Karnataka moves resolution to freeze Lok Sabha seats at Southern Zonal Council meet

MAHABALIPURAM

Karnataka Chief Minister DK Shivakumar told Union Home Minister Amit Shah on Thursday that the federal government must "give the South its due" with fair funding, and called for a freeze on the existing number of Lok Sabha seats and women's reservation be accommodated within the current number of seats.

'Maintain 1971 census for seats'

In his address at the 31st Southern Zonal Council (SZC) meeting chaired by Union Home Minister Amit Shah near Mahabalipuram in Tamil Nadu, Shivakumar urged the council to adopt a resolution asking the Union Government to use the 1971 Census as the basis for delimitation, retain the Lok Sabha's existing strength of 543 seats for the next 25 years and accommodate women's reservation within those seats.

He argued that southern states should not be penalised for successfully implementing population-control measures. "We welcome the assurance that no southern state will lose seats. But representation is not only about numbers. It is about weight, and about voice."

Shivakumar said the southern states had responded to the country's call for population stabilisation and should not lose political representation because of that. "I am confident that all the chief ministers here will support me in what I say. Let the 1971 basis be honoured, and let the strength of our voice be protected," he said. He also linked delimitation to the implementation of women's reservation, saying it should not be delayed because of a fresh exercise to redraw constituencies. Shivakumar called for the Lok Sabha's strength to remain fixed at 543 seats for 25 years, with women's reservation accommodated within the existing number.

He expressed strong objections to public sector undertakings (PSU) auctioning lands allotted by the state government, calling it "a misuse of resources".

Except 5 TMC for drinking, Mekedatu dam water from will be for TN: DKS

Mahabalipuram: DK Shivakumar, flanked by his Tamil Nadu counterpart Vijay, on Thursday said the proposed Mekedatu dam across River Cauvery would benefit both the states by storing water for use during periods of scarcity and asserted that "Water should unite us and not divide us", stressing on the need for greater cooperation among states in managing river water issues.

"Help us to help you," he said, adding, every drop of water from the project would benefit farmers in the neighbouring states. "Except 5 TMC for drinking water, the rest of the stored water in the proposed dam would be released to Tamil Nadu," he added.

He said the proposed Mekedatu reservoir was crucial not only for Karnataka, but also for Tamil Nadu as it would help conserve water that otherwise flows into the sea as surplus during periods of heavy inflow.

He maintained that his state's legal share of water must be respected, saying Karnataka had not attended the conference to complain but as a partner in India's development.

It is time to move from a mindset of river water sharing to one of river water cooperation.
-DK Shivakumar, Karnataka CM

Legitimate rights of lower riparian states should be protected: Vijay

Mahabalipuram: With his Karnataka counterpart D K Shivakumar by his side, Tamil Nadu CM Vijay on Thursday stressed that the "legitimate rights" of lower riparian states must be fully protected and pushed for the timely implementation of the Supreme Court verdict and decisions of the Cauvery Water Management Authority (CWMA) on sharing of Cauvery River water.

He said no agenda for Southern cooperation is complete without addressing our shared rivers, while stressing that water was fundamental to the lives, and livelihoods of millions. His remarks on inter-state water sharing carry significant weight, coming on the heels of a recently cancelled bilateral meeting between him and Shivakumar over the Cauvery dispute.

Tamil Nadu and Karnataka have locked horns over Cauvery water sharing for decades. Tamil Nadu continues to press Karnataka to strictly implement CWMA orders and adhere to the monthly release schedules stipulated by the SC.

Our rivers, coasts, infrastructure and markets should unite us in a common purpose and shared prosperity. Strong states make for a stronger India.
-C Joseph Vijay, Tamil Nadu CM

BNP's Alamgir elected as Bangladesh prez

DHAKA

Bangladesh has elected senior Bangladesh Nationalist Party (BNP) leader Mirza Fakhru Islam Alamgir as its 23rd president, marking a significant shift for a politician who until recently held one of the party's top organisational posts.

Alamgir secured 255 votes in Thursday's presidential election held at the Jatiya Sangsad, Bangladesh's Parliament. His rival, Oli Ahmed, the candidate backed by an 11-party opposition alliance led by Bangladesh Jamaat-e-Islami and the National Citizen Party (NCP), received 88 votes.

The voting took place between 2 pm and 5 pm local time under the supervision of chief election commissioner AMM Nasir Uddin. Of the 349 MPs eligible to vote, 343 cast their ballots. The chief election commissioner later announced Alamgir as the winner.

A contested presidential poll after 35 years

Thursday's poll was notable because it was the first time in 35 years that more than one candidate contested Bangladesh's presidential election. The previous presidential election involv-

From BNP leadership to the presidency

Alamgir's election marks a major change in his political role. He had served as BNP secretary general before stepping down to contest the presidential poll. The result also comes at a significant point in Bangladesh's political transition, with the BNP now holding power after years of opposition politics. Alamgir's move from the party's organisational leadership to the country's highest constitutional office places a senior BNP figure at the head of state. The President's role here is largely constitutional and ceremonial, while executive authority rests with the PM.

ing a parliamentary vote was held in 1991. Alamgir had been nominated as the BNP's presidential candidate last week. After receiving the nomination, he stepped down as BNP Secretary General and resigned from the party's National Standing Committee.

BNP Senior Joint Secretary General Ruhul Kabir Rizvi announced his nomination following a meeting of the party's National Standing Committee near the Bangladesh Prime Minister's Office at the Secretariat. Rizvi said the decision followed discussions with Prime Minister and BNP Chairman Tarique Rahman.

Eight families face social boycott in Honnavar

HONNAVAR

Eight families in Honnavar taluk of Uttara Kannada district are reportedly facing a social boycott, with the situation having a serious impact on their children's education. The affected families have alleged that they have been socially isolated, forcing them to deal with difficulties in accessing basic community services and maintaining normal social relations. The boycott has particularly affected school-going children. Although a school is located close to their homes, the children of the affected families have reportedly been forced to travel nearly eight kilometres to attend another school. The additional distance has created inconvenience for the students and their parents, raising concerns over their education and safety. According to reports, the families have sought intervention from the authorities to resolve the issue and end the alleged social exclusion. The incident has drawn attention to the continuing problem of social boycotts in rural areas, where community-level disputes can sometimes affect entire families, including children who have no role in the dispute. The affected families have urged the administration to investigate the circumstances behind the boycott and ensure that their children can attend the nearby school without facing discrimination or obstruction. They have also sought protection from any further social pressure or harassment. The incident comes amid wider concerns in Karnataka over social ostracism and informal community restrictions. In another recent case in Belagavi district, police registered a case against nine people over an alleged social boycott of a family following a dispute involving temple rituals and personal differences.

has also announced strict measures to control noise pollution during the festival. A fine of up to ₹1 lakh will be imposed for excessive DJ sound and violations of prescribed noise limits. The authorities are expected to closely monitor celebrations and take action against those who fail to follow the regulations. The restrictions come ahead of the annual Ganesh festival, when large numbers of idols are installed in public places, residential areas and community venues across the district. The administration has urged organisers to obtain necessary permissions and ensure that celebrations are conducted in accordance with the prescribed environmental and public safety guidelines. Officials have emphasised the need for public cooperation in implementing the restrictions. Idol makers and sellers have been asked to

Canal seepage continues to trouble farmers in Doni, Dambal

Farmers in Doni and Dambal villages of Gadag district continue to face problems caused by seepage from the canal, with agricultural land being affected and cultivation activities disrupted. The taluk administration had earlier reported that nearly 102 acres in Doni and 145 acres in Dambal had been affected by canal seepage. Despite the issue being brought to the attention of the authorities, farmers continue to face difficulties as water from the canal enters agricultural fields. Farmers have expressed concern over the impact of the seepage on their crops and farmland. Prolonged waterlogging can affect soil quality and crop growth, leaving cultivators worried about possible losses. The affected farmers have sought timely measures to prevent further seepage and protect agricultural land. The problem has also

With more than 247 acres combined in Doni and Dambal reported to have been affected, farmers are seeking urgent intervention from the concerned departments. Farmers have urged officials to inspect the affected areas and assess crop and land damage. They have also called for steps to prevent additional farmland from being affected by canal water. The continued seepage has become a source of concern for cultivators who depend on their agricultural land for their livelihood. Farmers hope that the authorities will coordinate with the irrigation department and take necessary measures to address the problem at the earliest. A permanent solution to the seepage, they said, would help protect farmland, reduce crop losses and provide greater security to farmers in the two villages.

Tourism department consultant held in Haveri bribe trap

Lokayukta officials have caught a consultant working with the Tourism Department in Haveri while allegedly accepting a ₹20,000 bribe from a beneficiary seeking financial assistance for a mobile canteen. The accused has been identified as Malaksab Nadaf, a district consultant with the Haveri Tourism Department. According to officials, Raveन्द्र Maidur, a resident of Chikkamaralihalli village in Savanur taluk, had applied for financial assistance to establish a mobile canteen. Nadaf allegedly demanded ₹20,000 from Maidur to process and sanction the incentive. Following the alleged demand, Maidur approached the Lokayukta and lodged a complaint. After verifying the complaint and gathering evidence, Lokayukta officials laid a trap. The officials caught Nadaf while he was allegedly accepting the bribe near the Hosamani Siddappa District Stadium in Haveri. The operation was conducted under the leadership of Haveri Lokayukta Deputy Superintendent of Police C. Madhusudhan. Lokayukta officials said the trap was carried out only after verifying the complaint. The accused was taken into custody and is expected to be produced before the court. The case is being investigated by the Lokayukta authorities. Officials are expected to examine the circumstances surrounding the demand for the alleged bribe and determine whether any other individuals were involved in the matter. The Lokayukta has reiterated that complaints of demands for illegal payments can be reported for verification and appropriate action.

HUBBALLI -KALGHATGI CONNECTIVITY

Hubballi-Kalghatgi road set for four-lane upgrade provide smoother movement for commuters, commercial vehicles and goods transport. The project assumes importance as traffic on the route has increased steadily in recent years. According to a traffic survey conducted in 2024, the average daily movement of vehicles on National Highway 52 between Hubballi and Ankola stood at 22,706 passenger car units (PCUs). The figures indicate significant traffic pressure on the existing road infrastructure and underline the need for expansion. The four-laning is expected to improve road safety, reduce congestion and shorten travel time for motorists. It could also benefit people travelling between Hubballi and the coastal areas through Kalghatgi and further towards Ankola. Better road infrastructure is likely to support trade, tourism and movement of agricultural and commercial goods. The proposed project is also expected to provide improved access to surrounding towns and villages. With Hubballi serving as a major commercial and transport centre, better connectivity with Kalghatgi could contribute to regional economic activity. Officials are expected to take up the necessary planning and implementation measures for the road expansion. The project will require detailed assessments related to land, traffic management, construction and safety before work begins. The proposed four-lane upgrade comes amid efforts to strengthen highway infrastructure across Karnataka. With vehicle numbers continuing to rise, widening busy stretches is being viewed as an important step towards improving mobility and supporting long-term regional development.

"Cancel all illegal MDA 50:50 site allotments made between 2019 and 2023"

MYSURU

Welcoming the cancellation of 1,100 illegal site allotments made under the Mysuru Urban Development Authority's (MUDA) 50:50 scheme, former minister and senior Janata Dal (Secular) leader Sa Ra Mahesh demanded that all illegal allotments made between 2019 and 2023 also be cancelled.

Addressing a press conference here on Thursday, Mahesh alleged that a ₹5,000-crore scam had taken place in the allotment of sites under MUDA's 50:50 ratio scheme. Urban Development and Mysuru District-In-Charge Minister Dr. Yathindra Siddaramaiah had cancelled 1,100 sites allotted from 2023 onwards, but alleged that sites allotted between 2019 and 2023 had not been cancelled. Gadag youth raise voice over water crisis

CH NEWS, Malingaraya pujar

Residents of Gadag-Betageri have continued to face drinking water shortages for decades, with some households reportedly waiting 20 to 25 days for regular supply.

The Gadag Youth Voters and Citizens Forum has now stepped up its campaign, calling the situation a serious violation of citizens' constitutional rights. The group has accused the municipal administration and state government of failing to provide a dependable drinking water system despite years of promises and spending on various projects.

The forum has pointed to a Karnataka High Court order dated May 28, 2025, in the case of Ramesh Nayak L. versus State of Karnataka. According to the forum, the court observed that access to safe and clean drinking water is connected with the fundamental right to life under Article 21 of the Constitution. Youth leaders argue that the continuing shortage in Gadag raises serious questions about whether authorities are fulfilling their responsibility to residents. They say people should not have to struggle for basic drinking water in a developing city.

Residents have also expressed frustration over repeated election promises. The forum alleges that large projects and pipeline works are announced during elections, but many people continue to depend on tankers and other uncertain sources. It has demanded accountability from municipal officials and called for action against those responsible for prolonged supply failures. The group has also sought a permanent, scientific plan to ensure clean drinking water reaches households regularly, preferably at least once every two days.

Another major demand is the release of a white paper showing how much public money has been spent on drinking water projects in Gadag during the past decade. The forum has given the authorities 15 days to announce a clear action plan for a lasting solution. If no satisfactory response comes, its leaders have warned that they will mobilise residents and consider approaching the High Court through a Public Interest Litigation.

For Gadag's residents, the issue is no longer about promises, but about securing a reliable supply of a basic necessity and ensuring that decades of waiting finally come to an end.

ing individuals and organisations whose contributions are creating positive social change and inspiring communities through action.

Speaking about the initiative, Dr. Anita Prasad said that MITF is envisioned as a platform that brings citizens, organisations, corporates and social-impact leaders together to identify challenges facing Mysuru and work collectively towards practical solutions. The Task Force believes that meaningful change is possible when citizens, corporates, civil society organisations and institutions work together beyond traditional boundaries. MITF will therefore seek to create opportunities for collaboration, participation and community-led action across Mysuru.

The first meeting marks only the beginning of a broader initiative. The team will shortly announce further details about the upcoming event, partnership opportunities, participation and avenues through which corporates, organisations and citizens can contribute.

Mysuru is a city with a remarkable heritage. MITF seeks to help build an equally remarkable future, through participation, responsibility, compassion and collective action. For further information and partnership opportunities: Anita Humanitarian Foundation, Mysore Integrated Task Force (MITF).

Urs remembered as courageous champion of social justice

CH NEWS, HAVERI

Former Chief Minister D. Devaraja Urs was remembered as a courageous leader who worked to build an equal society during his 111th birth anniversary celebration in Haveri.

Urban Development Authority President S.F.N. Ghazi Gowdra said Urs left a lasting mark through his progressive vision and efforts to uplift backward classes, Dalits, poor, landless and exploited communities.

The programme was jointly organized by the district administration, Zilla Panchayat, Backward Classes Welfare Department, D. Devaraja Urs Backward Classes Development Corporation and Kannada and Culture Department at District Guru Bhavan. Ghazi Gowdra said the Land Reforms Act and measures against bonded labour were among Urs's historic achievements. He urged young people to study Urs's life and follow his ideals of equality, justice and human dignity.

Deputy Commissioner Dr. Vijayamahanthesh Danamma- vara said Urs became a strong voice for disadvantaged communities through several progressive measures. He highlighted land reforms, minimum wages, rural employment initiatives, welfare schemes for senior citizens and persons with disabilities, and efforts to end manual scavenging. Urs also promoted Kannada as an administrative language, renamed Mysore State as Karnataka and supported literature, arts, theatre and cultural institutions.

The speakers recalled Urs's decision to establish the L.G. Havanur Commission and introduce reservation for backward classes based on its findings. They said he also encouraged political participation among backward, Dalit and minority communities. Minister Rudrappa Manappa Lamani sent a message recalling Urs's political journey and ideals.

Boat service resumes, but bridge dream remains

MALINGARAYA PUJAR CH NEWS

The boat service between Magala and Vithalapur across the Tungabhadra River has resumed after remaining closed for nearly eight months.

The service was stopped after the boat, locally known as Nadadoni, developed a hole and became unsafe for travel. Following repairs, the boat is now operating again, bringing temporary relief to residents of border areas in Gadag, Haveri and Vijayanagar districts. People living along the river, including farmers, students and daily commuters, have welcomed the return of the service.

The boat is an important link between Magala village in Huvinahadagali taluk of Vijayanagar district and Vithalapur in Mundaragi taluk of Gadag district. For many residents, crossing the river by boat is part of their daily routine. The suspension had created serious difficulties, forcing people to take longer routes and spend more time and money on travel. The resumption has eased these problems for now, but locals say the boat cannot be considered a safe and lasting answer to their transportation needs.

The demand for a permanent bridge across the Tungabhadra is decades old. Resi-

The boat reconnects Magala and Vithalapur, easing travel hardships, but residents say regular crossings remain unsafe and demand a permanent transportation solution across the river dents have been seeking a proper bridge since 1972, but their demand remains unfulfilled despite several governments coming to power.

A Detailed Project Report has reportedly been prepared, yet progress on the project has remained slow. Differences among elected representatives over the proposed location have added to the delay. Some Gadag leaders support a bridge between Itagi and Belahunasi, while Shirahatti

MLA Chandru Lamani has said a site near Kallaganur would be more useful for people.

Residents believe political differences should not stand in the way of a project that affects thousands of people. They want district ministers and elected representatives from the concerned areas to work together, set aside personal differences and find a common solution. MLA Dr Chandru Lamani has urged the government to respond quickly and release funds for construction. The renewed boat service may have brought a sigh of relief, but people say their real hope lies in a permanent bridge that can provide safer, faster and more reliable travel throughout the year. Until that happens, the river will continue to separate communities that are waiting for a lasting connection.

Students urged to embrace Urs's educational vision

CHITRADURGA

Additional Deputy Commissioner B.T. Kumaraswamy on Thursday remembered former Chief Minister D. Devaraja Urs as a great leader who opened educational opportunities for Karnataka's backward classes.

He said Urs lit a lamp of knowledge by establishing hostels that helped poor students continue their studies instead of remaining tied to traditional occupations.

Speaking at Tarasu Theatre during Urs's 111th birth anniversary, Kumaraswamy said the former chief minister's land reforms also changed rural society. The "tiller is the owner" principle ended the zamindari system and gave land rights to farmers who worked on it. He said these measures strengthened poor and disadvantaged families.

He urged students to see education as a path to knowledge, values and self-reliance, not only government employment. He advised them to avoid wasting time on mobile phones and social media, and instead focus on regular study, concentration, skills and preparation for competitive examinations. He also reminded students that parents make sacrifices and expect them to succeed.

SJM College lecturer S. Laxmikant said Urs remained a symbol of social justice because he worked to extend constitutional rights to weaker sections. He praised Urs as a leader who promoted equality, supported farmers and encouraged self-employment. Educationist R.A. Chetan Ram also spoke about value-based education, creativity and personal growth, urging young people to develop their own thinking and writing habits.

The event, organized by the district administration, Zilla Panchayat and Backward Classes Welfare Department, included floral tributes and recognition of talented students. Winners of essay and debate contests, along with high-scoring hostel students, received awards. Speakers urged the younger generation to carry Urs's ideals forward and build a fairer society together.

E-KYC DRIVE SUPPORTS WIDER ACCESS TO RURAL JOBS

Srinivas said digital systems would track workers and progress, while gram panchayats would assist families with job cards, e-KYC and work demands

CH NEWS, GUDIBANDE

A special awareness campaign under the Viksit Bharat Guarantee for Employment and Livelihood Mission (Rural) scheme is being conducted across Gudibande taluk from August 15 to September 15. As part of the campaign, a job card fair was held at Varlakonda village on Thursday to help rural families access employment opportunities.

Assistant Director A.R. Srinivas said job card fairs would be organized in all gram panchayats of the taluk. He said officials were planning works to create more employment days for rural families. The campaign also focuses on visiting households, issuing new job cards to eligible families, renewing existing cards and completing e-KYC procedures.

Srinivas said workers' attendance, work progress and related records would increasingly be managed through digital systems. The main aim, he said, was to bring employment opportunities directly to deserving families. People seeking information about job cards, e-KYC or submitting work demands were advised to approach their respective gram panchayats.

The scheme is also expected to reduce migration from villages to cities by creating work locally. Officials urged eligible unskilled workers to make full use of the programme and strengthen their livelihoods. Information Education Coordinator Ramanji said special efforts were being made to identify families with inactive job cards through door-to-door visits and inform them about employment and individual benefit schemes.

He said the campaign would particularly encourage participation among weaker sections and improve eco-

Belagavi division targets improved SSLC results through FLN

CH NEWS, HUBBALLI

Dr. Eshwar Ullagaddi, Additional Commissioner of the School Education Department, urged teachers and education officials to work together to strengthen Foundational Literacy and Numeracy (FLN) and Lesson-Based Assessment (LBA) programmes to improve SSLC results.

He was speaking at a Belagavi division-level consultative meeting held at Deshpande Foundation Sabha Bhavan on the BVB campus in Hubballi on Thursday.

Ullagaddi congratulated teachers and officials after the Belagavi division secured first place in the state in the latest SSLC results. He said the achievement was the result of continuous efforts by school staff and education officers. However, he urged them not to become complacent and instead aim for better performance during the current academic year through planned preparation.

He said the department's target should not be limited to achieving 100 percent results. Teachers must focus on improving learning quality and helping students achieve strong marks. He highlighted the 60 Plus programme and urged officials to ensure its effective implementation. LBA questions, he said, can help identify learning gaps, while regular reviews of student answers and progress can guide additional teaching.

Ullagaddi said FLN must receive special attention at the primary level. Students should gradually develop reading skills at word, sentence and paragraph levels, along with basic mathematical abilities such as addition, subtraction, multiplication and division. Monthly learning standards will be reviewed, and students who fall behind should receive additional support.

He stressed that FLN should become a regular classroom practice rather than remain only a departmental programme. Strong foundational skills, he said, would help students perform better in higher classes and ultimately improve SSLC results. School Education Department Director Mamata Nayak, Joint Director Jayashree Karekar and other officials participated in the meeting.

Lingapura villagers seek ANM quarters construction

Residents of Lingapura have demanded that the new Auxiliary Nurse Midwife (ANM) quarters be constructed on the government-approved site, alleging that influential individuals are preventing the work.

Villagers said the quarters are important for ensuring healthcare workers remain available and public medical services continue smoothly.

According to residents, an old ANM quarters had stood on a 45×75-foot government site under Lingapura Gramthana Survey No. 18, Panchayat Record Form No. 15 and Khata No. 304. The building became unsafe and was demolished. The Health Department later approved funds and other formalities to construct a new quarters at the same location.

Villagers alleged that some influential people were pressuring officials to shift the project elsewhere, resulting in the construction being stopped. They also claimed that threats had created fear among residents, making people hesitant to openly raise the issue before officials. The villagers said the lack of accommodation for healthcare staff was affecting local health services.

A memorandum submitted to the Panchayat Development Officer and secretary stated that residents would not accept construction at any site other than Khata No. 304. They urged taluk and district officials to visit the location, examine the technical report and resolve the dispute quickly so the sanctioned project can proceed.

The villagers warned that returning or cancelling government funds because of administrative confusion or negligence would make responsible officials accountable. They also said they would approach the Lokayukta seeking a detailed investigation if the issue remained unresolved. Copies of the memorandum were submitted to the Honnali Taluk Executive Officer, Taluk Health Officer, Davanagere District Health Officer, Zilla Panchayat Chief Executive Officer and Lokayukta office.

India's passenger EV market surges 102 pc in Q2

New Delhi

India's Electric Passenger Vehicle (EPV) market surged an impressive 102 per cent year-on-year (YoY) in Q2 2026, significantly outpacing the broader passenger vehicle market's 26 per cent growth, a report said on Thursday. The report from CyberMedia Research (CMR) said sharp acceleration was driven by an expanded product portfolio, improved vehicle availability, and compelling total-cost-of-ownership economics. The firm forecasted that EVs will make up 7–8 per cent of India's PV market by end-2026, while connected vehicles are projected to capture 40–45 per cent of market share.

Mutual fund portfolio showed a loss of around 30 per cent, amounting to nearly Rs 1 lakh, despite the portfolio being in profit, an investor told IANS. The investor said one of the two mutual funds in the portfolio was showing a normal NAV, while the other displayed a decline of around 50 per cent.

Gains in AI company stakes juice second-quarter earnings for S&P 500

NEW YORK

S&P 500 companies are winding up a banner quarterly earnings season, fueled in large part by surging profits at AI-related companies. The S&P 500 is on track for a 52% surge in aggregate second-quarter earnings from the year before, helped by a 74% profit jump in the technology sector. The figures include big mark-to-market boosts at Alphabet and Amazon, both of which recognized large gains in the period on investments in AI highfliers such as Anthropic. Excluding those gains, the latest estimate for S&P 500 second-quarter profit growth would be 33%, according to Tajinder Dhillion, head of earnings research at LSEG. That is still the strongest quarter since 2021, in the wake of the pandemic's start, but the gap is worth considering because many investors view mark-to-market profit gains with caution as they can accentuate the impact of market swings on a company's performance.

Bryant informed Patel that more than 1.15 lakh MSMEs have been trained since 2019 under Walmart's Vriddhi programme. The company has set a target of training 1.70 lakh MSMEs by 2028.

The two sides also discussed identifying potential opportunities for Gujarat's MSMEs and artisans over the next three to four months.

India's core industries clock 5.4 per cent growth

NEW DELHI

India's Index of Core Industries (ICI) recorded a 5.4 per cent growth in July this year compared to the same month of the previous year, driven by the strong performance of the iron ore, cement, and electricity sectors, according to figures released by the Ministry of Commerce and Industry on Thursday.

The cement sector clocked a robust growth of 13.1 per cent during the month as demand stayed buoyant due to large government investments in big-ticket infrastructure projects such as highways, ports, and railways.

The production of iron ore surged by as much as 29.5 per cent in July. Owing to intensive use of iron ore in the production process, and its contribution to industrial development, it has been included in the list of core industries as a new item in the revised series of ICI. Accordingly, the number of core industries has increased from eight to nine in the new series, which kicked in for the first time from last month.

Electricity generation grew by 9 per cent during July while coal production went up by 7.6 per cent. The output of steel and refinery products during the month increased by 2.9 per cent and 2.7 per cent respectively, the data showed.

However, natural gas, crude oil, and fertilisers witnessed negative growth in July this year.

The final index for the month of June 2026 has been revised from 119.6 (Provisional Estimate) to 120.7. Accordingly, the year-on-year growth rate has been revised from 5.0 per cent to 6.0 per cent, according to the official statement. The cumulative growth rate of ICI during April-July 2026 now works out to 4.3 per cent compared to 1.5 per cent in the corresponding period of the previ-

Alibaba Profit Plunges Amid AI Spending

NEW DELHI

Alibaba Group Holding Ltd has reported a sharp profit decline as the Chinese giant increases spending on artificial intelligence and computing infrastructure while its core e-commerce business faces weaker consumer demand.

The company reported a 9 per cent rise in revenue, broadly matching market expectations. Growth was supported partly by demand for computing capacity from its cloud business. However, net income fell more than 75 per cent to 10.5 billion yuan, or about $1.6 billion.

Alibaba also reported a free-cash outflow exceeding $6.6 billion, highlighting the financial pressure created by its investment in AI infrastructure and projects. The company has committed tens of billions of dollars to chips, data centres and AI-agent development as it seeks to strengthen its position in the AI race.

The results sent Alibaba's US-listed shares down about 4 per cent in pre-market trading. The company has emerged as a Chinese AI player, with its Qwen family of models attracting global attention.

Under Chief Executive Officer Eddie Wu, Alibaba has accelerated its AI strategy by bringing most AI-related research and product teams under Alibaba Token Hub, a new business unit directly overseen by Wu.

At the same time, Alibaba is restructuring its business and selling non-core assets. Earlier this month, it disposed of its gaming unit Lingxi Games.

The company's challenge is to balance AI investment with profitability as subdued Chinese consumer spending continues to pressure its online retail operations.

SAIL welcomes Mines and Minerals Amendment Act

NEW DELHI

Steel Authority of India Limited (SAIL) on Thursday welcomed the Mines and Minerals (Development and Regulation) Amendment Act, 2026, notified by the Central Government on August 17, saying the reform will bring greater predictability to the fiscal regime and provide long-term policy certainty to the mineral sector.

SAIL said the amendment provides greater clarity and uniformity in mineral taxation and levies while addressing pending retrospective levies. The move is expected to provide greater certainty and confidence to the mining industry and encourage investment in the sector.

It also addresses pending retrospective levies, thereby providing greater certainty and confidence to the mining industry, it said. For SAIL, which operates substantial captive iron ore and coal mines, the reform is expected to improve the viability of its mining operations and facilitate investment and development of mines.

China's Baidu revenue falls for fifth straight quarter in Q2

NEW DELHI

Chinese technology company Baidu reported a fifth consecutive quarterly decline in revenue as weakness in its online marketing business continued to weigh on performance despite strong growth in artificial intelligence-related operations, according to a report.

According to an analysis of Japan Today, the search engine company posted second-quarter revenue of 31.3 billion yuan ($4.6 billion), down 4 per cent from a year earlier, according to its unaudited financial results.

Meanwhile, operating income fell to 3 billion yuan in the three months ended June 30 from 3.3 billion yuan a year earlier, it said. Baidu has invested heavily in artificial intelligence in recent years, recruiting leading researchers and launching its Ernie chatbot, one of the country's earliest generative AI products.

Revenue from Baidu's AI business which includes AI applications and infrastructure services rose 25 per cent year-on-year to 12.5 billion yuan during the quarter. By contrast, revenue from online marketing services, historically the company's main source of cash flow, declined 19% from a year earlier to 13.1 billion yuan.

While our online marketing business remains under pressure, the growing momentum in our core AI-powered Business reaffirms Baidu's transition from an internet-centric company to an AI-first company, Chief Executive Robin Li said in a statement.

That AI momentum strengthens our confidence in our long-term growth potential, Li added.

Baidu's advertising business has come under pressure amid sluggish consumer spending in China, as companies cut marketing budgets in response to a slowing economy. Signs of weak consumption persisted in recent economic data. China's retail sales growth slowed in July, according to official figures released this week.

Additionally, data from the National Bureau of Statistics showed retail sales up 0.6 per cent in July from a year earlier, below the 1.5 per cent growth forecast and slower than the 1 per cent increase recorded in June, according to the report.

GOVT LAUNCHES MISSION KARMAYOGI CONFERENCE TO BOOST CAPACITY BUILDING

NEW DELHI

The Union Ministry of Health and Family Welfare (MoHFW) on Thursday commenced a two day National Conference on Mission Karmayogi for Mission Karmayogi Development Officers (MDOs) to strengthen institutional capacity building mechanisms and their effectiveness across the health sector.

The conference aims to equip MDOs to plan, implement and sustain capacity-building initiatives under Mission Karmayogi, the MoHFW said. The event provided a platform for institutional collaboration, peer learning and knowledge exchange among MDOs and stakeholders engaged in capacity building.

The conference held in collaboration with the National Institute of Health and Family Welfare (NIHFW), Capacity Building Commission (CBC) and Karmayogi Bharat (KB) focused its first day on aligning learning interventions with organisational needs, promoting competency based professional development and sharing best practices in implementation.

Rakesh Kumar, Director (Training), Ministry of Health and Family Welfare, highlighted that Mission Karmayogi represents a significant shift from the traditional rule-based approach towards a role-based, competency-driven and capacity-building-oriented approach to civil service development.

He emphasised that MDOs have a critical role in translating this vision into measurable institutional outcomes by identifying capacity-building requirements, facilitating appropriate learning interventions and strengthening a culture of continuous professional development within their respective organisations.

Highlighting the progress made under the Mission, Rakesh Kumar said that 21,627 course enrolments and 17,960 course completions had been recorded, reflecting the growing adoption of structured and technology-enabled learning across the Ministry.

He emphasised that the focus of capacity building should extend beyond completion of courses to enhancing competencies, improving workplace performance.

HANUR SHOOTOUT: LET THE INQUIRY ESTABLISH THE TRUTH

The death of three persons in a shootout involving Forest Department personnel in the Hanur range of Chamara-janagar district recently has snowballed into a major political controversy, with the ruling Congress and Opposition BJP trading serious allegations during the ongoing session of the State Legislature. Amid the competing claims and counter-claims, the State Government has ordered a magisterial inquiry into the incident to establish what actually happened.

The inquiry is now crucial because several questions surrounding the shootout remain unanswered. The statements attributed to Forest Department officials and the account of the lone survivor appear to have raised more questions than they have answered. While the Forest Department has strongly defended the action of its personnel, maintaining that they opened fire after encountering allegedly armed poachers, the families of the deceased have rejected the claim and described the incident as a cold-blooded killing of innocent persons.

The Opposition BJP has seized upon the controversy and sought explanations from the government and the Forest Department. Questions have been raised over the circumstances leading to the firing, including why the personnel allegedly resorted to firing and whether the use of force could have been avoided or minimised. The demand to know why the firing was not aimed below the knees has also become part of the political debate.

However, political rhetoric cannot substitute for a proper investigation.

The fundamental question that remains is: what were the three persons doing deep inside the forest at that particular hour? What prompted the confrontation between them and the Forest Department personnel? Were they actually carrying deer meat and sharp weapons, including country-made firearms, as alleged by the Forest Department? Were they involved in hunting poachers and thereby justify the firing. The Forest Department, on the other hand, has stood by its personnel and maintained that they acted in the course of their duty. Both sides have pre-the Forest Department team encountered the three persons, whether weapons and wildlife meat were actually recovered, whether there was an exchange of fire, and whether the use of lethal force was justified under the circumstances.

Until these facts emerge, it would be premature for anyone whether from the ruling party or the Opposition to pronounce a verdict.

Unfortunately, the incident has already become another battlefield for political mudslinging. The ruling party has defended the Forest Department personnel, while the Opposition has sought to turn the episode into a larger political controversy, even raising conspiracy theories before the facts have been conclusively established. Such statements only deepen public confusion and risk prejudicing the inquiry.

Elected representatives certainly have a duty to raise issues of public importance. But they also have a greater responsibility to ensure that their statements do not interfere with or undermine an ongoing inquiry. When lives have been lost, the priority should be truth and justice not political mileage.

The intervention by neighbouring Tamil Nadu has added another dimension to the controversy. The Tamil Nadu Government has demanded a CBI probe and announced an ex-gratia of Rs 10 lakh each to the families of the three deceased. While humanitarian sympathy for the bereaved families is understandable, Karnataka should make it clear that matters concerning an incident within its territory and involving its officials are primarily for the State Government and its investigative mechanisms to deal with.

Tamil Nadu would do well to respect Karnataka's jurisdiction rather than attempting to influence the course of an investigation.

At this stage, neither the Forest Department's version nor the allegations of the families and villagers can be accepted as the final truth. The only credible way forward is a transparent, impartial and time-bound inquiry.

Three lives have been lost. Their families deserve justice, and Forest Department personnel who were performing their duty also deserve protection if their actions are found to have been lawful and justified.

The truth must therefore emerge from evidence, not from political speeches. Until the preliminary report is placed before the public, political leaders would do well to exercise restraint. The people deserve answers, but they deserve facts not more confusion.

- SHYAM SUNDAR VATTAM

wildlife, or were they innocent persons who happened to be in the forest for some other reason?

These are not questions that can be settled through political statements.

The villagers and relatives of the deceased have alleged that evidence was deliberately created or planted to portray the victims as sented sharply contrasting versions of the same incident.

This is precisely why an impartial inquiry assumes significance.

The preliminary findings of the magisterial inquiry are expected to place at least some facts before the public. They could help establish the circumstances in which

VARALAKSHMI: THE DIVINE MOTHER OF LOVE AND ABUNDANCE, AND THE SACREDNESS OF SHRAVAN

As the sacred month of Shravan arrives, homes and communities across India begin to take on a distinct rhythm—one defined by fragrance, color, prayer, and deep devotion. At the center of this seasonal transformation is the Varamahalakshmi festival, a time-honored tradition that brings the spiritual realm into the heart of everyday domestic life. On the surface, the festival is a vibrant celebration featuring rich silk sarees, decorated kalashas representing the Divine Mother, fragrant flowers, lamps, and families gathering to seek blessings. They pray for Lakshmi's grace in her many forms to attain wealth, health, nourishment, prosperity, and overall well-being. Beneath the physical elegance of these rituals, however, lies a far deeper understanding of who Lakshmi is, why she is welcomed into the home, and why Varalakshmi holds such profound significance during Shravan.

To fully appreciate Varalakshmi, one must first understand Lakshmi herself. In the Hindu tradition, Lakshmi is the Divine Mother associated with prosperity, beauty, nourishment, and auspiciousness. While she is widely recognized as the goddess of wealth, that singular description fails to capture the full breadth of her place in Hindu philosophy. Lakshmi represents all the elements that help a family and a community live well: food, health, knowledge, security, love, and the capacity to flourish. She is intrinsically linked to the resources that sustain physical existence and the general well-being that allows individuals to grow.

This multidimensional understanding is formally articulated in the traditional concept of the Ashta Lakshmis, or the eight forms of Lakshmi. Each form governs a distinct dimension of human experience, ranging from material wealth and food to knowledge, courage, progeny, success, and spiritual strength. The underlying philosophy is straightforward: a prosperous life cannot rely on money alone. While financial security is undeniably important, it must be accompanied by physical health, intellectual growth, emotional courage, physical nourishment, and meaningful relationships. Lakshmi, therefore, is not merely a deity who bestows currency; she embodies a holistic state of existence where all necessary components of human well-being are present and balanced.

This comprehensive view illuminates the specific significance of the name Varalakshmi. The word "Vara" signifies a boon or a divine blessing. Varalakshmi is Lakshmi in her aspect as the benevolent giver of blessings, and observing the Varamahalakshmi Vratam serves as an intentional prayer for family well-being, longevity, happiness, and peace. The ritual functions simultaneously as a request and an act of recognition. It asks for future grace while expressing deep gratitude for the blessings already present within the household.

This spiritual practice is elevated by its timing within Shravan, one of the most sacred months in the Hindu lunar calendar. Falling during the monsoon season, Shravan arrives just as rain replenishes the earth, causes vegetation to flourish, restores water sources, and reinvigorates agricultural activity. Historically, these natural shifts were directly tied to food security, economic livelihood, and domestic stability. Within Hindu cosmology, the rhythms of nature and the rhythms of spiritual life are deeply interconnected. Seasons carry their own spiritual character, establishing ideal conditions for prayer, fasting, reflection, and celebration.

The spiritual depth of Shravan is further enriched by its association with the grand narrative of the Samudra Manthan, or the churning of the cosmic ocean. According to tradition, the Devas and Asuras churned the ocean to obtain Amrita, the nectar of immortality. During this process, extraordinary treasures and divine beings emerged from the depths—including Lakshmi herself. However, before the ocean yielded its ultimate blessings, it released Halahala, a deadly poison capable of tual fullness. Water holds supreme significance during the monsoon, as it breathes life into the soil and sustains agriculture. Placing water at the core of a ritual dedicated to prosperity acknowledges the primary element that makes physical life possible. Similarly, offerings of rice, grains, fresh fruits, and cooked food represent the tangible fruits of human labor and natural generosity. Offering these everyday necessities transforms standard commodities into objects of sacred gratitude.

Crucially, this worship takes place within the domestic sphere rather than exclusively in public temples. The home itself is thoroughly cleaned, decorated, and converted into a sacred sanctuary. This underscores a foundational principle of Hindu philosophy: spirituality is not compartmentalized or distant from daily living. The divine can enter the kitchen, the dining table, and the quiet routines of family care. Cooking becomes an offering, sharing a meal becomes an act of community, and maintaining a household becomes a quiet form of spiritual service.

For generations, women have been the primary custodians of this tradition, passing its nuances down through direct participation rather than formal text. Daughters and granddaughters learn the prayers, recipes, and arrangements by watching their mothers and grandmothers. In doing so, they preserve not only a religious observance, but also family history, culinary heritage, artistic skills, and cultural memory. Varalakshmi serves as an enduring bridge between generations, honoring the maternal principle of nurturing and protecting life.

In a modern world that increasingly measures success solely through financial metrics, balance sheets, and material accumulation, the Varamahalakshmi festival offers a necessary recalibration.

destroying all creation. To save the universe, Lord Shiva stepped forward, consumed the poison, and held it safely in his throat. This act turned his neck blue, earning him the name Neelkanth and cementing Shravan's association with Shiva worship.

The convergence of these two elements within the same story provides a profound metaphor for human existence. Before abundance can emerge, toxicity and difficulty must be confronted. Before the nectar of prosperity is reached, the ocean of life must be churned through effort and patience. While Shiva absorbs the destructive forces to protect life, Lakshmi arises to nurture, adorn, and sustain it. Celebrating Varalakshmi during Shravan connects domestic prayers for prosperity directly to this cosmic story of protection, sacrifice, transformation, and preservation. This symbolism comes alive within the physical rituals of the Varalakshmi puja. At the center of the altar sits the sacred kalasha a vessel filled with clean water, adorned with mango leaves, and topped with a coconut. NEEDLE-FREE DIALYSIS: A NEW HOPE FOR KIDNEY PATIENTS

For millions of people living with advanced kidney disease, conventional dialysis remains an essential, life-sustaining treatment. When the kidneys lose their ability to filter blood adequately, this process takes over the critical responsibility of removing metabolic waste products and excess fluid from the body. Although effective, conventional hemodialysis presents significant physical and emotional hurdles for patients. Most notably, it relies on repeated needle access to the bloodstream via a fistula, graft, or catheter. For many individuals undergoing treatment multiple times a week, these recurrent needle pricks cause physical discomfort, heightened anxiety, and significant lifestyle disruption.

Driven by these challenges, biomedical engineering is pioneering an alternative paradigm: the implantable artificial kidney. Rather than viewing kidney care through the lens of external machines, researchers are exploring whether an implanted device could perform continuous filtration directly inside the body without relying on repeated vascular needle access. This vision represents a major milestone in nephrology research. The goal extends beyond the simple convenience of removing needles; it seeks to closely replicate the natural, uninterrupted function of human kidneys.

The Mechanics of Natural Kidneys vs. Conventional Dialysis

To understand the promise of an implantable device, one must appreciate the sheer sophistication of natural kidney function. Healthy kidneys work continuously 24 hours a day to filter blood, manage fluid volume, regulate essential electrolyte balances, and produce vital hormones.

By contrast, conventional hemodialysis operates intermittently. Patients typically attend scheduled sessions where blood is drawn from the body, routed through an external dialyzer to extract waste and fluid, and subsequently pumped back into circulation. Because this process happens over discrete sessions rather than continuously, patients experience fluctuating concentrations of toxins and fluids between treatments. This fundamental difference has spurred intense research into bioengineered, wearable, and implantable kidney technologies that can provide seamless, round-the-clock support.

How an Implantable Artificial Kidney Works?

An implantable artificial kidney aims to integrate advanced filtration membranes with the body's natural cardiovascular system. Placed surgically inside the patient, the device utilizes the body's own blood pressure to drive circulation through tiny, highly specialized membranes. These micro-architectures are engineered to selectively allow waste molecules and excess water to pass through into an outlet system while safely retaining blood cells, vital proteins, and useful nutrients in circulation.

Understanding the term "needle-free" requires realistic expectations. It does not imply that conventional dialysis will vanish overnight or that current medical protocols are immediately obsolete. Instead, it outlines a future where dependence on invasive vascular pricks is significantly minimized. By shifting treatment from stationary, high-maintenance equipment to an internal, continuous support network, the overall burden of care drops dramatically, elevating the patient's daily quality of life.

The Interdisciplinary Challenge: Materials and Engineering

Replicating an organ as complex as the human kidney requires deep interdisciplinary collaboration. Biomedical engineers, material scientists, nanotechnologists, and clinicians are uniting to address formidable obstacles:

Microscopic Membrane Selectivity, filtration membranes must operate at a nanometer scale to distinguish waste products from critical blood proteins. Biocompatibility, every material implanted within the bloodstream must prevent adverse immune responses, inflammation, and cellular damage.

Thrombosis and Infection Prevention, blood flowing through artificial channels carries a risk of clotting or infection, demanding advanced anti-clogging surface coatings.

Power and Energy Constraints, unlike external dialysis units connected to wall outlets, an implanted system must operate efficiently with minimal internal power or rely entirely on natural blood flow mechanics.

Because an implantable kidney operates under such strict biological and mechanical constraints, early success in laboratory settings must undergo rigorous testing. Rigorously designed clinical trials are essential to verify that these compact devices remain durable, safe, and effective over long spans of time inside the human body.

A Vision of Hope Grounded in Realism

News regarding artificial kidney breakthroughs understandably generates tremendous enthusiasm among patients and their families. The prospect of breaking free from rigid dialysis schedules and painful needle access is deeply meaningful. However, scientific progress is inherently deliberate. Translating a successful laboratory prototype into a standardized clinical intervention requires patient, evidence-based research. The appropriate perspective is one of measured optimism—celebrating scientific strides while acknowledging that routine adoption takes time. Ultimately, the measure of success for next-generation kidney care will not be defined merely by technological novelty. It will be defined by safety, reliability, and human impact. Conventional hemodialysis remains a life-saving foundation for current patients, and any adjustments to treatment plans should always be made in consultation with a qualified nephrologist. Yet, the trajectory of kidney replacement therapy is undeniably shifting.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Revolutionizing Kidney Care

A Breakthrough in Dialysis, the development of needle-free dialysis technology offers immense hope to thousands of kidney disease patients. Traditional treatment is often painful, invasive, and physically exhausting. This innovative, non-invasive alternative promises a significantly better quality of life and reduced infection risks. Healthcare authorities and private investors should support the clinical adoption and affordability of this ground-breaking technology to make it accessible to all.

Protect Urban Greens

Save Our City Trees, Uncontrolled urban development is rapidly destroying our city's remaining green cover. Concrete pavements and frequent tree felling increase local temperatures and worsen air quality. Local municipalities must strictly enforce urban forestry laws and integrate green spaces into infrastructure planning. Preserving existing trees is not an aesthetic luxury; it is a vital necessity for public health and sustainable urban living.

Police recovered about 67 grams of raw material for making the banned drug brown sugar, along with special white cloth, packing plastic and other manufacturing items. Around ₹8.39 lakh in cash, including some fake notes, was seized. Sikdar, from Bamangola in Malda, has a past drug-related jail record and was under surveillance after STF and internal tips. Both accused will be produced in court, with police seeking remand to probe possible links to a larger gang.

Maharashtra drivers failing Marathi test gets deadline

CH NEWS, MAHARASHTRA
Maharashtra's transport department began on-ground checks on Thursday, targeting taxi and autorickshaw drivers unable to show working knowledge of Marathi. Flying squads of the Mumbai RTO acted outside Dadar railway station, issuing show-cause notices and giving non-compliant drivers one month to learn the language and explain why further action should not be taken. Transport Minister Pratap Sarnaik said drivers who still fail after the notice could face three-month suspension of licence and badge, with repeated non-compliance leading to cancellation. Around 1.25–1.65 lakh drivers have completed Marathi training and received certificates, but distribution has caused long queues and chaos at RTOs.

Kerala CM seeks fairer Centre-State relations

KERALA
At the 31st Southern Zonal Council meeting in Chennai, chaired by Union Home Minister Amit Shah, Kerala raised critical demands for greater central financial support and an equitable federal framework across healthcare, infrastructure, and environmental defense. Highlighting a stark fiscal gap in healthcare, Kerala revealed that it spent ₹1,493 crore under Ayushman Bharat during the last policy year but received only ₹151 crore from the National Health Authority—leaving the state to shoulder nearly 90 per cent of the total costs. In response, Kerala advocated for state-specific premiums, alignment with the National Food Security Act database, and central support recalibrated to actual state expenditure. The state also pressed for immediate operational relief for public transport, asking for complete toll exemptions or concessional rates for Kerala State Road Transport Corporation (KSRTC) buses, which incurred over ₹2.16 crore in toll expenses in a single month. Addressing severe environmental threats, Kerala pointed out that 63 per cent of its 586 km coastline suffers from active erosion, jeopardizing thousands of fishing households. The state urged the Centre to permit coastal defense projects and family rehabilitation to be funded directly through central disaster response and mitigation schemes. On regional infrastructure, Kerala called for accelerated progress on the long-pending Thalassery-Mysore and Nilambur-Nanjangud railway corridors, urging Karnataka and the Ministry of Railways to finalize alignments and project reports. The state opposed absolute night-traffic bans through sensitive forest transit corridors, proposing regulated convoy movements during scientifically evaluated least-sensitive time slots instead. Finally, Kerala emphasized a moratorium on offshore sand mining pending comprehensive scientific assessments, highlighted its 78 per cent compliance rate across 54 operational Fast Track Special Courts (including 14 e-POCSO courts), and proposed appointing Inter-State Nodal Officers across southern states for real-time security intelligence sharing.

BJP hits back at Congress over ‘back foot’ remark

BJP rejected Congress claims, said Opposition blocked Parliament debate on exam leaks and student protests during Monsoon Session.

HYDERABAD

The party's response came after Congress General Secretary K.C. Venugopal, following a Congress Working Committee meeting, claimed the government was under significant pressure from the Opposition over major national issues, including examination paper leaks and student agitations. "The agitation carried out by the students of this country and the way in which the Government of India has dealt with that agitation, the Congress Working Committee unanimously opined that the sessions held in the Lok Sabha and Rajya Sabha were 100 per cent successful for the Opposition parties, and the government was totally on the back foot on that issue. Basically, these educational issues," Venugopal said at a press conference.

BJP spokesperson T.R. Srinivas strongly rejected the remarks, accusing Venugopal of being out of touch with the government's actions on education. "K.C. Venugopal, in

"If we were out of sync, why ask our former Education Minister to step down, revamp NTA and ensure accountability?"

his CWC meeting, said that the government is on the back foot with respect to the students' issue. Oh my God, Venugopal, you are so out of touch with the government's policies and decisions," Srinivas told IANS. He pointed to steps such as seeking accountability, mid-course correction and revamping the National Testing Agency (NTA), and asked, "If we were so out of sync, then why would we request our honourable former Education Minister to step down, undertake a mid-course correction, revamp the entire NTA, and ensure accountability? Please talk with facts before saying anything."

Srinivas argued that students need practical solutions, not political exploitation of their distress. "Students need solutions and not political misappropriation in times of distress. We don't do distress politics, but listen to the students and find solutions," he said. He also accused the Opposition of failing to use the Monsoon Session to raise student-related issues in Parliament. "We wanted to debate this issue in the Parliament. Where were you then?" he questioned.

Launching a sharp personal attack, the BJP leader referred to a protest by Opposition MPs led by Congress's Pawan Khara outside Parliament, where they carried toy monkeys, carrying two other monkeys, were dancing outside the Parliament. Instead of blaming us, think about what you did," he said. The BJP maintained it was willing to discuss student concerns and examine shortcomings in the examination system, but alleged the Opposition chose confrontation and demonstrations instead of allowing a substantive parliamentary debate.

Bihar board plans ₹112 crore Modi temple

BIHAR

A devotional event featuring the recitation of "Modi Chalisa" and the worship of a cutout of Prime Minister Narendra Modi was held at the Press Club of India in New Delhi, sparking controversy after videos went viral on social media. The footage showed participants chanting hymns and treating the PM's image in a god-like manner, prompting questions about the nature and approval of the gathering.

The Press Club of India swiftly clarified that it had not organised the programme. In a statement posted on X, the club said the hall had been rented out for a press conference by an external organisation. However, when the organisers violated the terms of the rental agreement, club authorities intervened and stopped the event.

The function was organised by Rajan Singh, vice-president of the Bihar State Transgender Welfare Board. Speaking to reporters, Singh defended the event, saying it was an expression of gratitude toward PM Modi for policies benefiting the transgender community. He claimed that for the first time, the community had received rights and employment opportunities under the current government.

Singh also announced plans to construct a temple dedicated to "Lord Shri Narendra Modi ji" in Bihar. He said the project would cost ₹112 crore and spread over five acres of land. When asked about criticism over deifying a political leader, he said, "Nobody should criticise it... This government, for the first time, provided rights to transgender people; they are getting employment." He further addressed controversy around the Transgender Persons (Protection of Rights) Amendment Act, alleging that opposition parties, not the transgender community, were criticising the law.

CM can't dismiss ED charges as political: Ravneet Singh

BJP leader Ravneet Singh Bittu on Thursday said Punjab Chief Minister Bhagwant Mann cannot brush aside serious allegations by simply calling them politically motivated, after the CM's remarks on a communication from the Enforcement Directorate (ED).

"These are not allegations made by a political party or an individual sitting outside the system. The Enforcement Directorate is a premier investigative agency of the country. If the agency has sought information from the Punjab Police or raised specific issues, the Chief Minister should allow the competent authorities to examine them instead of attempting to settle the matter through political statements," Bittu said in a statement.

He said the CM's repeated claim that every investigation involving his government or its political associates is politically motivated raises more questions than it answers. "If everything is false, then put the facts and documents in the public domain. If there is nothing to hide, there should be no fear of an investigation. The people of Punjab deserve answers, not accusations against investigating agencies," Bittu said.

Bittu added that holding constitutional office comes with greater responsibility to answer questions about government functioning. "You are the Chief Minister of Punjab. You cannot selectively demand accountability from others while refusing to answer questions raised about your own government. The office demands accountability before the public," He said investigating agencies must be allowed to discharge their statutory duties independently, with outcomes decided on evidence and law.

"If the Chief Minister believes that the allegations are baseless, let the investigation proceed and let the evidence establish the truth. Political rhetoric cannot substitute for an answer to an official investigation," he said. Bittu further stressed that public office cannot be used as a shield against scrutiny.

"Resignation is not a substitute for an investigation, but neither is the Chief Minister's chair a licence to evade questions. If you want to give opinions on accountability and investigations, first place the relevant facts before the people and the competent authorities. Punjab has the right to know the truth," he added.

Massive search underway for 7 missing Andhra fishermen

AMARAVATI,

A large search operation is underway in the Bay of Bengal for seven fishermen from Andhra Pradesh who went missing after their boat ran into trouble earlier this month, officials said on Thursday. Agriculture Minister Kinjarapu Atchannaidu said the effort involves two Dornier aircraft, a helicopter, and seven boats of the Navy and the Coast Guard, with continuous sorties over potential areas.

Navy boats have been deployed for an extensive search from Visakhapatnam towards Paradip, while a Navy vessel is also scanning the port area. Dornier aircraft from Visakhapatnam, Kolkata and Chennai, along with a Navy helicopter from Kolkata, are being used in the operation. "We are using all available resources to search for the missing fishermen with constant coordination between the Navy, Coast Guard, and the Fisheries Department," the minister said, adding that the search will continue until the fishermen are brought back safely.

Home and Disaster Management Minister V. Anitha earlier directed officials to intensify the search for missing fishermen from Dr B. R. Ambedkar Konaseema district. Officials told her the boat met with an accident about 12 nautical miles off the coast, after which one fisherman, Appanna, went missing. She said all resources must be used to locate him safely and reunite him with his family, and stressed greater vigilance for fishermen venturing out to sea.

Chief Minister N. Chandrababu Naidu on Wednesday reviewed the operation and asked officials to step up efforts to trace the missing fishermen. The boat, carrying fishermen from Odalarevu, Dummalapeta and Vasalathippa villages in Alavaram mandal, had left on August 3 and was due back on August 12. Fishing boats from Kakinada, Bhairavapalem, Visakhapatnam and Paradip have been alerted to help gather information.

Aadhaar app crosses 5 crore downloads

NEW DELHI

The Aadhaar app has crossed 5 crore downloads, marking a major milestone in the adoption of digital-first Aadhaar services, the IT Ministry said on Thursday. The app now serves as a key digital interface between residents and UIDAI, letting users update mobile number, address and email, lock or unlock biometrics, and download e-Aadhaar from their smartphones.

Since its launch, the app has seen strong and sustained usage. More than 60 lakh people updated their mobile number using the app, while over 15 lakh address updates and more than 23 lakh email updates were done through it. This growing adoption reflects residents' increasing preference for availing Aadhaar-related services digitally, without visiting an Aadhaar centre.

The Aadhaar app crossed 5 crore downloads, enabling mobile, address, email updates and biometric locks digitally, reducing visits to Aadhaar centres.

The app is built on the principle of "Show, Share and Verify", giving Aadhaar holders greater control over how their information is used while enabling convenient identity verification. Alongside the app's growth, UIDAI has expanded secure offline verification by onboarding more than 200 entities as Offline Verification Seeking Entities (OVSEs) since January. These partners can now verify identity using QR code-based checks and secure digitally signed documents without real-time connectivity to UIDAI's central database.

UIDAI said this offline mechanism enables secure, consent-based and paperless verification, empowering both service providers and residents. By allowing users to share only the minimum necessary data, the approach enhances privacy and builds trust through transparent, consent-driven interactions. The initiatives are aligned with the government's Digital India vision and the broader goal of improving ease of living through secure, accessible and technology-enabled public services.

Kerala to move SC against highway curbs

THIRUVANANTHAPURAM

Kerala will approach the Supreme Court against its recent order restricting construction along national highways, Public Works Minister P.K. Basheer said on Thursday, arguing the directive is impractical in a densely populated state with scarce land and could affect thousands of homes and businesses.

The Supreme Court, in a suo motu case triggered by a fatal road accident in North India, directed that residential construction should not be permitted within 40 metres and commercial establishments within 75 metres on either side of the centre line of national highways. The order also envisages keeping additional land vacant for service roads and adjoining areas to regulate access and improve road safety.

Basheer said Kerala's circumstances are fundamentally different from those that led to the court's intervention. He noted that in the original case, vehicles could enter the highway from various points along the service road, a risk that has since been addressed by restricting entry and exit to designated points, including in Kerala. "Given Kerala's special circumstances, it is not possible to leave such large stretches of land free for construction. It is not practical. Kerala will directly place its concerns before the Supreme Court. The state government will take a clear and firm stand on the matter," he said.

The government is expected to highlight Kerala's unusually high population density and limited land availability compared with most other states. Basheer warned that if the directive remains unchanged, hundreds of acres of private land and thousands of houses and commercial establishments from Kasaragod to Thiruvananthapuram could be affected. The issue gains added importance as six-laning work on National Highway 66 progresses and several new projects recommended by the National Highways Authority of India could be impacted.

Lawyers protest against BCI Chief over NALSAR row

NEW DELHI
A group of lawyers protested outside the Bar Council of India (BCI) office on Thursday, demanding the resignation of chairman Manan Kumar Mishra. The protest followed criticism of the council's now-withdrawn order targeting the enrolment of NALSAR University's 2026 graduating batch. Heavy police deployment was seen near the office as lawyers raised slogans and held placards seeking accountability. The demonstration was organised by the All-India Young Advocates Association and supported by the Cockroach Janta Party. Advocate Raman Sharma said the protest was being led by lawyers to highlight concerns within their own professional body. Protesters questioned Mishra's long tenure and demanded greater attention to the welfare and concerns of lawyers and law students. The controversy began after the BCI directed State Bar Councils not to enrol NALSAR's graduating students following a campaign over the invitation of Chief Justice of India Surya Kant to the university's convocation. The order was later withdrawn after criticism, with the BCI saying that the vast majority of students were innocent. Lawyers at Thursday's protest also raised wider issues, including lawyer welfare, stipends, chambers, the Advocates Act and regulation of law colleges. Advocate Umesh Kumar alleged that professional concerns were being neglected while political issues received greater attention. The Bombay Bar Association has separately demanded Mishra's resignation over the NALSAR episode. Mishra later apologised, saying, "If anything connected with the present controversy, any of my words, or letter, has hurt the feelings of our law students, I sincerely regret and apologise for the same." Chief Justice Surya Kant had also criticised the BCI order as unnecessary and supported students' right to protest. The issue has now widened into a debate over accountability, student rights and the functioning of the legal regulator.

Delhi launches programme to strengthen MSMEs

Delhi launches a major MSME training programme, targeting over 30,000 businesses with modern skills, technology, finance and wider market access

NEW DELHI

Delhi Chief Minister Rekha Gupta on Thursday launched a Mega Capacity Building Programme aimed at helping micro, small and medium enterprises (MSMEs) gain modern skills, technology, finance and wider markets. The programme took place at Anuvrat Bhawan under the Raising and Accelerating MSME Performance scheme today. Gupta said the training drive supports the government's four-pillar reform plan covering policy, process, performance and partnership. She said stronger cooperation between the government and entrepreneurs could give momentum to Delhi's economy.

IN FOCUS
■ 30,000+ MSMEs to get training.
■ ₹49.74 crore approved for Delhi.
■ 10,000+ firms to join digital platforms.
■ ₹4,806 crore in loan guarantees approved.

More than 200 MSME entrepreneurs attended, along with Industries Minister Sardar Manjinder Singh Sirsa, senior officials and industry representatives. DSIIDC formally organised the programme. Under the RAMP scheme, the Centre has approved Rs 49.74 crore for Delhi, Gupta said. More than 30,000 MSMEs are expected to receive skills and training by January 2027, while over 10,000 businesses will be connected to digital platforms such as GeM and ONDC. Gupta stressed that digital access is essential for growth. The government says MSMEs are central to Delhi's economy and wants their products to reach markets across India and abroad. Under the Delhi Credit Guarantee Scheme, businesses can receive loans up to Rs 10 crore without collateral, with guarantees covering 95 per cent. Since February, 10,505 guarantees worth Rs 4,806 crore were approved. Industries Minister Sirsa said the government is working to improve infrastructure, finance, technology and market access. Tenders' worth around Rs 500 crore have been issued for industrial works, while more projects are planned. An AI-enabled single-window portal is being developed to simplify approvals. The programme will help MSMEs grow and compete globally.

CBI arrests man wanted in parliament impersonation case

NEW DELHI

The Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) has arrested Jitendra Pathak, a proclaimed offender accused of impersonating an employee of the Lok Sabha Secretariat. Pathak had reportedly remained absconding for about 10 years and was finally arrested in Ludhiana, Punjab, on August 19. The CBI had registered the case in July 2009 against Pathak and others for allegedly cheating a private person by promising employment in Parliament in return for Rs 50,000. After completing its investigation, the agency filed a chargesheet against Pathak and another accused in December 2009. Pathak did not appear before the trial court after the chargesheet was filed. Despite repeated efforts, investigators could not trace him for several years. Following the required legal process, the trial court declared him a proclaimed offender on September 28, 2016. The CBI said information gathered during field verification indicated that Pathak was living in Ludhiana. Acting on these inputs, the agency conducted an operation supported by technical analysis and arrested him. His arrest marks a major development in a case that had remained pending for years. In a separate case, the CBI also arrested Assistant DGFT official Hemlata Hedau in Haryana in an alleged bribery matter. The agency said Hedau allegedly demanded Rs 30,000 to process an Export Promotion Capital Goods authorisation file. The CBI laid a trap on August 19 and allegedly caught her while demanding and accepting the money. Both cases highlight the agency's continuing action against corruption and long-pending criminal cases. Tharoor panel seeks update to old passport law

NEW DELHI

A Parliamentary Standing Committee on External Affairs has discussed ways to modernise India's passport system, including e-passports and police verification. The panel, headed by Congress MP Shashi Tharoor, also considered whether the Passports Act, 1967, needs to be updated to match present-day needs and technology. Speaking after the meeting, Tharoor said the discussions were detailed and covered several issues related to passport services, citizenship and travel documents. He said around 15 MPs attended the meeting and examined different aspects of the existing system. The committee was briefed by officials from the Ministry of External Affairs on passport issuance and the use of e-passports. Several members reportedly felt that the 1967 law is now outdated and requires revision after more than five decades. Tharoor described the need for changes as overdue, but made it clear that the committee has not reached a final conclusion. He said the Ministry of External Affairs would have further work to do before any decision is taken. The committee also looked at police verification, which is an important part of the passport application process. Tharoor said members had earlier spoken ken with passport officials during visits to Jammu and Kashmir and Ladakh. These interactions helped the panel identify problems and areas that may require further attention. The meeting is part of the committee's continuing review of India's passport system. Its recommendations could help improve services, reduce delays and make passport procedures more suited to modern technology. The discussions on e-passports and possible changes to the old law are expected to continue as the panel gathers more information before preparing its final recommendations.

Amit shah announces high court bench in Ladakh

LADAKH

Union Home Minister Amit Shah on Thursday announced that the Union Cabinet, chaired by Prime Minister Narendra Modi, has approved the establishment of a bench of the High Court of Jammu and Kashmir in Ladakh. Shah said the decision is aimed at improving access to justice for people living in the remote areas of the Union Territory by reducing the time and distance involved in accessing legal services. In a post on X, Shah said the government is committed to the all-round development of Ladakh and to ensuring constitutional safeguards for the Union Territory. He said the new High Court bench would significantly enhance access to justice for citizens who are entitled to legal services. Ladakh became a separate Union Territory without a legis-islature after the Centre abrogated Articles 370 and 35A on August 5, 2019, and reorganised the erstwhile state of Jammu and Kashmir into two Union Territories. Jammu and Kashmir was created as a Union Territory with a legislature, while Ladakh was formed without a legislature. The announcement comes amid the Centre's focus on strengthening infrastructure and connectivity in the Union Territory. The decision to establish a High Court bench is expected to make it easier for residents to pursue legal matters without having to undertake long journeys outside the region. Meanwhile, the Union Cabinet on Wednesday approved several major infrastructure projects. The Cabinet Committee on Economic Affairs cleared four railway multi-tracking projects in West Bengal, Odisha, Andhra Pradesh and Tamil Nadu at an estimated cost of Rs 9,450 crore. The Cabinet also approved the upgradation of the Muzaffarpur-Sitamarhi-Sonbarsa section of NH-22 in Bihar to four-lane standards, involving a capital investment of Rs 3,590.73 crore. The Ladakh High Court bench decision is being viewed as another step towards improving public services and strengthening access to justice for residents of the strategically important Union Territory.

Manipur naga protest turns violent

IMPHAL

A protest demanding justice for six Naga civilians allegedly killed during the ongoing Manipur conflict turned tense in Kanglatongbi on Thursday. Security forces, including Rapid Action Force personnel, reportedly fired tear gas shells to disperse protesters, leaving four people injured. The wounded were taken to hospitals in Imphal for treatment. The sit-in was organised by the United Naga Council (UNC), with members of indigenous communities demanding action against those responsible for the killings. Protesters also called for an impartial investigation into the deaths and questioned the use of force during the demonstration. The six civilians were allegedly abducted from Kangpokpi district on May 13. Their bodies were recovered on June 10 near a Kuki-Zo village. The recovery came a day after 14 Kuki individuals, who were allegedly abducted by armed groups in Senapati district nearly a month earlier, were released. The latest confrontation has added to tensions in the violence-hit state, where communities continue to demand justice and accountability. Protesters maintained that the deaths of the six civilians must be properly investigated and that those responsible should face action. The use of tear gas during Thursday's demonstration has further intensified concerns over the handling of protests in the region. The incident also highlights the continuing mistrust among communities affected by the conflict. With four protesters injured, calls for an impartial probe into the civilian deaths and the security response are expected to remain at the centre of the dispute.

Pawan Kalyan absences fuel NDA rift speculation

Questions have emerged over the stability of Andhra Pradesh's ruling NDA alliance as Deputy Chief Minister Pawan Kalyan has missed several Cabinet meetings and public events attended by Chief Minister N Chandrababu Naidu. His repeated absence has led to speculation about differences between the Jana Sena leader and the TDP chief. Kalyan has reportedly skipped at least four Cabinet meetings in recent weeks, including an event linked to new buildings and roads in the Amaravati capital region. He has also stayed away from Assembly sessions. His last public appearance with Naidu was at the Bhogapuram Airport inauguration on August 1, which was also attended by Prime Minister Narendra Modi. Political observers believe the absences could be connected to differences over seat-sharing for upcoming local body elections. Sources in Jana Sena said Kalyan wants a larger share of seats and some civic corporations for his party. The TDP, however, is reportedly reluctant to give up more constituencies because of concerns among its grassroots workers. Jana Sena has also pointed to Kalyan's health problems following shoulder surgery as a reason for his absence. A senior party leader said Cabinet meetings require long hours of sitting and that Kalyan has been avoiding them on health grounds.

Jadavpur university clash sparks tension

KOLKATA

Tension continued around Jadavpur University on Thursday after a clash between the Akhil Bharatiya Vidyarthi Parishad (ABVP) and Left-backed student groups over a general body meeting. The violence later spilled onto Kolkata streets, with rival groups staging protests amid heavy police and CRPF deployment. The confrontation began late Wednesday during a meeting of the Faculty of Engineering and Technology Students' Union. Members of ABVP and Left groups, including SFI, DSF and DSO, accused each other of attacks and bringing outsiders onto the campus. Several students were injured and taken to KPC Medical College and Hospital for treatment.

Seven people, including five US nationals and Ecuador's intelligence chief Michele Sensi-Contugi, were killed when a tourist helicopter crashed in Kenya's Samburu County on Wednesday. Sensi-Contugi's wife, Stephany Hollihan, was also among the victims. The helicopter, carrying six passengers and a pilot, was travelling from the Loisaba Conservancy toward the Ewaso Nyiro area when it crashed near Mount Ololokwe. All seven people aboard died. ‘Toxic’ English Trailer Focuses More on Its World

Yash’s Toxic English trailer focuses on its fictional world, period setting and story, offering international viewers a clearer introduction.

The English trailer of Yash-starrer Toxic: A Fairy Tale for Grown-Ups has taken a different approach from the Kannada version, giving more attention to the film’s fictional world than its lead actor.

The new trailer, released for international audiences on Wednesday, is shorter than the Kannada trailer released on August 8. However, it includes two new snippets and presents the story in a more detailed and atmospheric manner.

The Kannada trailer introduced Yash prominently in his dual roles as Raya and Ticket, with several action sequences. The English version keeps much of the action but builds the setting more carefully. It takes viewers into a fictionalised Goa during the final years of Portuguese colonial rule.

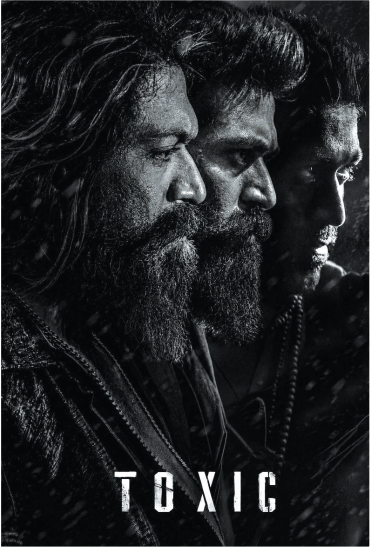

The international trailer also has a tighter narrative structure. Instead of moving quickly between action, romance and character introductions, it presents the events with a clearer flow. This approach appears designed to help audiences unfamiliar with Yash understand the film’s setting and story.

The English version also contains stronger language from Yash’s character. One line uses an expletive that was not included in the Kannada trailer.

The film features Nayanthara as Ganga, Kiara Advani as Nadia, Tara Sutaria, Rukmini Vasanth as Melissa and Huma Qureshi.

Directed by Geetu Mohandas, Toxic is a period gangster drama co-written by Mohandas and Yash. It is produced by Venkat K. Narayana and Yash under KVN Productions and Monster Mind Creations.

Toxic will release worldwide on August 26 in Kannada, English, Hindi, Tamil, Telugu and Malayalam across several markets.

Will Smith Reportedly Joins Allu Arjun’s ‘RAAKA’

Will Smith’s reported entry into Allu Arjun’s Raaka could give the pan-India film greater international attention and boost its global appeal

Hollywood star Will Smith is reportedly set to join Allu Arjun’s upcoming pan-India film Raaka, directed by Atlee.

Indian cinema, especially films from the South, has gained strong global attention. Movies such as Baahubali, RRR and Pushpa have performed well worldwide.

Now, another Hollywood name may enter Tollywood. Oscar-winning actor Will Smith is reportedly in talks to appear alongside Allu Arjun in Raaka. If confirmed, his presence could increase the film’s popularity, particularly among overseas audiences.

Allu Arjun is currently working on Raaka, which is being directed by Tamil filmmaker Atlee.

Deepika Padukone is set to play the female lead opposite Allu Arjun. Rashmika Mandanna, Janhvi Kapoor and Mrunal Thakur are also reportedly associated with the project, although details about their roles have not been officially confirmed. Will Smith is one of Hollywood’s most recognised actors. His reported involvement could give Raaka greater publicity in overseas markets. South Indian cinema has increasingly welcomed international actors. Arnold Vosloo, known for The Mummy, has been associated with Vijay Deverakonda’s upcoming film, while James Cosmo appeared in Dhanush’s Jagame Thanthiram.

The Shangles Andrew Garfield Reveals Secret Band

Oscar-nominated actor Andrew Garfield has revealed that he is part of a band called The Shangles, which performs covers from the 1976 musical Bugsy Malone.

Garfield, who displayed his singing skills in Tick, Tick...BOOM!, said music continues to be part of his life through the group. I do have a band, we do Bugsy Malone covers, he told E! News. He also invited fans to look out for The Shangles, describing them as a group of middle-aged guys doing Bugsy Malone covers.

The Amazing Spider-Man actor said the band has plans ahead, but he is keeping them until everything is confirmed. We have some big plans, Garfield said, adding that he did not want to jinx it.

Garfield stressed that The Shangles is not being created for money or commercial success. It’s more of a passion project, he said, making clear that the group is simply something he enjoys.

Meanwhile, Garfield is preparing for the release of The Magic Faraway Tree, which reaches theatres on August 21.

The fantasy film also stars Claire Foy and Nicola Coughlan.

‘Mandaadi’ Clears Censorship, Sets Sept Release

Soori’s upcoming sports action drama Mandaadi has cleared censorship and is set for a worldwide theatrical release on September 10, 2026. The certification has increased interest in the film, which features an unusual sea-based setting.

Directed by Mathimaran Pugazhendhi, the film has been shot extensively across Tamil Nadu’s coastal regions. The Central Board of Film Certification has cleared Mandaadi with a U/A 16+ certificate. The makers announced the update through their official X account as promotions enter the final stage.

Soori plays the lead role, while Mahima Nambiar is the female lead. Telugu actor Suhas will make his Tamil debut with the film in an important role. The cast also includes Sath-yaraj, Ravindra Vijay, Mithun and Balasaravanan.

The film stands apart from regular sports dramas because several major sequences were filmed at sea. Soori is reported to have performed difficult action scenes himself rather than using body doubles. He also underwent training for sailing and boat-racing sequences before filming.

The team completed the shoot in April after working in challenging weather and coastal locations. Earlier, the makers released a video highlighting the demanding production, during which some cast and crew members reportedly suffered injuries.

The title Mandaadi draws inspiration from the maritime culture of Tamil Nadu’s coastal communities.

Rajinikanth’s spiritual side shines before Jailer 2

Superstar Rajinikanth is known for his powerful screen presence, but away from films, his spiritual life remains an important part of his identity.

At 75, Rajinikanth continues to balance demanding film roles with a simple and disciplined lifestyle. He has often said spirituality matters more to him than fame, money or status. He believes it gives him energy and helps him remain grounded despite his huge popularity.

The actor has visited several spiritual places and temples across India, including Tirupati and the Raghavendra Swamy Temple. His connection with the Himalayas is especially well known. During a break from the shooting of Jailer 2, he travelled to Rishikesh, spending quiet time away from the busy film industry.

Rajinikanth’s lifestyle also includes regular exercise, careful eating and meditation. His doctor has spoken about these habits, saying they help the actor maintain his fitness and energy for physically demanding roles. This peaceful side of Rajinikanth now contrasts with the excitement around Jailer 2. Directed by Nelson Dilipkumar, the film sees him return as Muthuvel Pandian.
