death penalty under strict limits.

India's vote followed the position it took on similar proposals in 2016, 2018 and 2024. The United States also voted against the draft. US representative Yaryna Fencevych said decisions on capital punishment should go through each country's democratic process and comply with international law. She called for fair trials and a ban on execution methods designed to cause needless suffering.

The committee approved the draft calling for a pause by a large majority. France welcomed the result, saying a halt to executions would bring countries closer to ending the death penalty worldwide.

- ✗ Draft calling for a pause in the death penalty: against
- ✓ Draft urging an end to unlawful executions: backed

Zelenskyy highlights Danish aid and UK sanctions

KYIV

Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy said Saturday that Denmark had offered Ukraine €645 million in defence aid and €20 million for its energy sector. He also pointed to new British sanctions targeting Russia's oil industry.

In a post on X, Zelenskyy said his visits to Denmark and Ireland had brought practical results. He visited Denmark on Nov. 10 and 11 before travelling to Ireland for the European Political Community summit. He said talks with European leaders covered ways to strengthen Ukraine's air defences and support its power supply and railways through the winter.

Iran warns tankers after reported mine strike

TEHRAN

Iran's navy warned tankers on Saturday to stay out of a restricted area east of the Strait of Hormuz after it said an oil tanker struck a naval mine there. The navy said the ship had entered the area despite earlier warnings.

Iran's state news agency ISNA reported that the tanker had turned off systems used to identify and track it. The navy warned that other tankers entering the area could face the same danger. The report gave no details about the crew.

Hours earlier, Iran's Revolutionary Guard navy said two oil tankers caught fire after hitting mines while trying to cross the southern part of the strait without permission. Iranian state broadcaster IRIB reported the claim. It was unclear whether the tanker in the later warning was one of those two vessels.

The Revolutionary Guard urged shipping companies to contact its traffic control centre before crossing. Iran imposed limits on shipping through the strait after the United States and Israel began a military campaign against the country on Feb. 28. Tehran says ships must get permission from Iranian authorities to pass safely.

The Strait of Hormuz carries a large share of the world's oil.

Rights commission demands release of Sindh protesters

ISLAMABAD

The Human Rights Commission of Pakistan has urged authorities to release protesters still in custody after a Nov. 10 demonstration in Kandiaro, in Sindh province. The commission said the gathering was peaceful and called on officials to protect the right to protest.

Charges

In a statement on X, the commission said those detained included members of the Sindh Youth Action Committee, the Sindh Sagar Party and other local groups. The demonstrators wanted the government to set aside public land for the proposed university, hospital and park.

The protesters were charged with unlawful assembly, obstructing public servants and disrupting public order. At least 12 had been granted bail, the commission said. It raised concerns about those who remained in custody and urged authorities to respect freedom of speech and peaceful assembly.

In a separate statement, the commission cited reports of fresh violence in Rawalakot, with casualties reported among protesters and law enforcement personnel. It called on federal and regional officials to prevent further violence, open talks and let journalists report freely.

Report warns Badr pact could weaken Washington

WASHINGTON

A defence agreement among four countries could reduce US influence over arms sales and sanctions if the members expand their military cooperation, the Middle East Forum said in a report.

Pakistan, Turkey, Qatar and Indonesia signed the Badr Agreement in Doha on Oct. 21. The report described it as a memorandum of understanding and said other countries could join later. The Turkish Defence Ministry said the agreement covers work on military equipment, technical training and joint exercises.

Who brings what

The report said Turkey could provide technology, Pakistan and Indonesia could offer factories and skilled workers, and Qatar could supply funding. All four countries use Western military equipment, though they buy from several suppliers. The think tank warned that joint projects could give partners access to sensitive parts or technology that suppliers had originally approved for use by only one country.

THE ADVICE

Act while the pact is still taking shape

- Track technology transfers linked to it
- Seek assurances from Turkey on allied technology
- Review how Pakistan uses US-made equipment

Track the technology

The forum urged Washington and its allies to track technology transfers linked to the agreement. It recommended seeking assurances from Turkey, a NATO member, that it would protect allied technology in shared projects. It also called for a review of rules governing how Pakistan uses military equipment made in the United States, citing Islamabad's close defence ties with China.

The report urged Washington to act while the agreement is still taking shape, before joint projects grow and more countries consider joining.

Jaishankar: India-US trade deal nears completion

The proposed Modi-Trump meeting may boost trade negotiations and strengthen economic and diplomatic ties between India and the US.

NEW DELHI

India and the United States have resolved most issues in their proposed trade agreement, with negotiations nearing completion and a final deal expected soon, External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar said on Saturday.

Speaking at the HT Leadership Summit, Jaishankar said both countries had settled most concerns, including tariff-related matters. He described the negotiations as approaching the "finishing line" and expressed confidence that the remaining differences could be resolved.

He said some of the outstanding issues were not mainly on India's side, indicating that more changes had taken place on the American side. However, discussions were continuing to address the remaining concerns before the agreement could be finalised.

The minister's remarks come ahead of Prime Minister Narendra Modi's likely visit to the United States next month for the G20 Summit. During the visit, Modi is expected to meet US President Donald Trump on the sidelines of the summit.

The proposed meeting could give the two leaders an opportunity to review the progress of the trade agreement and discuss the broader direction of India-US relations. The discussions may also help both countries strengthen economic and diplomatic ties.

- A meeting with US President Donald Trump expected on its sidelines
- Discussions continue on the remaining concerns

The proposed trade pact is expected to improve trade relations, address tariff-related concerns and create greater opportunities for businesses in both countries. However, the final agreement will depend on resolving the remaining differences through ongoing discussions.

Jaishankar's statement indicates that both sides have made considerable progress and are working towards completing the negotiations. He did not give a specific date for signing the agreement.

India bans battery waste exports to boost recycling

NEW DELHI

The government has banned exports of battery waste and lithium-ion black mass to strengthen domestic recycling and secure supplies of critical minerals

The Centre has banned the export of battery waste, scrap and lithium-ion battery black mass with immediate effect to strengthen domestic recycling and reduce dependence on imported critical minerals.

The Directorate General of Foreign Trade (DGFT) announced the restriction on Wednesday. Black mass is a powder obtained by shredding used lithium-ion batteries. It contains valuable minerals such as lithium, cobalt, nickel, manganese and graphite, which are used in electric vehicles, electronic devices and energy storage systems.

In 2025-26, India's imports of electrical and electronic waste rose nearly 29 per cent to USD 553.19 million, from USD 430.32 million in the previous year. Lithium imports also rose to USD 46.91 million from USD 35.71 million.

A DGFT official said the ban would give Indian recyclers better access to raw materials and encourage investment in recycling facilities.

Nitin Gupta, CEO of Attero, said exporting black mass for processing and importing refined materials resulted in a loss of domestic value addition. He said the ban would help recyclers expand operations. Uditanshu Agarwal of Staunch Electronics said the move would strengthen India's domestic supply chain.

Piyush Goyal to lead business delegation to Egypt

NEW DELHI

Union Commerce and Industry Minister Piyush Goyal will visit Egypt on November 15 and 16, leading a delegation of more than 130 business leaders and start-ups to strengthen trade and investment ties between the two countries.

During the two-day visit, Goyal and Egypt's Minister of Investment and Foreign Trade, Mohamed Farid Saleh, will co-chair the seventh session of the India-Egypt Joint Trade Committee (JTC) in Cairo on November 15, the Commerce Ministry said on Saturday.

The visit will include the India-Egypt Joint Business Council meeting and Business Forum, bringing together representatives from both countries to explore joint ventures, technology partnerships and investment opportunities. An India-Egypt Start-up Forum will also be organised to encourage cooperation between emerging businesses.

The ministerial-level JTC meeting will review bilateral trade and investment and discuss ways to expand the range of goods traded. Discussions will cover market access, trade barriers, pharmaceuticals, agriculture, engineering, textiles, fertilisers, renewable energy and green hydrogen.

Bilateral merchandise trade reached USD 5.04 billion during April-September 2026, registering 64 per cent growth compared with the same period last year.

India exported goods worth USD 3.87 billion to Egypt in FY 2025-26, while imports stood at USD 2.60 billion.

Goyal will also meet senior Egyptian ministers and interact with business and financial institutions. Both countries will explore cooperation in manufacturing, infrastructure, ports, logistics and the Suez Canal Economic Zone.

Cement sector earnings likely to recover in Q3

NEW DELHI

India's cement sector is expected to witness an improvement in earnings during the third quarter of FY27, supported by recent price increases and a seasonal recovery in demand, according to a report by Dolat Capital.

The brokerage expects earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortisation (EBITDA) per tonne to rise sequentially by Rs 135, or 16.2 per cent, in Q3FY27. The improvement is expected to come from a 2.1 per cent increase in average selling prices and a 0.3 per cent decline in operating costs per tonne.

Cement prices in the trade segment increased by Rs 9 per bag in October, following a Rs 6 increase in September. Non-trade prices also went up by Rs 5-20 per bag across markets.

The report said further price increases after Diwali could help companies manage rising costs of cement bags, coal, petcoke and diesel.

During Q2FY27, the companies covered by the brokerage reported a 13.9 per cent rise in revenue to Rs 58,980 crore. Sales volumes rose 9.7 per cent to 103.7 million tonnes. EBITDA, however, declined 1.8 per cent to Rs 8,650 crore and EBITDA per tonne fell 10.4 per cent to Rs 834.

Cement outlook

- Rs 135 — EBITDA a tonne seen rising in Q3FY27
- Rs 9 — trade price rise a bag in October
- 8-9% — industry growth, first half of FY27

The brokerage noted that infrastructure and housing demand supported industry growth of 8-9 per cent during the first half of FY27.

However, additional capacity of 173 million tonnes annually against expected demand growth of 122 million tonnes during FY26-29 may restrict price increases. Cost control and efficiency will remain important for cement companies.

Tata Sons listing could alter group's traditional values

NEW DELHI

Tata Trusts Chairman Noel Tata has warned that listing Tata Sons could change the group's traditional business approach by placing greater importance on profits than philanthropy.

Speaking at the Hindustan Times Leadership Summit on Saturday, Noel said increasing the number of shareholders after a public listing could affect the group's long-standing values. He said the Tata Group had, for more than 150 years, followed its unique approach, balancing business growth with social welfare.

He expressed concern that a listing could bring 30,000 to 40,000 shareholders, potentially shifting the focus towards profits. Noel said Tata Trusts would engage constructively with regulators and other authorities to find a solution that would allow Tata Sons to remain unlisted.

Tata Trusts owns nearly two-thirds of Tata Sons, the group's holding company. The issue has led to differences between the trusts and the company's management, led by Chairman N Chandrasekaran. While the trusts oppose listing, the management has maintained that it must follow regulatory requirements. Noel had also opposed Chandrasekaran's reappointment at a board meeting on September 17.

Noel said there was no change in the group's strategic direction, but stressed the need for better execution of major projects. He welcomed investments in semiconductors, batteries and electric vehicles as important contributions to nation-building.

He also spoke about Trent's retail brands, Westside and Zudio.

RBI may raise repo rate by 25 basis points

NEW DELHI

The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) may opt for a smaller 25-basis-point repo rate hike in December as global economic and domestic financial pressures begin to ease, according to an SBI Research report.

The report revised its earlier forecast of a possible 50-basis-point increase, saying the chances now favour a smaller adjustment. It also assigned a 50 per cent probability to the terminal repo rate settling at 6 per cent or 5.75 per cent.

Consumer Price Index (CPI) inflation rose to 6.09 per cent in October, crossing the RBI's upper tolerance limit of 6 per cent for the first time under the new series. The report expects inflation to remain above 6 per cent in November before declining.

SBI Research said the RBI had made progress in controlling rupee volatility and easing liquidity pressures.

Improved foreign investment flows and a better global economic outlook are also expected to support the rupee. Foreign institutional investors have invested around USD 7.65 billion since November 6, the report said.

The report expects India's 10-year government bond yield to remain between 6.75 and 7 per cent, with a downward trend. It said further rate increases in February would not be advisable ahead of the Union Budget.

SBI Research sees

- December: a 25-basis-point repo hike
- Terminal rate: 6% or 5.75%
- CPI, October: 6.09%, above the 6% limit
- 10-year yield: 6.75-7%

He also revealed that the climax includes a 2.18-minute fight sequence filmed in a single take. The sequence required three months of intensive training. Responding to questions, he said the film's complete story could not be judged through a two-minute trailer and expressed confidence that audiences would enjoy it in theatres.

Producer Radha said she had invested her savings from working as a domestic cook to fulfil her son's dream of entering the film industry. Her emotional statement moved those present.

The film was shot in Varanasi, Bengaluru, Mandya, Hassan, Chikkamagaluru, Madikeri and Mysuru. Distributor Baguru Prashanth, known for 'Premada Oorali', is planning its release this month.

Huma Qureshi Faces Yash Fans' Anger Over 'Toxic' Jokes

Samay Raina's latest comedy episode featuring Huma Qureshi has triggered a debate among fans of Kannada actor Yash. Huma, who plays an important role in Yash's upcoming film 'Toxic', faced trolling after the movie became the subject of jokes during the show. During one segment, comedian Krushna Abhishek spoke about an incident involving his uncle, actor Govinda, who accidentally shot himself in the foot while handling a gun. Another panel member then made a sarcastic comment about 'Toxic', saying the film was so bad that he wanted to shoot himself after watching it. The remark received loud applause from the audience. How Beijing Cleared Its Air and Why Delhi Is Still Struggling to Breathe

BEIJING 27 | DELHI 97

Annual average PM2.5 in 2025, micrograms per cubic metre

China's capital cut its annual fine-particle pollution by nearly 70 per cent between 2013 and 2025. Delhi's slower progress exposes the difficulty of turning emergency restrictions into lasting changes in energy, transport, industry and agriculture.

Every winter, the capital's air becomes a public emergency. Pollution readings determine whether children should attend school, whether construction can continue and whether some vehicles can enter the city. The conversation turns to crop fires, traffic, fireworks and the weather. Eventually, conditions improve, restrictions ease and attention moves elsewhere. The underlying sources of pollution survive to meet another winter.

Beijing once appeared trapped in a similarly bleak future. Its smog became an international symbol of the environmental costs of rapid economic growth. Today, its transformation poses an uncomfortable question for India's capital: if another enormous, congested and economically important Asian city could sharply reduce pollution, why has Delhi struggled to achieve a comparable breakthrough?

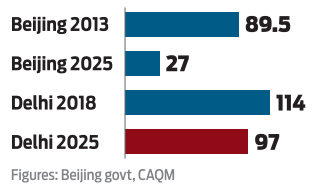

The difference is measurable. Beijing's municipal government reports that annual average concentrations of PM2.5, the fine particles that penetrate deep into the lungs, fell from 89.5 micrograms per cubic metre in 2013 to 27 in 2025. That represents a reduction of 69.8 per cent. Delhi's annual average in 2025 was 97, according to the Commission for Air Quality Management, or CAQM. On these official measures, Delhi's concentration was about 3.6 times Beijing's.

Delhi, meanwhile, has made some progress. The CAQM's updated series shows annual PM2.5 falling from 114 in 2018 to 97 in 2025, roughly 15 per cent.

Annual PM2.5
micrograms per cubic metre

Figures: Beijing govt, CAQM

The latter was its lowest annual concentration in that period apart from the pandemic year of 2020. These are different comparison periods from Beijing's, so the percentage reductions cannot be treated as a controlled contest. Nevertheless, Delhi's remaining pollution burden shows how much further it must travel.

Beijing's transformation began well before its most celebrated recent gains

A United Nations Environment Programme review traces intensified pollution control back to 1998. The work covered energy infrastructure, coal combustion and vehicle emissions. Progress accumulated over years, before a more intensive campaign accelerated the decline after 2013.

The 2013–2017 clean-air programme marked a decisive phase. UNEP found that Beijing's PM2.5 concentration fell by approximately 35 per cent during those five years, while the surrounding Beijing–Tianjin–Hebei region improved by about 25 per cent. Controls on coal-fired boilers, cleaner household fuels and industrial restructuring were major contributors.

Coal was an especially important target. Burning it in small boilers and household heating systems dispersed pollution through numerous sources that were difficult to manage individually. Replacing dirty combustion with cleaner energy changed what entered the atmosphere every day. It reduced the burden that favourable winds would otherwise have to carry away.

Beijing's long clean-up

- 1998 Pollution control intensifies, a UNEP review finds
- 2013–2017 Clean-air programme: PM2.5 falls about 35 per cent
- 2017 A hurried coal-to-gas switch leaves some northern villages without adequate heating
- 2018–2020 Second phase: the pace of improvement slows
- 2025 Annual PM2.5 at 27, down 69.8 per cent from 2013

Money helped turn those requirements into practical changes

A World Bank-supported clean-energy financing programme in the Beijing–Tianjin–Hebei region backed energy efficiency, renewable energy and emissions controls. By its 2020 results report, it had supported 27 subprojects with total investment of about $1.3 billion. That was one financing initiative, rather than the total cost of Beijing's clean-up, but it illustrates the investment behind the regulatory ambition.

For Delhi, the implication is straightforward: an order to use cleaner fuel is only part of a transition. Businesses need reliable supplies and finance for equipment. Households need affordable alternatives. Transport operators need charging or refuelling infrastructure. Environmental rules are more likely to endure when compliance is physically possible and economically manageable.

China's experience also warns against treating rapid enforcement as an unqualified virtue. Its hurried coal-to-gas transition left some northern villages without adequate heating in 2017. That failure shows why replacement infrastructure must be ready before existing supplies are withdrawn. Cleaner air cannot be built on an assumption that households will absorb any hardship imposed in its name.

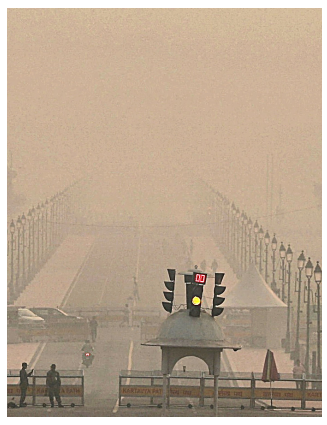

Nor does Beijing's progress prove that India must copy China's political system.

Delhi's challenge begins with the size of the atmosphere it shares

Although often described as New Delhi's pollution crisis, the problem extends across the National Capital Territory, its satellite cities and a much wider northern Indian region. A municipal boundary offers no protection against polluted air arriving from elsewhere.

The World Bank's work on South Asia emphasises management at the level of an "airshed": a geographical area connected by common air flows. Pollution can travel hundreds of kilometres. Its sources include households, agriculture, industry, transport and power generation. A city may regulate activities within its own territory and still receive a substantial pollution load from upwind areas.

An influential TERI–ARAI study published in 2018 estimated that Delhi's own emissions accounted for 36 per cent of its PM2.5 concentration in winter and 26 per cent in summer under that study's modelling framework. These historical estimates are not fixed percentages for present-day Delhi. Their significance is the regional dependence they reveal, rather than a permanent allocation of blame.

Delhi therefore needs two approaches simultaneously. It must reduce emissions within the city, where local authorities can act directly, while securing comparable action across the wider region. Outside pollution does not excuse failures inside Delhi. Equally, local improvements cannot substitute for work in neighbouring industrial clusters, towns, villages and farming areas.

India has recognised this institutional problem. Parliament established the CAQM through legislation in 2021 to coordinate air-quality management in the National Capital Region and adjoining areas. Its comprehensive policy,

36% Delhi's own emissions: their share of its winter PM2.5 in a 2018 TERI–ARAI estimate issued in 2022, covers transport, industry, construction, road dust, waste burning, crop residues and other sources. It includes short-, medium- and longer-term measures.

The most visible response remains the Graded Response Action Plan, or GRAP

WHAT A CURB CANNOT DO

Construction restrictions
→ cannot replace permanent dust management

Vehicle restrictions
→ cannot create a dependable public-transport network

School closures
→ do not remove the pollution source

The government describes it as an emergency mechanism that escalates preventive and restrictive measures according to air quality and forecasts. Such a system has a necessary role: severe episodes require immediate action to limit emissions and protect people.

Its limitation is inherent in its purpose. Temporarily stopping an activity does not necessarily make that activity cleaner when it resumes. Construction restrictions cannot replace permanent dust management. Vehicle restrictions cannot create a dependable public-transport network. School closures can alter exposure for some children, but they do not remove the pollution source.

The question for policymakers is consequently what happens between emergencies. How many highly polluting operations have permanently upgraded? How much waste is reliably collected and processed? How many commuters have a usable alternative to driving? The answers determine whether each winter begins with a lower emissions burden or merely another revised emergency schedule.

Transport offers another example of real progress that has not been sufficient

India introduced BS-VI-compliant vehicles nationally in April 2020, while Delhi had received BS-VI fuel earlier. Cleaner fuels, stricter standards and measures to divert traffic not destined for the capital have all formed part of the official response.

These improvements need complementary policies. Cleaner new vehicles gradually enter a fleet that still requires maintenance and enforcement. Electric vehicles reduce tailpipe emissions but do not eliminate congestion or all particulate pollution associated with road use. A durable transport strategy must also make buses, trains, walking and last-mile connections practical for ordinary journeys.

The relevant measure is the service available to the commuter. A bus that exists in a procurement announcement but is not reliably available on a useful route cannot replace a car trip. Frequency, affordability, safe access and integration across city boundaries deserve the same attention as fleet numbers. These are everyday transport decisions with significant consequences for air quality.

Crop-residue burning requires practical thinking

It is a serious seasonal contributor, but it is also a farm-management problem. Farmers must clear fields between crops, and alternatives depend on timely access to machinery, operators, transport and buyers for the straw.

A CEEW study based on a survey of nearly 1,500 farmers across 11 Punjab districts found that machinery adoption did not necessarily eliminate burning. Among surveyed farmers using in-situ residue-management machines during the 2022 kharif season, nearly half still practised partial burning. The findings show why counting distributed machines cannot establish whether the intended environmental outcome occurred.

The policy challenge is to make non-burning methods dependable during the narrow period when farmers need them. Rental services must arrive on time. Collection and storage must work. Markets for straw must be viable. Longer-term diversification also needs credible economic alternatives, because asking farmers to change production without addressing their income risks is unlikely to deliver lasting cooperation.

? DID YOU KNOW?
Nearly half of the surveyed Punjab farmers using in-situ residue-management machines in the 2022 kharif season still practised partial burning (CEEW).

Beijing's success should encourage ambition without creating an illusion of easy replication

Its pollution sources, fiscal resources, urban development and governmental structure differ from Delhi's. The exact contribution of a coal-focused intervention in northern China cannot be assumed for the Indo-Gangetic Plain. Delhi needs its own periodically updated evidence about which measures will reduce exposure most effectively.

Even China faces diminishing returns. Research published in Nature Geoscience in 2024 found that the pace of policy-driven PM2.5 improvement slowed during the second phase of its clean-air actions, from 2018 to 2020, compared with 2013–2017. Further reductions became more costly, and the authors called for better-balanced controls across multiple pollutants.

India's capital does not lack warnings. Its challenge is to make clean air an ordinary requirement of economic administration: how transport is run, factories are regulated, farms are supported, waste is collected and energy is supplied. That work must remain politically important when the sky looks clear.

Beijing's story shows that a city's polluted past need not determine its future. Delhi's recurring emergency shows the cost of failing to turn that possibility into routine delivery. The decisive test will be what changes before the next cloud of smog arrives.

Sooryavanshi forgets Bihar XI on captaincy debut

When asked about his team combination after batting first, Sooryavanshi chuckled, "I think, sir, I forgot."

INDORE

Vaibhav Sooryavanshi experienced a light-hearted moment on his historic captaincy debut on Saturday when the 15-year-old forgot the details of Bihar's playing XI after winning the toss against Saurashtra in their Syed Mushtaq Ali Trophy (SMAT) 2026-27 opener at Holkar Stadium.

Asked about the team's combination after opting to bat, Sooryavanshi smiled and replied, "I think, sir, bhool gaya lagta main (I think, sir, I have forgotten)." His candid response brought a humorous touch to an otherwise significant occasion in his young cricketing career.

The Bihar youngster created history by becoming the youngest captain in men's T20 cricket at the age of 15 years and 232 days. He surpassed Croatia's Zach Vukusic, who previously held the record after captaining his national side at 17 years and 311 days.

Speaking about leading his home state, Sooryavanshi described the opportunity as a dream come true. He said he was grateful to captain the same state where his cricketing journey began and promised to fulfil the responsibility to the best of his ability.

However, his first outing as Bihar captain was modest with the bat. After winning the toss and electing to bat, he managed 18 runs off 12 deliveries before being caught and bowled by left-arm pacer Chetan Sakariya.

Bihar struggled following his dismissal and finished at 137 for nine in their allotted 20 overs. Prithvi Raj was the top scorer with 38 runs.

Sooryavanshi's participation in the tournament will be limited, as he is scheduled to join India A for the ACC Rising Stars Emerging tournament in Doha after playing just two matches for Bihar.

The teenager recently impressed in India's T20I series against New Zealand, scoring a blistering 45 off 19 deliveries in an opening partnership with Abhishek Sharma. India won the five-match series 3-2.

Despite the brief batting contribution, Sooryavanshi's captaincy debut marked another milestone in his rapidly developing cricket career.

INDIA EDGE PAKISTAN BY ONE WICKET IN FINAL

AL AMERAT (OMAN)

India defeated Pakistan by one wicket in a thrilling last-ball finish to clinch the Under-19 Asia Cup title at the Al Amerat Cricket Ground on Saturday.

In a final filled with dramatic twists and turns, India successfully chased down the target on the final delivery to secure the championship. The narrow victory over arch-rivals Pakistan made it a memorable contest, with the result remaining undecided until the last ball.

Pakistan had posted a challenging total, putting considerable pressure on the Indian team during the chase. Indian pacers Kavya Patel and C. Venkata claimed some crucial wickets towards the latter stages of Pakistan's innings. However, by then, Pakistan had already managed to build a substantial score.

India faced a demanding task in the run chase but held their nerve through the closing stages to cross the finish line with just one wicket remaining.

The last-ball victory underlined the intensity of the contest, as both teams fought hard for the continental title. India eventually emerged victorious in one of the most closely fought finals of the tournament.

The triumph also marked India's return to the top of the Under-19 Asia Cup, with the team regaining the title after a dramatic encounter against Pakistan. The final at Al Amerat provided a fitting conclusion to the tournament, with India sealing the championship in a contest that went down to the wire.

Mumbai, Punjab, Chandigarh, Puducherry win SMAT openers

NEW DELHI

Mumbai, Punjab, Chandigarh and Puducherry began their Syed Mushtaq Ali Trophy Elite 2026 campaigns with victories on the opening day of the tournament on Saturday. Mumbai registered the most emphatic win, defeating Hyderabad by seven wickets after chasing down a target of 173 in just 13.1 overs. Suryakumar Yadav led the charge with an unbeaten 60 off 21 balls, while Musheer Khan smashed 51 off 24 deliveries. Angkrish Raghuvanshi contributed 27 off 13 balls as Mumbai raced to 174/3.

Earlier, Hyderabad managed 172 in 20 overs, with Abhirath Reddy scoring 35. Maxwell Swaminathan claimed three wickets for Mumbai, while Sairaj Patil and Shivam Dube picked up two each. Punjab also secured a successful run chase, defeating Haryana by four wickets. Chasing 191, Punjab reached 193/6 in 19.1 overs. Vihaan Malhotra anchored the innings with an impressive 86 off 50 balls, while Uday Saharan remained unbeaten on 38 off 17 deliveries, hitting the winning boundary against Rahul Tewatia.

Haryana posted 190/6, with Dinesh Bana scoring 42 off 20 balls, Tewatia making 35 off 20 and Samant Jakhar adding 24 off 12. Harpreet Brar took two wickets for Punjab.

Chandigarh registered a thrilling three-wicket victory over Baroda, reaching 149/7 in 19.5 overs after restricting their opponents to 148/6. For Baroda, Shivalik Sharma scored 45 off 42 balls, while Krunal Pandya remained unbeaten on 40. Krunal also impressed with the ball, claiming two wickets for just seven runs. In the fourth encounter, Puducherry defeated Maharashtra by 15 runs while defending a total of 204/9. India eye winning finish in series decider against New Zealand

MOUNT MAUNGANUI

India will look to bounce back from their heavy defeat in the fourth ODI and finish the five-match series on a winning note when they face New Zealand in the final match at Bay Oval on Sunday.

While India have already ensured they cannot lose the series, the hosts will aim to level it 2-2 with another strong performance.

The contest has gained significance following New Zealand's emphatic 244-run victory in the fourth ODI. After posting 333 runs, the hosts bowled India out for just 89. Will Young led the batting effort with a career-best 125, while Matt Henry produced a devastating spell of 6/27.

Henry's early strikes, which removed Rohit Sharma, Virat Kohli and Shreyas Iyer, exposed India's vulnerability against disciplined pace bowling. The visitors will need a more assured start against New Zealand's fast bowlers, particularly in conditions that could favour seam movement.

India's batting will remain under scrutiny following the absence of Shubman Gill and KL Rahul, who have moved on to prepare for the upcoming Test assignment. Captain Iyer will be eager to provide stability, while Rohit and Kohli will be expected to lead the recovery. Ishan Kishan, Ruturaj Gaikwad and other middle-order options will also look to make valuable contributions.

India, however, have enjoyed success in the earlier matches, winning the opening ODI in Auckland and the second in Wellington. Their bowling attack has also delivered important performances, with Gurnoor Brar claiming four wickets in the second match. New Zealand will hope to carry forward their fourth-match momentum. Young's century and Tim Seifert's attacking 58 have strengthened their batting prospects, while Henry's return to form has provided a major boost to the pace attack.

The final match offers New Zealand an opportunity to deny India a series victory and build confidence ahead of the Test assignment. For India, a convincing all-round performance will be important to end the tour's ODI leg on a positive note.

Jamil urges India to bounce back against New Zealand

CHRISTCHURCH

India head coach Khalid Jamil has urged his players to take responsibility and deliver a stronger performance when they face New Zealand in the second international friendly at One New Zealand Stadium on Sunday.

India will be keen to recover from their disappointing 0-5 defeat in the opening friendly in Auckland. New Zealand dominated the contest, scoring through a Bijoy Varghese own goal, a brace from Jesse Randall, and goals from Chris Wood and Lachlan Bayliss. Acknowledging the team's shortcomings, Jamil said there could be no excuses and called on every player to give their best in the upcoming fixture.

India faced several challenges ahead of the opening match, including a seven-and-a-half-hour time difference and limited preparation time. However, Jamil believes the players have now adjusted to the conditions.

The coach also accepted responsibility for the heavy defeat, while acknowledging individual errors that contributed to the goals conceded. He remained encouraged by the players' attitude and determination to improve.

Captain Anirudh Thapa described the Auckland result as disappointing and stressed the need for greater discipline, better communication and collective responsibility.

"We cannot change the past result, but we can learn from it. We want to put in a much better performance," Thapa said, expressing confidence ahead of Sunday's encounter.

India travelled to Christchurch on Friday and held their final training session at the match venue on Saturday.

Jamil also appealed to Indian football supporters to remain patient as the team continues its rebuilding process and provides opportunities to emerging players. Four players Muhammad Suhail, David Lalhlansanga, Tomba Singh Haobam and Ricky Meetei Haobam made their international debuts in the first friendly.

Sandpapergate reviewer says players refused to change statements

NEW DELHI

Dr Simon Longstaff, the ethics expert commissioned by Cricket Australia (CA) to review the men's team's culture following the 2018 Sandpapergate scandal, has revealed that his efforts to encourage players to disclose the full truth about the ball-tampering episode received little response.

Longstaff said he had given senior players an opportunity to revise or add to their statements after hearing suggestions that more people knew about the incident than the three players who were sanctioned. However, nobody came forward with additional information.

"Nobody chose to make any alteration to their statement, so I was left with basically a blank wall," Longstaff said.

The controversy has resurfaced following revelations in Usman Khawaja's book, Sabr, in which the Australian batter claimed that the entire team knew about the ball-tampering incident during the Cape Town Test in 2018. He also alleged that sandpaper had been used during an earlier Test match.

Australia's Test and ODI captain Pat Cummins has strongly rejected the allegations, describing them as "complete and utter nonsense". However, former Australia opener David Warner has backed Khawaja's claims and criticised Cricket Australia. Longstaff said he had heard whispers that the ball-tampering practice might have occurred before the Cape Town Test and that more players could have been aware of it. He added that the conflicting accounts were insufficient to justify another investigation at the time.

Khawaja, meanwhile, claimed in his book that he had been willing to participate in Cricket Australia's investigation but was never interviewed. He said he had expected a phone call that never came before the penalties were announced.

Longstaff said several people had been invited to contribute to the wider review, although not everyone accepted the invitation. He could not recall whether Khawaja was among those approached.

FIA ban spurs daily mail boycott

LONDON

The Daily Mail has announced a boycott of the final three races of the 2026 Formula One season after the sport's governing body, the FIA, revoked the media credentials of veteran journalist Jonathan McEvoy over an opinion column criticising Ferrari driver Charles Leclerc.

The would not report on races or news conferences for the remainder of the season in protest against the decision to bar McEvoy from covering the Las Vegas, Qatar and Abu Dhabi Grands Prix.

McEvoy, who has covered Formula One for more than two decades, was informed on Thursday that his accreditation had been withdrawn. The action followed a November 4 opinion column in which he used insulting language to describe Leclerc while criticising the driver's conduct during an incident at the Mexico City Grand Prix.

The controversy arose from an opening-lap battle involving Leclerc and his Ferrari teammate Lewis Hamilton. Both drivers went off the track while contesting the lead at Turn 4. Leclerc crossed the grass and emerged ahead, subsequently receiving a five-second penalty for gaining an advantage off the track.

The FIA defended its decision, stating that McEvoy's article fell short of the professional standards expected of accredited journalists. It also said its accreditation guidelines allowed it to withdraw media credentials without notice and clarified that the decision did not prevent the newspaper from sending another reporter.

Daily Mail head of sport Chris Dean condemned the move, describing it as an attack on press freedom and demanding McEvoy's reinstatement.

The Society of Editors also criticised the decision, saying that withdrawing accreditation over published criticism could threaten independent sports journalism.

In a subsequent column, McEvoy suggested that Ferrari team principal Fred Vasseur had prompted the FIA's action. However, a Ferrari source told The Athletic that Vasseur had not lodged a complaint.
